'INVESTORS FEAR NDP'

Election Fever Sparked in B.C. By Bennett Hint

A provincial election appears imminent for B.C. voters.

The vote — which insiders report could be called within 10 days — looms as a strong possibility after Premier Bill Bennett warned Thursday investor confidence is weak over fear of an NDP return to power.

Bennett, speaking at a Socred constituency meeting in Kelowna, singled out the investment climate as a reason for an early vote.

He said investors are holding off in B.C. because they feel the NDP will get back in power.

The Socreds want to prove their win was no fluke, he added.

There had been reports that if Prime Minister Trudeau did not call a federal vote this fall, Bennett would call a B.C. vote.

Trudeau made it official Thursday, saying he is looking at an election next spring.

Bennett's strong hint he will go to the voters soon brought a quick reaction from NDP leader Dave Barrett.

He said Bennett's claim of investment fear is nothing but sabre rattling by a government embroiled in panic and fear.

"Name the investors," Barrett said.

"He's in a panic over his inability to solve the problems of this province."

Asked if the NDP is ready for an election this fall, Barrett said the party has been working aggresively since the redistribution legislation was passed in the spring session.

"We came out of the last convention (in May this year) united and strong and ready to meet any challenge."

On a Vancouver talk show this morning, Bennett still wouldn't commit himself fully. He said he has not ruled out an election this fall but added an election next spring, next fall or the spring of 1980 are possibilities.

His five-year mandate does not expire until December, 1980.

The premier's vagueness today, however, does not jibe with recent activity and moves by party organizers and colleagues in the Socred caucus.

Museum Official Quits At Cook 'Fakery'

William Langlois, the man credited with building one of the finest aural history libraries in Canada, said today he resigned because he "got tired of the fakery with McCarthy over culture".

"Money was poured into public relations instead of substantial things such as history displays and the contribution of the Indians to the history of B.C.," Langlois said.

Added Langlois : "The money went into paying public relations men and such things as Capt. Cook banners.

"It turned the bicentennial into a side show, a comic opera.

"There was nothing substantial behind the celebrations. We lost a chance of creating abroad and at home a better image of British Columbia."

Langlois said he will seek a Conservative nomination for Victoria riding in the next provincial election and campaign for a better deal for history and culture.

"You will see some big changes in the next elections," he said.

"The Conservative party is going places."

Langlois was director of the aural history library, which he founded, for more than four years.

Standing Ovation For Davis

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — MLA Jack Davis, found guilty earlier in the week of fraud, Thursday was given a standing ovation by 45 Social Credit party members at the annual meeting of his riding association.

Davis, who remained in the legislature as member for North Vancouver-Seymour after being fired from his cabinet post, was not questioned by the audience about his conviction.

He will be sentenced Monday.

Empress Posted As Fire Hazard

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Fire officials did it today to Victoria's grand old lady.

They walked into the Empress Hotel lobby and posted notices warning that the hotel is — wait for it — a fire hazard.

The move was met with a stiff upper lip by Empress manager Ted Balderson.

"No comment," said Balderson.

"We will be talking to our solicitors, that's all we can do."

The notices say the deficiences may cause risk, peril and destruction to life, limb or property.

The orange-colored notices were put up in the lobby and entrances today by Victoria Fire Inspector Ray Best.

The notices say a fire inspection was made June 28 and a number of deficiencies in fire safety were noted.

Anyone who removes the notice without written permission of the fire chief would be guilty of an offence under the Fire Marshal's Act.

Best in an interview said the hotel fails to meet fire safety standards in a number of respects.

He called the hotel's fire alarm system obsolete and noted the hallways are not fitted with heat detectors, both mandatory under the National Building Code.

Best said all of the doors to the 425 rooms in the hotel must be replaced. The doors are presently a panel-type and should be solid core.

He said there is a need for more fire doors in corridors and more stairwells.

Best said the travel distance to exits is not up to standard.

The Empress was one of seven hotels and 12 apartments in the city warned earlier this year that they required fire safety upgrading.

Last February city council passed a bylaw which allowed fire officials to post in buildings notices containing a complete list of fire hazards found by the department.

The bylaw specified notices would be posted 60 days after the owner of a building had been advised of the deficiencies.

If owners do not correct the deficiencies within 60 days, Fire Chief Eric Simmons may then take the matter to council for further action.

SERVICE POOR BUT WHAT A TIP!

VANCOUVER (CP) — It must have been terrific service when the customer left a $1,000 tip for a glass of beer Thursday — even when he didn't get what he wanted.

Cocktail waitress Debra Webb said the tipper was "an average-looking man, a normal business type" who wasn't a regular customer at the Highrigger lounge at the Hotel Vancouver.

He stayed about half an hour and ordered Canadian beer, she said. But, because of the recent brewery labor dispute, the regular lager wasn't available and she served him an American beer.

Webb said she thinks the tip was a mistake since it was a single $1,000 bill, and she expects the customer to return and claim it.

The hotel management will hold the money for 30 days and if it remains unclaimed, will turn it over to the staff as a tip.

Webb said usually the largest tip the staff gets is 15 per cent of the bill.

Back-to-Work Order Facing Posties: PM

Times News Services

Ottawa will legislate Canada's 19,800 postmen back to work if their threatened strike next week is a prolonged walkout that creates chaos, Prime Minister Trudeau said today.

The Letter Carriers Union of Canada has set a Sept. 22 strike deadline if no contract settlement is reached with the Treasury Board.

Union president Robert McGarry said the LCUC executive — authorized to call a strike by 82 percent of the members — will decide Monday whether mail delivery will be halted entirely or if there will be a series of rotating strikes.

Speaking on a morning radio talk show, Trudeau said he supports the right of workers to strike, but would not hesitate to force mail carriers to submit their contract dispute to arbitration.

"Workers should be allowed to withhold their services if they don't want to work," he said. "But at some point, that principle . . . is overtaken by a more important and more fundamental principle, that is, the common good."

Trudeau said civil servants demand large wage settlements because "they tend to feel, 'well, it's the government, they can always dig up more money or print more money, therefore we can ask for more.'

"We're saying to our workers, 'we'll give you what's fair, but you can't get more than you would if you were doing the same job for a private employer. So that is the attitude we're taking. We're hopeful it will prevent a strike."

Earlier, at a news conference, Trudeau said he still hopes the economy can reach

Peace Talk Optimism Doused

THURMONT, Md.(WP) — The Middle East summit conference passed its 10th day Thursday as White House press secretary Jody Powell declared that "more flexibility" in the negotiation is "essential" if the marathon talks are to reach the American goal of producing the broad outlines for an Arab-Israeli peace.

While Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Miniser Ezer Weizman met first with President Carter and then with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Powell responded to a sudden surge of optimistic news reports about the likely outcome of the summit by attempting to lower expectations about the summit's conclusion.

But he denied the talks at nearby Camp David are now stalemated and he refused to speculate on when they might end.

Massive Cavity Left If Hat Creek Mined

VANCOUVER (CP) — If British Columbia Hydro goes ahead with the massive Hat Creek coal project, British Columbians 40 years from now will inherit a giant barren crater in the Upper Hat Creek Valley, says a feasibility report prepared for Hydro.

The crater would be 262 metres (876 feet) deep and 11.2 kilometres (seven miles) in circumference — twice the size of Vancouver's Stanley Park — following 35 years of open-pit mining, says an eight-volume feasibility report prepared by Cominco Ltd. and Monenco Ltd., a Montreal engineering firm.

The study was completed in July but has not yet been released.

Hydro's consultants say that when mining ends, the hole would be subject to landslides, spontaneous combustion of coal wastes, would be impractical to fill with water and virtually barren of plant life.

The proposed development is almost in the centre of one of the better ranching areas of the Ashcroft-Cache Creek-Lillooet area.

"The abandoned open pit is presently envisaged to remain a void," says the report, which was prepared in July.

"Consideration was given to creating a lake in the pit

Was Provincial Lottery Code Broken?

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Reports that the code has been broken on the Provincial instant lottery had buyers and sellers poring over thousands of tickets today, trying to figure out how to spot the good ones.

Reports from Alberta indicate the answer may lie in the quality of printing on the stub.

Winning tickets may be a bit blurred.

Tickets with light yellow stubs also produced a few winners but this theory did not work consistently either.

B.C. lottery officials expressed alarm but no great surprise that the code may have been broken.

In Edmonton, city employees Hugh Frazer and Don Hogan said Thursday they have worked out a code-breaking system which they intend to pass on to British American Bank Note officials, printers of the tickets.

"We want to pass it on to the right authorities so it can be corrected when they make up the next series," said Frazer who would not reveal his system.

An Edmonton Loto Canada distributor said he also has broken the system. He said printing is not as clear on the free bonus tickets as it is on the others.

Before these three men said they had figured out the system Bob Silverthorn, a 35-year-old Tofield, Alta., math and science teacher, baffled lottery officials by picking nine tickets with instant free prizes of free tickets out of 50 at random. He also walked away with a $10 consolation prize.

Silverthorn said he has no system and relies on what he called "just pure luck."

One printer claims to be able to read the scratch patch with the use of a high intensity arc light.

In Victoria, Loto ticket distributor Hugh Currie said: "It would be a shame if the code is broken. That spoils the whole thing. I hope they will be able to correct the defect, if there is one."

Currie, of Howell and Currie at 2340 Douglas, spent half an hour going over hundreds of Provincial tickets this morning but could not detect any sure-fire method of spotting winners.

Two More Poison Brolly Jabs?

PARIS (UPI) — Two more Bulgarian defectors claimed today they were poked with poisoned umbrella tips in attacks similar to the one that killed a countryman in London.

The three Bulgarians were all defectors from Sofia and all prepared material for broadcasts beamed behind the Iron Curtain.

Vladimir Kostov, 49, a colleague of Bulgarian defector Georgi Markov who died Monday after a suspected stab from a poisoned umbrella in London, said today he was poked in the back in a Paris subway on Aug. 26. He blamed the attacks on the Bulgarian State Security organization.

A former Paris correspondent for Bulgarian TV, Kostov asked for political asylum in France in 1977.

The Paris newspaper l'Aurore reported another Bulgarian defector, Stephan Bankov, now living in Los Angeles, and preparing religious programs for broadcast to Bulgaria, was attacked by a man in 1974 on a plane between London and Seattle.

L'Aurore quoted Bankov as saying, "He didn't apologize for bumping into me and I immediately experienced a terrible feeling of cold, a beginning of paralysis and difficulties in breathing."

Bankov reportedly was hospitalized immediately after the plane landed and was sick "for several days."

Kostov said he was leaving a Paris subway station when someone in the crowd poked him in the back.

He said he was bedridden with a high fever for 48 hours and the attack left a mark like an insect bite.

News reports in London said doctors studying the death of Markov have found evidence he was murdered with a stab from a poisoned umbrella point outside the BBC, as he claimed on his death-bed.

CUBAN TROOPS WILL REMAIN

NAIROBI (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro said Thursday he has no intention of bowing to Western pressure and withrawing thousands of troops he has sent to several African states in the last year.

In a speech in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Castro defended his military intervention in Africa as "an act of solidarity," and said not one Cuban soldier on African soil is there other than to "defend a just cause."

Castro is in Addis Ababa to attend celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the coup that ousted Emperor Haile Selassie. His speech came at the opening session of a week-long Afro-Arab solidarity conference.

He condemned British and U.S. plans for Rhodesia as neo-colonialist.

In Salisbury Thursday, Prime Minister Ian Smith branded guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo a "monster" for the deaths of 48 persons after the downing of a civilian airliner and ruled out any further contacts with the black guerrilla leader.

Smith also announced a crackdown on guerrilla organizations.

Proposed Federal Cuts Hit B.C. Hardest - Wolfe

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe Thursday said B.C. has been hit hardest by Ottawa's proposed reduction in federal funds to the provinces.

He estimated the loss to B.C. so far at as much as $81 million.

The cutbacks are in three main areas:

— Reductions in existing financial arrangements with the provinces such as the Canada Assistance Plan that will cost B.C. about $24 million;

— A reallocation of such expenditures as unemployment and family allowance benefits that will cost B.C. about $25 million;

— Spending cuts in federal departments that will have an adverse effect on provincial budgets and could cost B.C. from between $27.8 million and $32.3 million.

Wolfe was highly critical of Ottawa for making the moves without prior consultation with the provinces despite promises to that effect.

"We have reason to believe that British Columbia (along with Alberta) is being singled out to receive less than its fair share of job creation and economic development," minister said.

"When it comes to capital expenditures, B.C. gets nowhere near the equivalent share of the other parts of Canada."

A case in point is the extra $70 million Ottawa has allocated for ship repair and facilities that is slated entirely for Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

"This comes at a time when our yards in B.C. are short of work and desperately need an augmented shipbuilding subsidy."

Wolfe outlined in a press release the latest information he has received on the pending federal cutbacks announced Aug. 1 by the Trudeau government which is trying to trim some $2.5 billion from this and next year's budgets.

The bulk of the spending reductions go into effect next year, so there will be little strain on B.C.'s current budget.

But Wolfe warned if the federal contributions continue to decline, it will obviously restrict B.C.'s ability to maintain a high level of services in future.

"The aspect of the federal government exercise which is most distasteful is the proposed reduction in funding levels of $220 million for the major federally funded programs," the minister said.

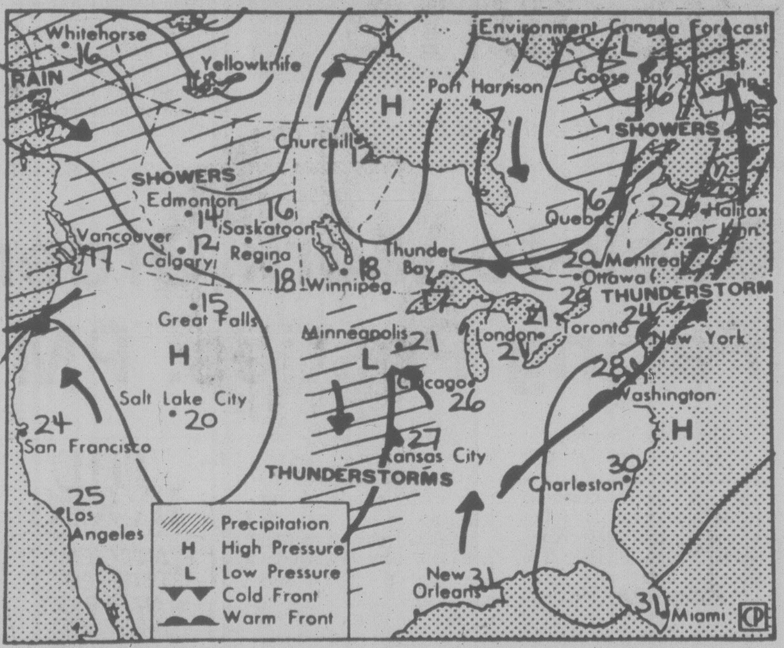
the weather



A weakening disturbance which crossed the B.C. coast last night is continuing east and is expected to pass to Alberta today. Precipitation in the form of showers became isolated this morning over southern coastal districts. For the remainder of today, cloud with sunny periods will prevail on the south coast together with isolated showers. Another system from the west will bring more frequent showers to southern coastal districts tonight and Saturday. At the same time northern coastal districts will experience showers from time to time on both days. Inland, variable cloud will prevail today and Saturday interspersed with sunny periods and a little precipitation.

Smallpox Victim's Mom Ill

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — The elderly mother of a woman, who this week became Britain's first smallpox victim in five years, also has been diagnosed as having the disease, a doctor said Thursday.

Hilda Witcomb, 70, is suffering from variola major, the same type of smallpox that killed her daughter Janet Parker on Monday, said Dr. Margaret Pereira, director of the virus lab at the Central Public Health Laboratories in London.

The woman's diagnosis was disclosed Thursday after experts at the lab conducted tests on samples taken from her. She was admitted to hospital on Sept. 8 after developing a rash.

Doctors said Mrs. Witcomb is likely to survive. She is being treated in the Catherine de Barnes Isolation Hospital at Solihull, near Birmingham, where her 40-year-old daughter died.

Mrs. Witcomb's 71-year-old husband, Frederick, who also was admitted to the isolation hospital as a contact, died there of a suspected heart attack last week.

New Way To Find Explosives

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Research Council is working on a process of detecting explosives which, if successful, could eliminate lengthy searches by bomb squads, council president W. G. Schneider says in his annual report.

But those involved with the project refused to give any details about the process, which uses electrochemical analysis, for fear terrorists could develop counter measures.

Schneider's report, which highlights research projects carried out by the council, says the method being developed would analyse the air exhausted from an aircraft cabin, for example, and reliably detect quantities of vapors characteristic to explosives.

Workers Killed

LONDON (AP) — Three men died in a shower of molten metal at the Davy Roll steelworks at Gateshead, in northeastern England on Thursday.

a door-to-door distribution campaign of some 350,000 glossy booklets entitled Getting Things Done For People is imminent.

Party organizers insist the distribution, which is expected to get underway almost immediately, is just a membership drive leading up to the Socred annual convention in October.

Other indicators of a fall election:

The high profile of the premier in recent weeks, including a highly publicized trip on the E & N railway and features in both of Canada's national weekly newspaper suppliments and numerous appearances on provincial television and radio programs.

—A sudden show of generosity to provincial municipalities where the premier has handed out more than $8.8 million in one two-week period alone in August.

—The high profile of his cabinet ministers who have been holding press conferences instead of having their offices issue the usual press releases.

—Reports that he has written to all the Socred MLA's telling them to get to work and maintain a high profile in their constituencies.

Peltier Appeal Fails

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday upheld the murder conviction of American Indian Movement leader Leonard Peltier in the 1975 slayings of two FBI agents.

Peltier was sentenced last year to two life terms in prison. He had been tried and convicted in U. S. District Court in Fargo, N. D., after being extradited from Canada.

The two FBI agents were slain in June, 1975, on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

Peltier claimed in his appeal that the FBI had coerced witnesses into testifying against him during his trial. He is serving his sentence in the Illinois State Penitentiary in Marion.

Shiites Strike In Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — Youths set up street barricades and burned tires in western Beirut today as Moslem areas of Lebanon went on an one-day general strike to protest the disappearance of Imam Moussa Sadr, spiritual leader to 900,000 Shiite Moslems, the country's largest sect.

Banks, shops, cafes, restaurants, cinemas and factories were closed.

BABY BEAVER is spending a few weeks at the Reifel Bird Sanctuary in Ladner, south of Vancouver, after it was rescued from a slough where boys were throwing rocks at it. Colin Trefry, a naturalist at the sanctuary, said he will look after the beaver for a couple of weeks, then let it out near some other beavers living in the area.

$300M Spill Suit Filed

NEW YORK (Reuter) — France filed a $300-million suit here Wednesday seeking reparation for damage caused by the Liberian tanker Amoco Cadiz when it ran aground off the northwest coast of Brittany six months ago.

The suit alleged that 220,000 tons of crude oil spilled into channel waters last March and caused extensive damage to beaches and the fishing industry, with costs for the clean-up incurred by the French government.

France alleged that the ship's captain, Pasquale Vordari, was negligent in failing to seek help until two hours after the 223,000-ton vessel went out of control.

Amoco International Oil Company and Claude Phillips, director of the company's marine operations, were named as defendants in the case, filed in U.S. district court.

French Budget Minister Maurice Papon Saidin said in a statement that the action against the Amoco International Oil Co. was filed in New York so that the French government could claim more than the $30 million laid down by the 1969 Brussels convention under which oil companies set up a fund to pay damages for such disasters.

Dawn Battle For Leon

MANAGUA (UPI) — Warplans and National Guard troops, including units of the crack Black Berets, launched a major dawn offensive today aimed at recapturing Nicaragua's second largest city, Leon, from rebels fighting to bring down the government of President Anastasio Somoza Debayle.

In Managua, there were fears Marxist Sandinista guerrillas would mount a new operation to coincide with the three-day Sept. 14-16 Independence holiday. Troops barricadd government buildings and searched anyone who came near.

A series of loud explosions and the crackle of gunfire disrupted the capital's new curfew overnight.

A telephoned report from Leon, 55 miles northwest of Managua, said the new attack began at 7:30 a.m., apparently aimed at seizing the Sandinista stronghold in the northern area of the city.

With gunfire and explosions sounding in the background, Rodolfo Abaunza, publisher of the local newspaper El Centroamericano, said in a phone call to Managua, that Somoza's warplanes were flying directly overheard and strafing the northern barrios holding the Sandinista concentrations.

He said the city had been without water since Thursday night.

National Guardsmen at checkpoints on the city outskirts turned back terrified townspeople trying to leave, saying "Go home, we are in the middle of an operation."

Abaunza said, "I have got to hang up now because I am going to my shelter."

Beating Black to Death Nets Jail in Pretoria

PRETORIA (Reuter) — A white South African and his wife, both convicted of beating their 15-year-old black servant to death, were sent to prison today.

Marthinus Botha, 32-year-old former policeman, was jailed for 10 years for murder and his wife, Johanna, 21, for three years for culpable homicide (manslaughter). Botha had pleaded not guilty and his wife guilty.

The Supreme Court was told the couple beat their maid, Engelina Myakane, with their fists and a sjambok (leather whip) because they suspected her of theft.

The judge, Justice W. J. Human, said there were extenuating circumstances in the case. Botha had been drinking heavily and honestly believed the girl had stolen from him, the judge said.

Government by Referendum

The sudden insertion of a possible referendum on capital punishment into the Liberals' campaign for re-election has to be a new low in the Trudeau administration's cynical manoeuvring to hang onto power.

Justice Minister Otto Lang said he wants a referendum so the Canadian people can decide whether they want the death penalty brought back. Prime Minister Trudeau maintains he is opposed to government by referendum and his administration will not hold a ballot on the noose.

And that's the end of the matter? Hardly. So much Liberal baggage has been thrown overboard in the last month in desperation to keep the party afloat that anything is possible. Trudeau says he is opposed to a referendum today, but next week or next month, who knows?

Yet the Liberals have planted a thought among the voters who will choose MPs in 16 ridings next month: perhaps a referendum will be held. It makes the issue fuzzy. The Liberal party's traditional opposition to capital punishment is softened, though the perception is no more than the result of a little sail-trimming by the first lieutenant. The ship remains headed on the same course.

There are numerous indications that Canadians are still preoccupied with the issue of capital punishment. Polls carried out by the colleagues of the same fellow who brings the prime minister regular reports of the electorate's restiveness on his handling of the economy and constitutional issue regularly show a majority want the death penalty restored. And the public, informed of these frequent polls, understandably wants something done about the majority's clearly expressed desire for a return to capital punishment for murderers.

Though one may criticize the prime minister for the way he picks only the poll results he wants to see and ignores the distasteful ones, anyone who gives a little serious consideration to the problems of governing will agree with Trudeau's complaint about the difficulty of making decisions on issues which are controversial.

"They think it's easy to govern? Maybe we should throw a few of these hot potatoes back to the people and let them live with the results."

Technically, it would be a relatively simple matter to arrange a government by popular referendum, the ultimate in democracy. But how many of would understand the important and sometimes complex issues they would be called upom to decide? How many people spend even half an hour a day keeping up with current political and social issues? We elect members to Parliament to listen, to read widely, to inquire everywhere and then make up their minds. That is what happened in 1976 when MPs on a free vote decided to abolish the limited form of the death penalty Canada retained. Canadians should not be so hasty to push aside their legislators' carefully considered judgment and substitute their own, perhaps emotjonal reactions.

All of the arguments about the death penalty come down to one — its deterrent effect. Does the existence of capital punishment deter potential murderers? Does its absence encourage people to kill? No one has the answers, after years of research by many, many authorities. But the burden of proof is on the retentionists; if they cannot provide conclusive evidence that the death penalty reduces the homicide rate, then why retain this medieval practice?

The statistics in Canada show the murder rate practically unchanged throughout the most recent period of controversy over capital punishment. In 1977, the first full year when the noose was finally eliminated for any type of murder, the homicide rate was 2.5 per 100,000 population. In 1976, it was 2.44 and in 1975 there were 2.5 murders per 100,000 Canadians. No orgy of killing broke out when the last threat of hanging had been removed.

Proponents of capital punishment will need to come up with some very convincing arguments if they want to be taken seriously.

Hat Creek Coal

Another study has brought B.C. a little closer to exploiting B.C. Hydro's vast coal deposits at Hat Creek for a thermal power project. An environmental study by Cominco Ltd. and a Montreal engineering firm has been leaked to the press, which examines the consequences of mining the low-grade coal by the open pit method.

It suggests mining would carry on for about 35 years, leaving a crater about seven miles around and nearly 500 feet deep. Two big waste dumps would cover additional acreage, but they could be reclaimed by planting trees and other vegetation.

The study is an interesting piece of work, as far as it goes. Which is not very far. It is ironic that this environmental impact assessment appears to neglect entirely an alternate use for the coal which is environmentally much safer and — more important, perhaps — could earn B.C. Hydro as much or more than burning it to make electricity.

Hat Creek coal's unique pollution-battling qualities have been proven by years of experimentation and at least two studies by University of B.C. faculty — the coal absorbs nearly 100 per cent of pollutants from waste water, organic matter, heavy metals.

Why B.C. Hydro successive provincial governments have consistently ignored this phenomenon, even after they'd been figuratively hit over the head with the data and practical results, is amazing. But it's not too late. Mining has not begun at Hat Creek. There is still time to order Hydro to change course.

It would be criminal if this coal were merely sent up in smoke.

Fish Talks Are Deadlocked

OTTAWA — Perhaps the game plan was never really on in the first place. Perhaps it was bungled. In any case, it is clear that the U.S.-Canada negotiations on a maritime boundaries settlement — one of the most important and intricate sets of negotiations ever tackled by the two countries — are in deep trouble.

Both Canadian and American officials admit that the negotiations, launched on the personal initiative of Prime Minister Trudeau and President Carter just over a year ago, have been going badly. According to one source close to the discussions, they have reached the point where neither side seems to have anything left to say to the other.

The dispute over salmon fishing off the west coast in June has left a bad taste in everybody's mouth. In terms of atmospherics and attitudes — crucial elements in any bargaining situation where good will is such a key factor it was an absolute disaster.

Too Late to Do Good

As a direct result of the dispute, which involved conditions by which fishermen of the two countries could fish in each other's salmon waters, Canada pulled out of all reciprocal fishing arrangements on both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

It has maintained its position even in the face of a statement by Carter himself, in July, expressing hope that Canada and the U.S. "can now immediately proceed to restore traditional patterns of reciprocal fishing." The statement came when the president signed congressional legislation to give effect to this year's over-all reciprocal agreement: legislation which as far as Canada was concerned came too late to do any good.

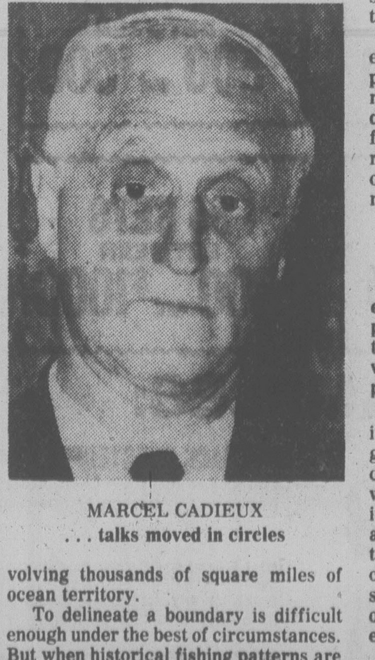
At the same time, Carter reiterated his support for a comprehensive, long-term maritime agreement, saying it "would be in the tradition of our close co-operative relationship with Canada."

Two months and several negotiating sessions after the American president thus committed his prestige to the success of the talks, they appear tightly deadlocked. Two meetings last month between the two chief negotiators, Lloyd Cutler of the U.S. and Marcel Cadieux of Canada, achieved little if anything. One official described these discussions as "circular."

A later meeting at the technical level, aimed at reinstituting reciprocal fishing on the west coast for the remainder of 1978, also failed to produce results.

Four boundary areas are in dispute in the negotiations: the Gulf of Maine off the east coast, the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Dixon Entrance of the west coast, and the Beaufort Sea north of the Alaska-Yukon boundary.

The demarcation of boundary lines became a crucial issue last year when both countries extended their offshore jurisdictions 200 miles out to sea. The action immediately raised the problem of the co-ordinates to be used in drawing the lines from shore. Maps produced by the two sides showed rival claims involving thousands of square miles of ocean territory.



MARCEL CADIEUX
. . . talks moved in circles

To delineate a boundary is difficult enough under the best of circumstances. But when historical fishing patterns are also affected, not to mention the livelihood of many thousand fiercely independent fishermen, the task becomes forbiddingly complex.

The possibility of hydrocarbons being discovered in some of the disputed areas complicated matters still further. This was expected to tangle matters especially in respect to Georges Bank in the Gulf of Maine, considered a good bet to contain undersea reservoirs of oil and natural gas.

But to the surprise of some people, a formula for sharing any deposits that drilling turns up was arrived at with little ado. (Wide differences remain however on where to locate the boundary in the region of the fabulously rich fishing bank.)

Now, the question of hydrocarbons has intruded in a serious way into the negotiations concerning the Beaufort Sea, which had been regarded as an area more amenable to settlement. Increased hopes of major oil discoveries in the Beaufort undoubtedly have something to do with it.

The rough going now being encountered underlines the enormousness of the task given Cutler and Cadieux by their respective governments. The breathtaking scope of their mandate is suggested in the following passage from the terms of reference:

"The negotiators will report to governments by Oct. 15 (1977) on the principles of a comprehensive settlement encompassing maritime boundaries delimitation, complementary fishery and hydrocarbon resource arrangements as appropriate, and such other related matters as the two governments may decide."

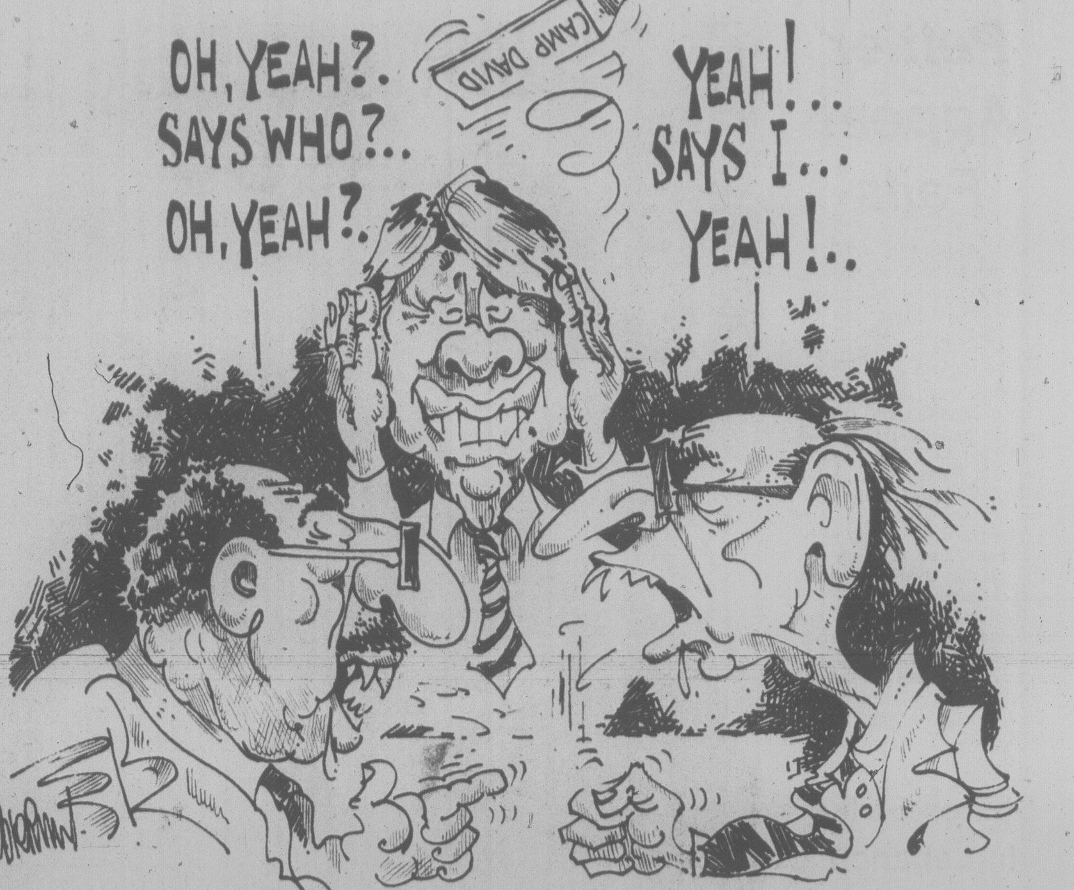
Arbitration the Way?

Cutler and Cadieux were also directed to develop the "substance of a comprehensive settlement" for submission to their governments by Dec. 1, 1977. It would have to receive government approval before taking effect.

Considering the monumental legal issues involved, the national and regional interests and the necessity to consult nearly every step of the way with provincial and state governments, it's fair to ask how anyone could reasonably have expected the pair to carry out their orignal assignment — and of course they didn't. The unique friendship between Canada and the U.S. can overcome lots of problems, but it wasn't equal to that one.

The negotiators' mandate has been extended from time to time, and is now open-ended. Both sides desperately want to avoid recourse to binding arbitration by a third party such as the International Court of Justice. The judgment could not possibly satisfy both countries. A negotiated settlement is therefore infinitely preferable.

But the logic of the present situation may force the antagonists to turn to arbitration as the only way out, and before too many months have passed, at that.



RICHARD GWYN

The Act of a Moral Bankrupt

OTTAWA — The speech that Prime Minister Trudeau gave, on June 16, 1976, during the Commons' debate on capital punishment was one of the finest of his career. "Are we as a society so lacking in respect for ourselves, so socially bankrupt," said Trudeau, "that we are ready to accept state vengeance as our penal philosophy?"

The questions that Trudeau asked then, should today be thrown back in his face. Is he, as prime minister, so lacking in respect for himself, so morally bankrupt, that he is ready to accept opportunism as the sum total of his political philosophy? Does he any longer hold onto power for any purpose except to hold onto it?

Can't Be Resolved

The noose itself is not the issue that has been raised by the disclosure by Justice Minister Otto Lang that he will ask cabinet to hold a national referendum on capital punishment. The arguments for and against hanging are the same as they have always been: belief in the sanctity of life, no matter how unpleasant its individual form, versus a belief that society's first duty is to victims, actual or potential.

Nor is the issue the supremacy of Parliament versus the supremacy of democratic opinion. This argument is as insoluble today as it was in 1774 when Edmund Burke first raised it in his famous speech to the voters of Bristol. Though supreme in law, Parliament naturally is not always right in fact. Nor, equally, is the public: although the Gallup poll shows that 68 per cent of Canadians want the noose back, the judicial record shows that very few Canadians, ever, have been willing as jurists to place a noose around a particular person's neck.

Nor, lastly, is Lang's indiscretion the issue. Lang is a political innocent, despite, and indeed as a consequence of, his blinkered obstinacy. As a politician, Lang of course ought not to have talked out loud. As an individual, though, his convictions run deep.

"I have been turning it over in my mind for a long time," Lang told me in an interview. "Many people in many parts of the country whose opinions I respect have told me, and have persuaded me, that the public's conviction that it's opinions have been ignored, rather than the fact of the abolition of capital punishment itself, is creating a disrespect for the law."

A referendum, Lang argues, will "clear the air, by getting the public directly involved in the debate which it was not in 1976."

Lang may be right, or he may be wrong. Unquestionably he is naive. The only point that matters is that Lang has held these views since last spring, and has discussed them with cabinet colleagues. In appointing Lang as Justice Minister, Trudeau thus deliberately chose the one lawyer among the seven available in the cabinet whom he knew advocated a referendum on capital punishment.

The real issue therefore is political cynicism. That is, whether any limits to political cynicism do, and should, exist.

If those limits still exist, I cannot find them. Last spring, Trudeau promised that he had no plans whatever to hold a referendum on capital punishment. In October, 1977, after announcing he would bring down legislation to allow referendums to be held on constitutional issues, Trudeau promised that the legislation would not be used, "to solve problems and the House of Commons or the government finds too hot to handle . . . (but) to permit us to deal with constitutional questions and with questions of national unity".

Yesterday's promises are today's tiresome little obstacles to political advantage.

It's happened before, of course. Indeed, looking back, it's hard to find any promises that ever were kept. The same prime minister who told Canadians, "Zap, you're frozen", zapped them with wage and price controls. The same Prime Minister who promised, "the new politics", last spring, in advance of a planned election, robbed the opposition of half a dozen of its best MPs by turning them into senators, judges, tenured civil servants. The same prime minister who in 1975 promised to impose "rigorous restraint" upon his spending, could, last month, in an instant find $3.5 billion worth of unrestrained spending.

A Hollow King

You can add your own examples to this list. Among them, though, capital punishment is unique. It is a moral issue. To their opinions, retentionists as much as abolitionists, bring a moral commitment. By abandoning his personal moral commitment to abolition, once so eloquently and so passionately expressed, for the sake of currying favor with the 80 per cent of Canadians who favour a referendum, Trudeau has abandoned his own last personal limit to cynicism.

Once, Trudeau presented himself to Canadians as a philosopher-king. Today, Trudeau as a philosopher is shabby, and as a king, he is hollow.

Guzzler's Cheaper

I own an old, over-powered, gas-guzzling, space-hogging station wagon. Yet I can drive it anywhere in the area served by the local B.C. Hydro bus system for less than 50 cents. I am on a very limited income and have a family. Despite my belief in energy conservation and public transit, I can no longer afford to take the bus, particularly when another member of my family is along.

I'm reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the only people who need our bus system as it is now are those who can't drive or who can't afford the initial investment in an automobile. The latter group in particular can ill afford 50 cents for a two- or three-mile ride.

I guess walking is the only answer. With so many of us unemployed, we can't really complain about how time-consuming it is. Obviously our time isn't worth anything. Bicycles? Well, not everyone is fortunate enough to live near our token bike route or brave enough to negotiate the traffic around town. — Richard Todd, Victoria.

It Is Immoral

Not long ago I read a news item in the Times about an infant that was starved to death in a Richmond hospital (MD Faces Murder Charge?, Aug. 15).

Capital punishment was abolished in this country years ago and even before capital punishment was abolished it took a jury of 12 people to decide one's innocence or guilt. If the Canadian society has declined to such an extent that one man can condemn and kill another human being and it is questioned what kind or whether any charges should be laid against him then lynch mobs or the Ku Klux Klan would be a considerable improvement on law and society. They at least had more than one man as judge, and hangman in order to take a human life.

If abortions have devalued an infant's life to such an extent that parents and members of the medical profession can stand by and watch a baby starve to death, I can see in the future large incinerators built for disposing of unwanted human beings in our society such as infants, elderly, mentally retarded, crippled or diseased and perhaps some day you or I won't be wanted either.

Whether you are an atheist and believe in a just society or you are God-fearing, there can be nothing gained by killing for very soon any reason for killing can be justified in the assumption that it will help someone else and therefore be justified in the eyes of the law. — Mrs. M. MacDougall, 1071 McBriar Avenue.

Royal Engineers

The B.C. Commemorative Royal Engineer Company Society was formed in June, 1978 to commemorate the contribution made by the Royal Engineers to the Crown colony of British Columbia during the years 1858-63. There are many such commemorative units across Canada providing historical re-enactments and serving as worthy tourist attractions.

One of the initial goals of the society is to form a color party of uniformed sappers drilled and trained in the manner of the 1850s. They will participate in the many special occasions related to B.C. history such as the re-enactment of the opening of the first parliament in Fort Langley, Golden Spike Days in Port Moody, New Westminster's Hyack Festival, Hope Brigade Days, etc.

The society is interested in hearing from descendants of Royal Engineer families, ex-members of the RE and RCE with an interest in the aims of the society and others who can contribute historical anecdotes, artifacts, photographs, etc. Membership in the society is open to all interested persons for five dollars. The society intends to become very active in recording early B.C. history centred around the contributions made by the Royal Engineers. — Lorraine Harris, Research Consultant, Box 206, Port Moody.

Feisty Symphony

This is a letter of thanks from the Victoria symphony board of directors and the Victoria symphony women's committee for the splendid response to their financial appeal at the concerts in Beacon Hill Park and Heritage Court from visitors and residents of our city.

We have suffered from being misquoted by the press, received refusals of financial help from all sources, finally we were told we could collect money at our concerts by obtaining a licence to do so. The response from visitors and residents was marvellous.

We kept a guest book for people to sign and the following is a sampling of some of their remarks:

Quebec — c'est magnifique.
Red Deer, Alberta — Excellent.
Germany — Excellent!
Washington, D.C. — Lovely, as healthy for a day's outing as sunshine.
Northumberland, U.K. — How fortunate you are to have this splendid orchestra.
Tucson, Arizona — Great, great!!
Ottawa — Lovely concert.
Whittier, California — Lovely program.

The guest book is at the symphony office if you want to read more.

To the residents, now is your opportunity to help by buying seasons tickets for the coming concerts.

You responded generously to our collections of money, and our neighbors to the south very, very much so. — Mrs. Enid Webster, President, Victoria Symphony Women's Committee.

PR Man Claims Baby Doc's Now Mature Leader

By KAREN DEYOUNG
The Washington Post

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — At mid-morning, the unblinking Caribbean sun already has nearly blinded the city. From the outside, the white walls of the national palace hit the eyes like a slap.

Inside, tucked into a second-floor corner, the executive office is a dark and frigid cave. The curtains tightly drawn, Haiti's president for life sits at a solid marble desk beneath a picture of his father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier.

It is now more than seven years since Jean-Claude Duvalier, at the tender age of 19, replaced the dead Papa Doc as the most powerful man in this small island nation.

In the interim, he has lost much of the baby fat that was his most distinguishing physical characteristic on taking office. His soft voice, although often barely audible during a recent interview, was self-assured and humorless.

Duvalier has given few interviews since his assumption of the presidency. The Haitian media confine themselves to government handouts and speech reprints, and the foreign media, he said, know that it "pays to emphasize the sensational." By "distorting the reality of Haiti," he said, they "disturb the social and economic development of the country."

"Since our means are rather limited," Duvalier said, "until now we have not made an important effort to counteract" Haiti's world image as an undeveloped backwater ruled by corruption and the whim of the 21-year Duvalier dynasty.

Recently, however, Haiti followed the lead of a number of Latin American countries in hiring a U.S. public relations firm to tell the world, as the agency says in its first publicity handout, that "the story of Haiti today is change."

Central to that change, according to Haitian officials and the public relations specialist, is the transformation of "Baby Doc," as he was originally dubbed by local wags and an amused world, from what one long-time foreign observer here called an "overweight kid with scared eyes and surrounded by protective guns" into a mature leader capable of bringing Haiti into the 20th century.

If anything, however, the spread of local stories about the 26-year-old bachelor president's personal life and political style has increased rather than diminished in recent years. His reported fondness for fast women and fast cars, his million-dollar yacht and his use of the palace courtyard for a motorcycle race track are subjects of endless gossip here — admiring and derisive.

On whirlwind trips through the countryside, it is said, Duvalier sometimes carries a big "macoute" — a knapsack full of money that he tosses to peasants. Haitians who claim to know about such things say his picture adorns voodoo altars in rural villages.

Personally chosen by his dying father as successor, Duvalier was installed by virtue of a constitutional amendment changing the presidential age from 40 to 18, and a national referendum in which 2.4 million Haitians approved him, and none was opposed. Both the question — "does this choice satisfy your aspirations?" — and the single answer — "yes" — were printed on the ballot.

The new young president took over a crippled economy, a starving and illiterate population, and the reins of a family dictatorship considered among the bloodiest and most repressive in this country's turbulent and tragic history.

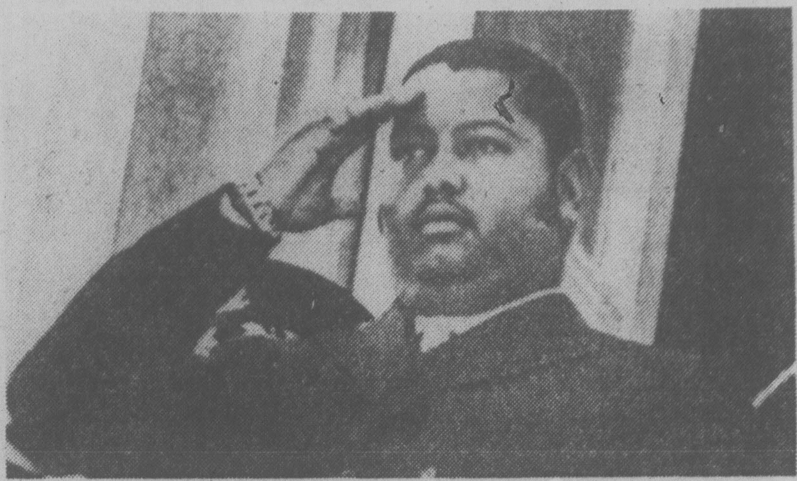
Despite the publicity claims, there has been little visible change since then. Crowded into the mountainous, poorly soiled western third of the Caribbean island of Hispaniola, which it shares with the Dominican Republic, the vast majority of Haiti's 5.5 million people are still among the poorest and least educated in the world.

While things are noticeably less bloody and arbitrary under Papa Doc's son, the reins of repression are still tightly held and dissent is only minimally tolerated. The country is still an economic shambles, with foreign aid now providing approximately 65 per cent of its development budget.

While speculation continues about him and his role in the government, many observers here agree that Baby Doc, at least in some ways, has grown up.

And he bristled at the suggestion, offered by many Haitians, that his mother Simone and a group of powerful old-guard Duvalierists popularly known as "the dinosaurs" rule him with an iron hand.

"The president of the republic has absolute control of his administration," he said.



Jean-Claude Duvalier in 1971; he's losing his baby fat

Duvalier said he considers development Haiti's highest priority. With an estimated 80 per cent illiteracy, one of the world's highest infant mortality rates, severe overpopulation, limited capital and even more limited resources, there is no shortage of potential development projects.

The president said he plans to attack all of them with the help of foreign aid that has, according to UN figures, increased more than 800 per cent over the past four years. Haiti's combined development and operations budget totals $257 million for 1978 and projected aid for the next three years is $600 million.

But nearly half the government's internal revenues are unbudgeted and deposited into what one foreign aid official called an unaudited "presidential slush fund."

While Duvalier said fiscal change may be coming, he made it clear that political change was not. Describing himself as "a good pupil of the late Dr. Duvalier," the president said he had no plans to diminish the strength or power of the National Security Volunteers, the thousands-strong civilian militia previously known as the Tontons Macoutes, that formed his father's personal security force and ruled the countryside through terror.

While the militia still exists in greater numbers than ever, it has cleaned up its image somewhat.

The government claims that its last political prisoner was released in a general amnesty last year.

Last month, Duvalier hosted a visit here by the Inter-American Human Rights Commission. The president has personally guaranteed that there will be no reprisals against those who showed up to tell the commission of rights abuses.

Two opposition newspapers openly began publishing last year for the first time under the Duvaliers, but their success has been mixed. While one continues in operation, the second closed last December after its publisher received a near-fatal midnight beating at the hands of the militia.

Although he is installed in his own job for life, Duvalier said elections for Haiti's unicameral legislature will be held "early next year," for the first time since 1971.

Entrapment: Police Using Human Bait

By JOSEPH ARVAY

Entrapment: Something we do to animals? That would be bad enough. But documented in our law reports (and in our newspapers) are situations in which Canadian police forces entrap people — luring, inducing, persuading a normally law-abiding person to commit a crime and then charging him with commission of that crime. Various baits are used:

— Undercover agents pose as strung-out dope addicts pleading for a fix. The target, unable to resist this appeal to sympathy, supplies the agent with drugs.

— A cop working undercover forms a friendship with a suspect, then plays on that friendship to coerce him to participate in a robbery.

— Promises of money tempt a susceptible boy to engage in an illegal homosexual act or persuade a girl, attempting to go straight, to turn one more trick.

— Supplying a person with drugs and then charging him with possession or trafficking. A frame-up by any other description.

No legitimate state purpose is served by these tactics. The role of the police is to prevent or detect crime, not manufacturer it. Police argue that for consensual crimes involving drugs or sex, such methods are necessary. This is nonsense. Obviously it makes it easier to obtain arrests, but the crime might never have occurred but for the police.

Entrapment tactics are unnecessary to catch the predisposed criminal. All the police have to do is provide the opportunity to commit the crime and he will invariably act on it.

Hence entrapment tactics are only "necessary" to convict the weak, the naive, the impressionable. Playing on greed or taking advantage of friendship to instigate a crime is simply revolting.

Legal Defence Lacking

But such practice will persist and indeed be condoned until an accused is afforded a defence of entrapment. With the exception of a few lower court decisions, there is no such defence in Canada. In a recent case, Kirzner vs. Queen (Dec. 14, 1977, SCC), Chief Justice Bora Laskin did not rule out the possibility of such a defence in the future. But in light of the Supreme Court's prior treatment of civil liberty and abuse of process cases, there is good reason to be pessimistic.

Legislative action is therefore required. The defence should be objective rather than subjective in approach; that is, it should focus on the conduct of the police rather than on the accused's predispositon to commit the crime for which he is charged. Any police conduct that might cause a normally law-abiding person to commit a crime will be prohibited. Appeals to friendship and sympathy, offers of inordinate gain, and supply of contraband should be conclusively regarded as improper.

Critics of the objective approach argue that it may result in acquittal of the guilty. Certainly, if the police engage in improper conduct, a person who would have committed the crime even without the police inducements would be acquitted. But entrapment tactics are unnecessary to catch the hardened criminal. They may be expedient or convenient but not essential. Hence a defence of entrapment will serve those who are only "guilty" of human weakness. Their acquittal can be tolerated — and must be.

If the police place a high value on convictions, an objective approach will discourage improper police conduct. Although not a panacea, a defence of entrapment (together with better police behavior) will help the police engender respect and confidence.

Influence on Juries

A subjective approach that emphasizes the criminal propensities of an accused risks convicting a person not because he actually committed the crime but because he happened to have committed crimes in the past. Psychologists have documented the prejudicial effect past criminal activity of the accused has on jurors.

The defence should be available to an accused who raises a prima facie case of entrapment. The onus should then shift to the Crown to prove beyond a reasonable doubt the propriety of police conduct. This burden of proof is not unduly onerous. Whether a defence of entrapment succeeds will usually depend upon whom the trial judge believes — the accused or the police. It is probably fair to say that most judges regard a police officer as more credible than an accused.

Moreover, since most police action is premediated, the police can take measures — taping conversations, for example — to corroborate the fact that they were not guilty of entrapment. Hence imposing the burden of proof on the Crown simply reflects the reality of the advantageous position of the police and attempts to offset it by giving the accused benefit of a reasonable doubt.

Legislation by Parliament is probably more necessary now than in any other time in our history. The recent revelations of the sordid tactics of the RCMP to "get their man" by any means, however illegal, raises the spectre of an emerging police state.

Our legislators must now reconfirm their commitment to the rule of law and due process of law. Otherwise, some people might begin to believe that these principles are irrelevant in a modern society.

Well, ARE British Always On Strike?

By DAN van der VAT
Times of London

The two industrial disputes at Birmingham and Bathgate which have cast another serious doubt over British Leyland's future will only confirm the belief of a legion of observers at home and abroad that "the British are always on strike."

BL's latest industrial relations disaster is a classic case. The British are on strike again. It is British Leyland again. It is the toolmakers (in one case) again. It is unofficial again. It is about pay parity again.

The word "strike," its derivatives and its synonyms once more dominate the headlines. There could hardly be a better time to consider whether Britain deserves its reputation.

The seeker after truth who sets out to find an explanation for the British strike syndrome, if such it is, faces an extraordinarily nebulous assignment. Generalizations abound but patterns are all but impossible to discern. It soon becomes clear that there are lies, damned lies, statistics and strike figures. Theories are more plentiful than facts, and the most consistent and easily identified sound to be heard is the muffled beat of logic being chopped. There is a case (albeit not a strong one) for saying that a layman interested in looking for reason in British industrial relations would be well advised to find something more constructive to occupy his time . . . .

The first conclusion the undaunted observer is obliged to reach is that the British are obsessed by strikes, rather as the West Germans are obsessed by inflation. One of the great British folk-memories of this century is the General Strike of 1926, perhaps because it happened only nine years after the Russian Revolution. The workers involved in it amounted to only about one-seventh of the number of French strikers who brought their country to a standstill for weeks in the summer of 1968 — but the French are not obsessed by strikes . . . .

Rightly or wrongly, but certainly faithfully reflecting the level of public interest, British newspapers, radio and television devote enormous amounts of space and time to strikes . . . .

A close study of figures over a period of years does permit one clear conclusion: That the British, when it comes to strikes, have nothing to boast about but also are nothing like as bad as they (and many foreigners) like to think.

Insofar as our reputation for striking is undeserved — because it is at variance with the facts — it can only be our own fault. Even in a bad year for strikes, we lose rather more working days through industrial accidents, 10 to 20 times more through sickness and 20 to 40 times more through that great unsung curse on industry, absenteeism. There is no ground for complacency in these comparisons, however, because they overlook the uniquely disruptive effect of strikes, which the extreme examples at British Leyland show.

While it is difficult (if not impossible) and dangerous to generalize about strikes, they are invariably based on a grievance which is real to the strikers and invariably occur after a breakdown in communication between management and workers. They are almost always local, small and of short duration and, despite all the publicity, they usually come as a shock to both sides. Pay is the usual visible issue, but there is overwhelming evidence that the British worker attaches more importance to the way he is treated than to his pay. Boredom, lack of consultation, unfair dismissal, fear of redundancy and even of change, bad working conditions, outmoded union organization, managerial remoteness in large companies and government policy are all far more important than is usually admitted.

They are also far more important as causes of strikes than agitation and bloody mindedness which, though they exist, are nothing like as common as many people would like to think. Fast and flexible response at the workplace based on good communications is widely held to be the only answer to disputes.

Striking is not the British disease, but only a symptom. Low productivity and low investment constitute the real bane of British industry.

Lack of Oxygen Blamed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Thursday that a woman admitted to Vancouver General Hospital for the removal of bunions from her toes died from an apparent lack of oxygen while under general anesthetic in preparation for the operation.

The six-member jury deliberated for two hours Thursday before deciding that Clarice Gertrude Gelblum, 57, of Vancouver died an unnatural death after receiving an insufficient oxygen supply for 20 minutes.

The jury recommended that in future, a qualified assistant be on hand to ensure that a plastic tube meant to carry oxygen directly to the lungs while a patient is under anesthesia is properly in place before a patient is moved into the operating room.

In testimony Wednesday, the inquest was told that 20 minutes after Mrs. Gelblum first displayed a critically-slow pulse rate, a plastic oxygen tube was checked and found to be in the throat passage leading to the stomach rather than to the lungs.

The jury heard evidence from a number of doctors that the tube carrying oxygen could have been dislodged during closed-chest heart massage — a pressing on the chest that can depress the chest cavity up to five centimetres — that followed the discovery of the greatly-reduced heart beat.

But in its findings, the jury ruled the oxygen deficiency commenced when the tube was first inserted.

Anesthetist Dr. Paul Darimont testified that he had originally inserted the tube and after watching the chest cavity expand and listening with a stethoscope for the sound of air moving in and out of the lungs, was satisfied the tube had been properly placed. He also said the feeling of a bag, which he squeezed to push the oxygen into Mrs. Gelblum's lungs, indicated the oxygen was moving into the lungs.

Arlene Pitt, a nurse who assisted in the preparation of Mrs. Gelblum for the operation, testified Thursday that the woman was "a little nervous" just before the anesthesia commenced.

"She was a little apprehensive about the needles, as a lot of our patients are, but I reassured her that Dr. Darimont was very good," she said.

Road Report Backs Fed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial environment ministry report on the Omineca mining road in north-central British Columbia recommends against constructing the road further north.

The road project, which has been extended by mines ministry personel north of Fort St. James to Moose Valley at a cost of $4.2 million, has been severely criticized by the B.C. Wildlife Federation which says the extension was built at an "incalculable cost to the environment."

The report supports federation charges that environment damage has taken place.

"We're saying the same things other government agencies have said before," said Mark Walmsley, head of the resource analysis branch's soils planning division. "This road has very serious environmental consequences."

"Aside from the damage to the landscape, which is an engineering problem, the most serious impact is the access the road provides to virgin wilderness," said Walmsley. "It leaves the Spatsizi Wilderness Park wide open."

Federation spokesman Les Storey, who has pressed the mines department to abandon its road-building operation said "it's obvious mines was in too much of a hurry to wait for the environmental recommendations and these are the consequences."

Drug Arrests

MONTREAL (CP) — The purchase of $10,000-worth of mescaline on a street corner by an undercover police officer led to the arrest Thursday of three men and three women.

Bottler Loses LRB Bid

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The B.C. Labor Relations Board rejected Wednesday an application by Goodwill Bottling North Ltd. to have a strike by 18 employees declared illegal.

In its decision the board stated that meetings between the company and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union prior to the start of the strike June 20 were bargaining sessions and therefore the strike is legal.

The board also ruled that pickets could remain at the company's Victoria plant.

The union called the strike to back up contract demands which include a call for wage parity with employees of Nechako Beverage, bottlers of Pepsi Cola products. Goodwill bottles Coca-Cola products.

Nechako employees earn up to $1.45 an hour more than Goodwill employees. Base rates were unavailable.

IJC Excedes Mandate, B.C., Wash. Agree

OSOYOOS (CP) — The International Joint Commission has no authority to rule on minimum lake levels on Osoyoos Lake or the Okanagan River near here , B.C. and Washington state officials said Wednesday.

The commission, which is seeking to establish a minimum level for Osoyoos Lake, convened the hearings because of growing concern over the deteriated condition of the Zosel Dam.

The challenge came after the commission attempted to establish minimum and maximum levels for the lake and control or replacement of the dam near Oroville, Wash.

It also wants to establish water quality standards.

No Blocks From Mair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Penthouse Cabaret, shut down for the past three years, will have no trouble getting a liquor licence, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Thursday.

After Wednesday's vote by city council to restore on a probationary basis the business licence to Celebrity Enterprises Ltd., Mair said there appears to be no reason the cabaret wouldn't be eligible for a liquor licence.

"They are in the same position as anybody else," Mair said. "They can apply for a licence and they can appeal if they are refused, but there will be no bureaucratic roadblocks.

"They will have the same rules and regulations and the same rights as anybody else."

The cabaret was refused renewal of its liquor licence in December, 1975 and later its proprietors were charged and convicted in county court with living off the avails of prostitution.

The conviction was subsequently overturned by the British Columbia Court of Appeal and a move by the Crown to appeal that decision was quashed by Canada Supreme Court.

City council voted Wednesday to restore the business licence until Jan. 1 when it will be reviewed. The cabaret also must find an independent manager.

Owner Joe Phillipone said Wednesday he hopes to open within two weeks and hopes the police will help to control prostitutes.

A spokesman for the vice section of the police department said Thursday police have "no special program in the works" for the Penthouse.

OFFICER ON RAMPAGE OVER GIRL

VANDERHOOF (CP) — An RCMP officer shot and killed another man, then committed suicide, because a girl he formally dated was seeing the man, it was learned at a coroner's inquiry in this north-central British Columbia community.

Vanderhoof coroner Eric Turner ruled the death of Const. Vern Orville McAtear, 23, was unnatural and suicide.

Cement Strike

DELTA (CP) — About 80 employees of Inland Cement Co. in this suburb south of Vancouver went on strike Thursday for higher wages.

Alan Watt, general manager of the company, said the workers are seeking about a 40-per-cent increase in wages in a contract that would expire in October, 1980.

Advertising by Lawyers 'Lessening of Standards'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mary Southin, treasurer of the British Columbia Law Society, has come out strongly against a system of informational advertising for lawyers in B.C.

In a memorandum sent to society members a month before B.C. lawyers are to decide in a referendum if they should be allowed to advertise, Southin expresses concern that "some members of the profession have been carried away by the latest fashion."

"Advertising might result in fee cutting to the extent — especially in view of our high overheads — that there will be a lessening of standards," she says.

"I ask rhetorically: Would you want to travel on an airline which cuts its fares to the extent it cannot afford enough qualified mechanics and pilots?"

The referendum, to be mailed to society members at the end of this month, contains a set of recommendations forwarded last May by a special committee on advertising headed by Vancouver lawyer Allan McEachern.

McEachern's report already has been sent to B.C. lawyers with an accompanying note that the benchers of the society, in a meeting last May, deleted the committee's proposal regarding the personal advertising of fees.

If passed, the referendum would permit lawyers to advertise in print "provided the content of the advertisement is factual, informational and not promotional, misleading or deceptive."

It also would permit publication of a fee brochure explaining the billing practices of lawyers and the formation of a committee to research methods of low-cost legal services, including the use of clinics, to low income people.

All personal advertisements, however, would include only:

—the name of the lawyer, law firm, its partners and associates;

—address, telephone number and office hours;

—languages spoken by members;

—date of call and admission to the Law Society of B.C. and membership in the bars of other provinces;

—degrees or graduate status from a recognized university;

—any restriction on the extent of the lawyer's or firm's practice or a statement that the lawyer is in general practice.

"None of the proposals will ensure that the public gets a lawyer of a sufficiently high standard," Southin said.

COURSE CUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia senate approved a plan Wednesday to set up an experimental four-year engineering program as an alternative to its current five-year program.

The program, which will begin next September if it gets approval.

Trespassing Biker Wins Shooting Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Penticton motorcyclist who was shot in the head by the manager of a rifle range after he entered a fenced area was awarded $8,361 damages Thursday in B.C. Supreme Court.

James Leslie Rheaume, a 21-year-old student who still carries the bullet in his head, was given the damages against Phillip John Gowland, resident manager of the Penticton Fish, Game and Rifle Club's premises. Gowland admitted firing a .22-calibre rifle in the direction of Rheaume after Rheaume and three other motorcyclists entered the club's fenced property.

Court was told the motorcyclists went past danger warning signs at the entrance to the range, did not obtain permission, and were proceeding past the manager's premises on their way along an old but closed road when Gowland fired warning shots.

Gowland admitted liability but contended Rheaume was partly responsible for what happened.

Madam Justice Patricia Proudfoot held that Rheaume was a trespasser and foolishly exposed himself to the risk of travelling through an active rifle range but was not negligent in regard to the shot that was fired by Gowland.

"Considering that he was shot in the head, his injuries were extraordinary light," said Justice Proudfoot.

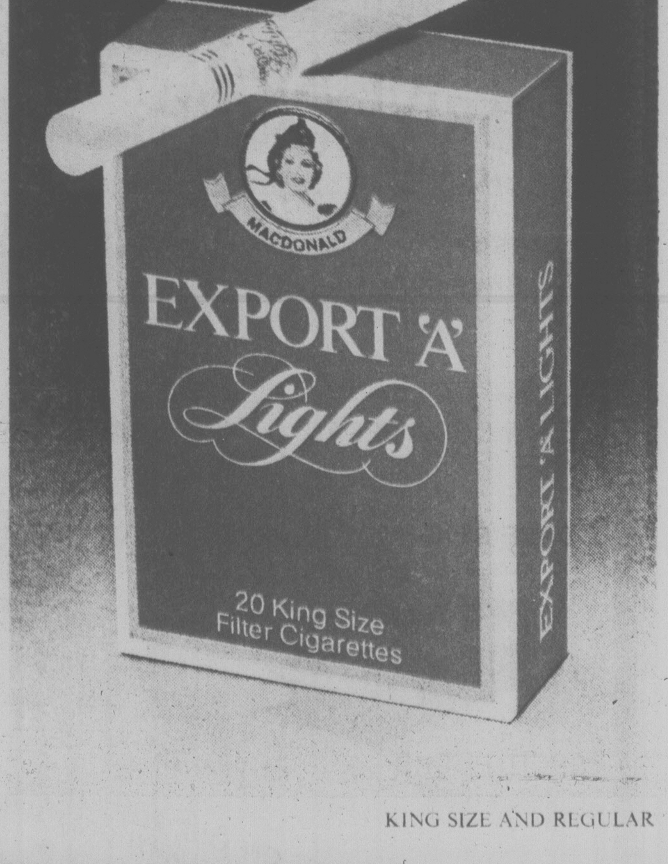
Remarkable Taste Achievement

"Gentled Tobacco" reaches a new smoking plateau where lightness actually improves flavour.



The age of taste without harshness is here. Fine, full-flavoured tobaccos, gentled and blended as never before, give Export 'A' Lights flavour-and-lightness levels never thought possible in one cigarette.

With the development of this breakthrough cigarette, the long-standing belief that harshness must accompany full taste has been shattered.

Until Export 'A' Lights you had to make a choice between flavour and lightness. Now both are yours in one cigarette. Full flavour with a light smoke.

It's the one cigarette that's just right.

Teacher Threats Keep School Closed

FORT WARE (CP) — Threats of violence against at least one teacher has meant the Indian school in this north central British Columbia community has not yet opened for the school term, a spokesman for the department of Indian and northern affairs said Thursday.

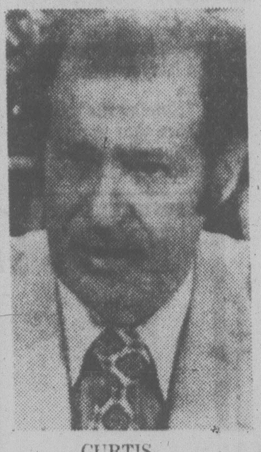
Doug McKay, B.C. personnel director, said in a telephone interview from Vancouver that Sister Simone Sebastian, one of three teachers at the school, now is in Prince George and has asked for a leave of absence.

"A teacher was threatened with violence by someone on the (Indian) reserve but I don't know about any damage to the school," said McKay.

RCMP at Mackenzie, 100 kilometres south of here, said no charges have been laid in the incident. "Unless somebody is willing to testify on it, there's nothing we can do about it," said a police spokesman.

Meanwhile, Jim Van Somer, who runs the local trading post, said that construction on the school was still underway last week, which provoked Indian parents to keep their children home because they felt it was unsafe.

Curtis Raps Ottawa's Move to Sell Landbanks



CURTIS
. . . confused

A unilateral federal decision to sell federal-provincial landbanks is unacceptable to B.C., says Housing Minister Hugh Curtis.

Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Tuesday he plans to talk to provincial housing ministers about selling the landbanks, put together in recent years to keep house prices down, because a study showed they failed to moderate prices.

Curtis said the announcement was news to him, and was not raised when he talked to Ouellet on Monday.

"I'm confused by Ouellet's ideas that come very frequently and show Ottawa's confusion."

Jim Campbell, chairman of the Capital Regional District, said one thing often overlooked is that landbanking allows orderly development to take place in such places as the Highlands.

He said land-banking has proven successful in other places and cited Saskatoon as an example.

Campbell said land-banking creates land for the public at a price which is quite competitive with land that belongs to the real estate industry and developers.

Ouellet told a meeting of the Association of Ontario Housing Authorities that the termination of a federal program of loans to provinces and municipalities announced last week was in accord with the findings of the study group, headed by Toronto lawyer David Greenspan.

The Greenspan report, completed at a cost of about $525,000 — up from the $350,000 original estimate — concluded that during the boom, large-scale government assemblies had no moderating effect on house prices.

"House price increases in six urban areas were not significantly different than the house price increases in all 25 urban areas we studied," the report said.

Greenspan told a news conference that governments should sell off their land banks to the private sector and that the profits realized should be passed along to the municipalities.

This would alleviate some municipal financial problems and they could then afford to become less restrictive in their land-servicing and zoning regulations which, Greenspan said, threaten to push up prices over the next few years.

SURVIVORS SUE PILOTS, AIRWEST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men who were aboard an Air-West Airlines Twin Otter which crashed in September of 1976 near Bella Coola, have launched damage suits against the airline and two of its pilots.

In a writ filed Thursday in British Columbia Supreme Court in Vancouver, Fred Andrew of Burnaby, and Jonathan Truebe of Mirro Lake, N.H. Hampshire, claim negligence in the operation of the plane.

Eighteen passengers were on the ill-fated AirWest plane when it crashed 400 kilometres north of here. One man died in the crash.

Cabinet Blamed For B.C. Hydro

The Sierra Club has charged the provincial cabinet as a whole lacks competence to correct disastrous B.C. Hydro policies.

Managing director Bob Nixon cited as an example a report that the provincial government is not seriously negotiating with U.S. authorities over Seattle City Power and Light plans to flood the Skagit Valley.

He warned that without forceful control, Hydro will pursue self-serving, grandiose and financially irresponsible schemes which will eventually bankrupt the province.

While Hydro is a major impediment towards developing a sane energy policy for the future, he said the club lays the real blame on the provincial cabinet for letting Hydro dictate provincial policy on energy development.

The club has asked the government to initiate legislative action to return the Crown utility to its intended role of public servant rather than public controller, he said.

"Half measures such as the creation of a legislative committee on Crown corporations must be viewed as a whitewash and sell-out to the special interests with the Hydro bureaucracy," he said.

Dr. Don Kramer measures unusual catch off Port Renfrew.

TROPICAL GIANT NETTED IN STRAIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A giant tropical sunfish, weighing 384 kilograms, has been caught off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"I've seen them while fishin' for tuna off of California but never up here," said commercial salmon fisherman Merv Campbell as he showed off his catch Wednesday.

But Dr. N. J. Wilimovsky, curator of the fish collection at the University of British Columbia Animal Resource Ecology Centre, said the sunfish is found in temperate and sub-tropical waters throughout the world.

However, the fish is not often found in fish collections because of its size, said Wilimovsky.

Campbell, captain of the 22-metre seiner Ocean Star, said the fish was caught in the ship's 300-fathom net Tuesday about six kilometres off Port Renfrew.

"It just laid like dead weight, you know . . . it didn't do much flippin'," said Campbell.

"We couldn't get it out of the net. We had to use an axe."

Vancouver Aquarium biologist Stefani Hewlett said a copy of the fish will be made if the aquarium decides its condition is good enough.

She said sunfish are caught occasionally in B.C. waters but they are seldom as big.

Epilepsy Operation Argued

VANCOUVER (CP) — A controversial brain operation to control epileptic fits has caused arguments among delegates attending a session of the Epilepsy International Symposium being held here this week.

Dr. I. S. Cooper of the New York Medical College and Dr. Adrain Upton of McMaster University in Hamilton, argued that the implant of an electrode in the cerebellum has produced good results in 20 of 36 severely afflicted epileptics.

But papers submitted by two Seattle physicians—Dr. G. A. Ojemann and Dr. Joan Lockard who experimented with the device on epileptic monkeys—reported mixed or negative results.

Cooper said the other surgeons had abused the technique by using it in unsuitable patients and turning the current too high.

His technique involves implanting an electrode in the cerebellum with a wire running from the electrode to an antenna lying under the scalp.

Cooper said the patient carries a box which sends electric signals to another antenna just above the scalp. The signals, picked up by the first antenna, are picked up by and seem to stimulate the cerebellum, which sends out signals that inhibit wild electrical activity in the rest of the brain, he said.

Some of those on which the technique was used suffered between 100 and 200 convulsions a day.

Teachers Won't Work

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A month-long labor dispute at Cariboo College escalated Thursday when the faculty association voted to withhold their services beginning Monday if the college and locked-out non-teaching employees do not agree by then to seek arbitration.

Classes at the community college were cancelled Thursday as association members met to decide whether to cross a picket line set up by the locked-out workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Dave Reiter, association president, said that if faculty members withdraw their services next week, they will continue to cross the picket line but will hold study sessions inside the college instead of teaching classes.

The faculty voted 90 to 14 in favor of the action, he said.

Reiter said 40 vocational instructors, members of various trade unions, feared they would be blacklisted by the B.C. Federation of Labor if they continued to cross picket lines to attend classes.

CUPE members were locked out Aug. 18 by the college and have set up picket lines in a dispute over contract negotiations.

Don Murray, college council chairman, said Thursday that the college may close until January if teachers refuse to cross the lines.

Bill Ferguson, business agent for CUPE local 300, said Thursday that the college has hired non-union janitorial and toolroom staff to replace the locked-out workers.

Ferguson said he has asked the college to guarantee there would be no reprisals against the teachers.

The contract between the faculty association and the college doesn't contain a clause relating to crossing picket lines.

Non-credit night school courses for about 1,000 persons ended earlier this week when the Kamloops school board voted not to allow the college to use any of its schools while the lockout continued.

'Model' Community Sours

PORT MOODY (CP) — A massive development envisioned as a "model community" at the outset has turned into a financial nightmare for this Vancouver suburb.

Already close to $4 million in debt on the project, city council decided Wednesday to stop all major capital expenditures on the 1,100-acre north shore development until the city can straighten out its financing.

Council will attempt to negotiate a better pro-rata deal with the provincial government from whom it borrowed the money, to ward off a projected debt of more than $10 million if the project is completed and the city doesn't take in any more revenue from it.

At a special meeting Wednesday night, council reacted swiftly to a consultant's report which forecasts doom and further debt unless specific recommendations were immediately followed.

Charles Stan Allington, a former vice-president with Daon Development Corp., read council the report which emphasized that a total lack of financial management had created a debt burden the city must now face.

The recommendations included hiring a professional management team, studying cost-cutting and control and making the project profit-oriented.

The city started the development on the north shore of Burrard Inlet in 1972 in what was considered a good economic climate. Council hired a firm to oversee the project, but did not state in agreements, said Allington, that accounting was one of its duties.

The major pitfall in the project, Allington said, was the total lack of cash-flow accounting.

The costs of the development have risen from $8,000 per acre originally to a current estimate of $22,600 per acre.

The city had hoped to regain its expenditures through lot sales, but sales have not been as fast as originally anticipated and the project has overruns of $804,000, Allington said.

Allington said he could see no evidence of the managing firm of Underwood, McLellan and Associates taking into account the changing market and economic conditions over the development period.

Mayor Ian Young said there has never been an in-depth financial review until this year and the result speaks for itself.

Young said he hopes to meet next week with Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to discuss a new pro rata agreement.

The mayor said that to lessen the financial impact to the city, council must collect charges at the new $22,600-per-acre rate.

To date, Young said, the city has spent about $7 million on the development initially expected to take 10 years to complete.

Port Moody currently owes the provincial government about $3.1 million in loan debt, he said, and expects to suffer a further deficit of about $1 million this year, based on a shortfall of revenues against expenditures.

It was originally estimated that the development would increase Port Moody's population from about 13,000 to about 30,000.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Profit-taking in mining issues and a six-point decline at New York sent the Toronto stock market moderately lower in active mid-session trading.

Patino N. V. was up ⅜ to $19⅜ a share on the sale of 1,000 shares after falling back from a new high of $20 following its opening resumption. The company has announced that Preussag A. G. has acquired its 53-per-cent interest in Amalgamated Metal Corp. Ltd.

Ashland Oil Inc. was untraded, while its subsidiary, Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. slipped ⅛ to $32⅛ on 1,000 shares following the parent company's resumption. The United States integrated oil firm reported it will purchase up to five million of its own shares at $47 a share on completion of the sale of its Canadian subsidiary to Kaiser Resources Ltd.

Kaiser rose ⅛ to $15⅝ on 7,250 shares. Ashland Oil Inc. last traded at $25⅜ a share.

Among other issues, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas eased 1 to $43, Home Oil A ⅞ to $41, Pacific Petroleums ¾ to $38¼, Imperial Oil A ⅜ to $23⅛ and Seagram Co. ⅜ to $31.

Dome Petroleum reversed an earlier decline to rise 2¾ to $98½ on 18,290 shares. Hornet and Pitfield Foods climbed 2 to $14, Husky Oil 1⅞ to $44⅝, Travelways 1¼ to $13¼ and S. B. McLauchlin Associates 1¼ to $10.

McIntyre Mines fell ½ to $27, Cyprus Anvil Mining ½ to $9 and Preston Mines ¼ to $19⅝.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted another broad loss against a background of inflation and interest rate worries and continuing heavy speculation in the gambling issues.

Analysts said concern over inflation was aggravated by the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a $4.7 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

Many economists consider rapid monetary growth the primary reason for the country's high inflation rate. The Federal Reserve has been tightening credit in an effort to restrain the money supply's expansion, and that has led to higher interest rates.

Most of the country's major banks raised their prime lending rates from 9¼ to 9½ per cent, the highest level for the basic charge on blue chip loans in 3½ years.

NYSE volume came to 25.98 million shares at mid-afternoon.

London

Leading equities declined, while gold stocks firmed.

VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were mixed in active trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

In the industrials, Athabasca Columbia Resources was down .15 at $2.75 on 11,000 shares and Hal Roach Studios was unchanged at $2.30 on 5,600. Computrex Centres was down .01 at .21 on 5,000 and Block Bros. Industries was unchanged at $9 on 3,740. Canadian Javelin was up .10 at $1.70 and Grouse Mountain was up .04 at .84.

Merger Benefits Listed

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — R. T. Eyton, president of Pacific Western Airlines, says merging Transair Ltd. of Winnipeg with his airline will greatly improve northern air service.

Eyton said without the merger, Transair would have had to cut its northern service, because its passenger load had dropped by 25 per cent in the first since months of 1978.

He said Transair's passenger load was 40,000, well short of the projected 54,000, resulting in a net loss of $464,000, compared with a $105,000 profit for the first six months of 1977.

Eyton said the passenger load declined because of a slowdown in mining activity and northern hydro construction, combined with a drop in the number of American tourists.

GRAND OPENING

Come Celebrate a Victoria First!

Yesterday we were City Savings & Trust. Today we're the same company—stronger than ever, still 100% Canadian—but now with a new first name: First City Trust.

But that's only part of the news. Because now we're in our beautiful new Victoria office, where we're putting even more emphasis on service. Result? A gala Grand Opening, promising pleasant surprises for you, including our unique photo murals of historic Victoria.

Free refreshments! Coffee or tea—served with delicious fresh-baked croissants or crumpets. Four valuable grand antique prizes! Sony radios for new depositors. A personal tour of our handsome new quarters and more. These are just some of the highlights of our opening celebration. You'll also have a chance to meet new Western friends—like Savings Manager, Nick Melber, and Assistant Manager, Vern McDougall.

Nick Melber
Savings Manager

Vern McDougall
Assistant Manager

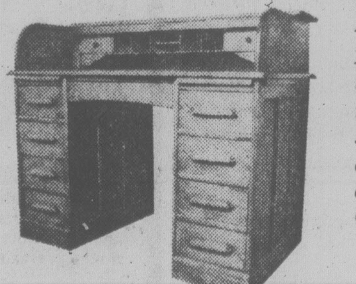
*Perhaps best of all, you'll learn about the earning power of money deposited with us—7½% interest on regular savings; 9¾% interest on GIC's.

And, if you have a special dream, you'll discover how easily financing from First City Trust can make it real.

The Grand Opening of First City Trust—weekdays, September 14th through September 27th, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Won't you please attend? It will put us on a first-name basis.

Four Grand Prize Drawings!

Four valuable, authenticated antiques! Enjoy unlimited chances to win, deposit an entry form with every visit until September 27th.



First Prize!

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Thomas W. Sanborn, of Boulder, Colo., who will be deported after he serves his sentence, was jailed two days after pleading guilty in provincial court Thursday to stealing a 23-foot catamaran Aug. 31.

It was "just a crazy idea," the accused told the court.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Sanborn took the vessel Kuka and sailed around the Inner Harbor.

He said Sanborn, 26, slept on board for three or four days but did no damage.

Laughton also said Sanborn entered Canada illegally and had been ordered deported by immigration officials.

Noting that immigration authorities will probably escort him out of the country at the first opportunity and that Sanborn had already spent 12 days in custody, Judge Harold Alder handed out the light sentence.

A 19-year-old caught on the roof of a Saanich home at 2:20 in the morning was given a seven-day jail sentence.

Peter Galitzine, 1252 Oscar, who told police he was "taking a look at the construction and design of the house," pleaded guilty to prowling by night.

Laughton said the residents of 3500 Mayfair Drive called Saanich police Aug. 26 after hearing noises on the roof.

A holidaying U.S. policeman caught the fleeing youth and held him until city police arrived.

When asked by police where he got the wine, valued at $55.80, Maybee said he found it sitting on the sidewalk.

Maybee said he had arrived in Victoria two hours earlier and was "really drunk."

Fined for drinking-driving were: Jean Pyke, 51, of 10507 Allbay, $400; Gordon David Cameron, 24, of 3559 Elliston, $400; William Wallace Robertson, 56, of 2639 Fifth, $400; Harbans Singh Nijjar, 35, of 3258 Alder, $400; Eric Anderson, 28, of 450 Obed, $400; and Allan James Palak, 17, of 1042 Hillside, $50.

In addition, Palak was fined $100 for possession of marijuana, placed on one year's probation, and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

American Jailed, Ordered Deported

A man who brought a stolen truck from Colorado to Colwood was sentenced in Victoria county court Thursday to a year in jail on two charges of possessing stolen goods.

Ronald Rother, alias Joseph Paul Cavalaro, 29, pleaded guilty to having in his possession on May 29 a 1963 Dodge pickup truck, knowing it to have been obtained in the U.S. by an act which in Canada would constitute theft.

He pleaded guilty to a second count of having a VISA credit card belonging to Lee Fairfax Harvey, obtained by a similar act in the U.S.

Police checked Rother when it was noticed the truck he was driving carried a passenger car licence plate, which was found to have been stolen from a car in Surrey.

Judge M.L.T. Drake was told by Crown counsel R.A. Mulligan that Rother was sentenced July 30 to 30 days in jail for that offence.

Investigation showed the truck had been stolen from a small business about May 23 in Colorado. A wallet containing the credit card was stolen about the same time, and for a time, the accused posed as the owner of the card, Mulligan said.

After his arrest police learned the accused had been convicted of auto theft in Florida and sentenced to two years; possession of stolen goods in Kentucky for which he was sentenced to three years, and possession of marijuana in Texas for which he was fined and spent 18 days in jail in default.

The Canadian immigration department has ordered Rother deported following disposition of court proceedings and sentence. Mulligan said Rother does not face charges in the U.S.

Dam Delay Claim 'Public Posturing'

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen labelled ridiculous on Thursday a charge B.C. is not serious in negotiations with Washington over the proposed raising of the Ross Dam and flooding of the Skagit Valley.

Gordon Vickery, superintendent of Seattle City Light, said Wednesday the power company will proceed with plans to raise the dam near the international border because B.C. is not serious about negoitiations concerning the dam.

"The claim is public posturing and it's a ridiculous statement," Nielsen said.

"There wouldn't be any negotiations if B.C. wasn't serious."

Vickery said he had not seen any indication in the meeting he attended or in correspondence that there is a serious effort by Canadians to negotiate.

Meanwhile, Seattle city council Wednesday made provisions in its 1979 capital improvements budget that would enable Seattle City Light to proceed with plans to raise the dam's height.

Seattle Mayor Charles Royer said Canada has been stonewalling in negotiations over the dam with the power company, an action which has prompted the city to go ahead with the project.

Neilsen said, however, that negotiations are continuing in Seattle between provincial officials and city representatives.

B.C. officials and city representatives have met sporadically for several years in an effort to negotiate a settlement of the controversial project, which has been protested by environmental groups.

The City Light plan to add about 35.5 metres to the top of the structure to boost power-generating capacity. The move would flood 5,000 acres of B.C. Skagit Valley, about 160 kilometres east of Vancouver.

Nielsen said Vickery's charge was aimed at Seattle groups opposed to the flooding of the Skagit Valley. There will soon be public hearings held to examine the dam-raising, he said, and the charge was designed to draw public support for the project.

"The comment was for the domestic market — there's a fair amount of opposition to the plan," he said.

Discharge Given Gold River Man

An absolute discharge was ordered in Victoria county court Thursday for a man previously convicted of theft and assault arising from a shoplifting incident last January.

Vratislav Bares, 46, of Gold River, appealed before Judge M.L.T. Drake sentences involving a total of $1,100 in fines imposed by Judge Harold Alder, April 14 in provincial court.

Counsel asked for absolute or conditional discharge on grounds the lower court erred in its view that violence precluded a discharge, and in reasoning that unless discharge is kept to a small number in this district, accused persons could come to expect it.

The appellant was charged after an incident Jan. 5 at The Bay, in which he took a wallet and shoes, went briefly to a washroom and then attempted to leave the premises. One of two security people trying to stop him was pushed and the other suffered a cut from a shoe thrown by Bares, who was then subdued and arrested. He was charged with theft, possession of stolen goods (a charge not proceeded with), and two counts of assault with the intention of preventing arrest or detention.

Court was told Bares had money to pay for goods at the time, but was under a strain because of fatigue and other pressures, and knew what he had done was wrong. Bares sought psychiatric help before the matter came to court and is still in the care of a physician.

12 More Indians To Assist RCMP

B.C. will have a dozen more Indian special constables with the approval of the new positions Thursday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

When those positions are filled, there will be 31 native Indians in RCMP uniforms in the province.

By 1981, there should be a total of 47 Indians providing policing on Indian reserves and in remote areas of the province, Gardom said.

The Indian constables undergo 10 weeks training at RCMP academy in Regina and augment regular RCMP staff by promoting a better understanding of police and the law among native people.

And by the same token they increase the awareness of the native culture among the RCMP.

The Indians are trained in basic skills in the use of small firearms, care and handling of prisoners and investigating techniques.

The annual cost to B.C. will likely average close to $10,000 per constable under the federal-provincial cost sharing formula.

The native special constables do not have to meet the stringent requirements of the regular RCMP, but Gardom said he hopes many will eventually be eligible to join the regular force.

Sexual Bias Study

Women who have encountered sexual bias during psychiatric counselling sessions are being sought by a group of University of Calgary psychologists doing a cross-Canada survey of the problem.

The survey, sponsored by the Canadian Psychological Association, will be compiled into a book to help male and female psychologists understand what is considered ethical and professional treatment of female clients.

The three-member committee is asking women to submit descriptions of their experiences in writing to the University of Calgary.

All responses are confidential and anonymous contributions will also be accepted.

Construction Superintendent Required

The Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing requires a Construction Superintendent to perform the duties of a Clerk of the Works on a contractural basis for a minimum of 4 months located in Prince Rupert, October 1, 1978 to January 30, 1979.

Applicants must have suitable combination of training, knowledge and administrative abilities to handle the job. Minimum 5 years experience as construction superintendent required in the field related to underground services, storm drainage and subdivision work.

Salary negotiable to $2350/month. Office supplied.

STAMPS OCTOBER 20

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office will issue its 1978 Christmas, commemorative stamps Oct. 20, it was announced today.The stamps feature early renaissance paintings from the collection of the National Gallery of Canada.

The 12-cent stamp depicts The Madonna of the Flowering Pea, an early 15th century painting by an anonymous artist.

Durrance Lake Drivers Complain

Members of the Capital Region parks committee will inspect the Durrance Lake area following complaints of sunbathers and cars blocking the road because of the lack of a beach and parking facilities.

Frank Raimondo, assistant engineer, told the committee residents during the summer have to run a gauntlet every time they go along the road.

He said lake visitors used the road as a beach because the lake has no foreshore.

Cars park along the narrow roadway for lack of a parking lot.

The discussion arose out of letters from local ratepayers requesting regional action.

"Many of us have had frequent problems in driving back and forth to our homes past Durrance Lake, encountering large groups of people blocking the road with their sunbathing, visiting, playing frisbee, often accompanied by drinking in public," ratepayer president Verne McConnell said in a letter to the committee.

Raimondo said a 40-car parking lot couuld be built back from the road for $50,000.

But he said residents want a road and parking lot built on the south side of the lake at a cost of $150,000.

Executive director Dennis Young suggested using the land west of the lake by culverting a runoff point, but Raimondo said the area is swampy and such a project would cost about $80,000

Charges Stayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen of 28 fraud and theft charges being heard against financiers Francis Trebell and Robert Dolan in a lengthy B.C. Supreme Court trial were stayed Thursday by the Crown.

The trial will continue with the case today on the basis of the remaining 13 charges.

Trebell, Dolan and Columbia Western Management Ltd., previously known as Yorkshire Financial Corporation Ltd., face counts of theft and alternate counts of fraud in what the Crown said was the temporary conversion of money from certain growth funds.

Rains Lash Louisiana

United Press International

Relentless rains from a storm system that devastated Arkansas and killed 12 people in a lethal march from the Gulf Coast to the Midwest lashed at Louisiana Friday, spawning floods and forcing evacuations.

More than eight inches of rain soaked northeastern Louisiana, washing out roads and bridges, flooding homes, chasing elderly patients from a nursing home and forcing police out of their headquarters.

The Ouachita Parish community of West Monroe was nearly isolated by floods that washed out bridges and lapped into homes and businesses. More than 100 elderly residents of Guest House nursing home were evacuated in National Guard trucks, boats and ambulances and taken to a nearby church hall.

"We've got boats and heavy trucks at the nursing home and a lot of deputies and officers and firemen have boats to get those elderly patients out," a police spokesman said.

Water flooded the first floor of the state police office in West Monroe, forcing troopers to move their operations to a sheriff's office in Rayville.

Other storms spread over southcentral and southwestern Texas,

"GOLDIE HAWN HAS CAPTURED MY HEART. 'Foul Play' is her oyster from start to finish, and she swallows it whole. Never has she looked lovelier, nor has she ever been in a film better suited to her. A deliciously high-spirited romp with the screen's most gifted comedienne in the driver's seat. A real sleeper. The perfect movie escapism to combat heat rash and the heartbreak of psoriasis. Paperwork: $100M Saving

By JIM ROBB
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — How much does it cost the average businessman to fill out the welter of government forms, surveys and reports that inundates him every year?

Treasury Board has set an arbitrary figure of $15.38 per hour.

It has instructed federal departments and agencies to reduce the filling-in time of the paperwork they demand from businesses by a total of 6,500,000 hours in the coming year.

That number of hours, multiplied by the hourly rate of $15.38 works out to $100 million.

And that is the target figure set earlier this year by cabinet for the reduction of the "annual paperburden" on business.

The announcement has been met by sighs of relief from hard-pressed small businesses but the printing and paper industries must be positively jumping for joy.

A recent Trassury Board directive to federal departments and agencies told them to redesign the forms, surveys, questionnaires and miscellaneous paper they send to businesses to make them easier and less time-consuming to fill in. And that means they have to be reprinted.

The directive says that "Treasury Board has decided that the target cuts for departments and agencies should be proportional to the department's share of the overall federal paperburden on business."

Toronto Transit Rolling

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission resumed normal operations today, ending four days of irritation for about 600,000 commuters forced to find alternative transportation.

Commission officials said operations resumed at midnight Thursday night with the regular limited service in the downtown area.

The subway system, as well as the balance of buses and streetcars, began rolling again about 6 a.m. when drivers and other transit workers reported for work, a TTC spokesman said.

A spokesman for Gray Coach Lines Ltd. said the TTC subsidiary serving inter-city routes, mostly in southern Ontario, resumed operations shortly after midnight Thursday night along with GO transit buses operated by Gray Coach.

The 7,000 drivers and other transit workers went on strike Monday and were ordered back to work the Ontario legislature.

Concorde Suspect In N.S. Booms

OTTAWA (CP) — It is suspected that many of the mysterious atmospheric booms that have afflicted Nova Scotians since January are caused by the supersonic Concorde airliner. But there is very little the transport department can do about it, a department spokesman said today.

Neil Standen, chief of the aeronautical technology division, said recording equipment set up for four to six weeks this summer at East Baccaro and Clark's Harbor, N.S., 114 kilometres southeast of Halifax, recorded the sonic signature of an aircraft the size of the Concorde whenever one of the strange booms was heard.

Correlation of data from U.S. radar stations showed the Concorde in the vicinity when the booms were heard.

"One solution would be to move the Concorde's flight path away from the coast, but we have to co-ordinate that with the U.S.," he said. "That would move it into to the U.S. domestic and subsonic flight patterns."

The Concorde regularly flies to New York's John F. Kennedy Airport and Dulles International Airport near Washington, D.C.

Standen said the sounds are like low summer thunder or dull thuds and were produced when summer atmospheric conditions were right.

"But last winter's bangs are different," Standen said. "They were sharper and louder."

Standen said the department is not sure what causes those but it wasn't the Anglo-French Concorde.

Syncrude Plant Opens, Fire Halts Production

Native Healer Sought

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — A city hospital has applied to the local council to hire a native healer, an administrator for Lake-of-the-Woods District Hospital said Thursday.

Richard Schneider said the healer would help staff communicate with the local native population and work with their emotional and physical problems.

Schneider said he knows of no other Canadian hospital having a native healer on staff, although some southern U.S. hospitals use them.

MILDRED LAKE, Alta. (CP) — The $2.2 billion Syncrude Canada Ltd. plant here, the largest oil-sands production facility in the world, was officially opened today by Alberta Premier Peter Loughed, despite a fire which halted production Thursday.

Syncrude officials said the fire broke out when heavy oil ignited after it spilled from a fluid coker unit, used to separate oil from the oil sands. The fire was extinguished about 10 a.m., half an hour after it started, but production had to be stopped for repair of damaged equipment.

Syncrude president Brent Scott said such accidents were expected during initial operation of a plant Syncrude's size. There were no injuries and foul play was not suspected. Scott said repairs would take several days.

Neil Lund, Syncrude senior vice-president, said the production shutdown also closed the Alberta Oil Sands Pipeline which had been shipping an average of 50,000 barrels a day to Edmonton 349 kilometres to the southwest.

The shutdown means $750,000 worth of oil a day will be delayed in delivery.

Officials joining Lougheed and more than 600 guests for the opening ceremonies included federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie, Malcolm Rowan, Ontario's deputy energy minister, and representatives of Imperial Oil ltd., Canada City Services Ltd., and Gulf Canada Ltd..

Lougheed called the Syncrude plant's completion "a key event in this dynamic era in Alberta.

"This official opening also marks the turning point in the history of the development of Alberta's energy resources. Further, it is an important step in improving essential oil supply for Canadians in other provinces."

The federal, Alberta and Ontario governments own 15, 10 and five per cent respectively of the Syncrude project. Imperial owns 31 per cent, Canada City owns 22 per cent and Gulf has 17 per cent.

The plant, 40 kilometres north of the oil-sands boomtown of Fort McMurray in north-eastern Alberta, started initial production Aug. 1 and before Thursday's accident about 1.5 million barrels had already been produced. The Syncrude oil has been sold to refineries from Vancouver to Montreal.

'Spend Crazy' Councils

EDMONTON (CP) — Leo LeClerc, assistant deputy minister of transportation in Alberta, announced his resignation today, saying he no longer wants to be associated with what he termed the fiscal irresponsibilities of both Edmonton and Calgary city councils.

"Too many aldermen are power-mad and spend-crazy, without thought of or respect for the real good of their electors," LeClerc told a news conference.

"Too many of these aldermen . . . are ignoring the overriding responsibility—the financial protection of their constituents.

"I refer specifically to the city councils of Edmonton and Calgary."

LeClerc, who was responsible for urban transporation in the province for more than 3½ years, submitted his resignation Wednesday to Transportation Minister Hugh Horner. It becomes effective Oct. 27.

Maschino Hasn't Given Up

MONTREAL (AFP) — Five months after Dalila Maschino was allegedly kidnapped by her brother and flown to her native Algeria, her husband, Denis, says he has still not lost hope of being reunited with her.

In an interview Thursday with Agence France Presse, Maschino said he converted to Islam this summer as part of his effort to regain his wife, whose family is said to have violently opposed her marriage to a French Christian.

Maschino said he has taken the first name Dalil—the masculine form of Dalila—and is studying Arabic at a Montreal university.

Mrs. Maschino, 26, was allegedly drugged and whisked home to Algeria on a private jet in April. Maschino says she is being held by her brother.

Breaking a self-imposed silence which he had observed since mid-July, Maschino said he had visited Algeria during the summer to make private contacts, but has not tried to lay charges against his brother-in-law, a wealthy businessman.

The Canadian charge d'affaires in Algiers met with Mrs. Maschino in Algiers in July, and said the women told him she did not wish to return to Canada to give evidence in any police investigation.

Drapeau Hired New Engineers

MONTREAL (CP) — A local consulting engineering firm which had to drop out of a contract to draw up plans for Montreal's Olympic stadium came under fire once again Thursday at the Quebec government inquiry into the cost of the 1976 Summer Games.

And this time, documents presented to the inquiry indicated that Mayor Jean Drapeau may have tried to hide the fact that the consultants, Regis Trudau et Associes, were unable to complete their work.

Regis Trudeau had been recommended for the job by Gerard Niding, chairman of the City of Montreal executive committee.

In March, 1974, with the plans hopelessly behind schedule and the Games only 28 months away, Roger Taillibert, the architect of the Olympic facilities, recommended that Drapeau hire two European consulting firms.

Former city engineer Claude Phaneuf testified Thursday that the recommendation, which Drapeau accepted, was made in the mayor's car after a meeting with Regis Trudeau.

Phaneuf said Europe-Etudes S.A. and Societe Europeenne d'Equipements d'Etreprises went to work immediately on the stadium plans, in what the city called Operation Sauvetage (Operation Salvage).

But a month later, appearing before a provincial government watchdog committe on Games costs, Drapeau made no mention of the need to replace the Montreal firm.

"If Regis Trudeau et Associes gives its closest collaboration, the problems caused by delays in the production of stadium plans will be resolved," Drapeau told the committee, as quoted in the minutes of the April 3, 1974, meeting. He did not mention that the European companies had already been called in.

Phaneuf, who directed construction of Games facilities, said Denis Lahaie, an engineer on the watchdog committee, had attended the March meeting of Taillibert, Drapeau and Regis Trudeau. But he could not recall if Lahaie was present later in Drapeau's car, when it was decided to call in new consultants.

Testifying for his third day before the inquiry into the $1.27-billion cost of the Games, Phaneuf said Regis Trudeau et Associes had mostly junior engineers and students working on plans for the 70,000-seat stadium.

"There weren't many people with experience working on the plans," Phaneuf said, adding that only 20 or 25 employees were assigned to the task. He said Taillibert later told the city that the two European firms put about 75 engineers to work on the stadium plans.

Phaneuf said Regis Trudeau et Associes never allowed city engineers to see the plans it was working on.

Although the European firms had taken over, Regis Trudeau did not withdraw from its original contract until August, 1974, at which point it became a member of a three-firm consortium formed to assist on the project.

Votes Sold For Rum In N.S.?

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — Jeremy Akerman, New Democratic Party leader, said Thursday he has heard reports that proxy votes for next Tuesday's provincial election have been exchanged for bottles of rum.

He said the reports have gone to law enforcement authorities but he is not sure they can be trusted to deal with them properly.

He did not identify the authorities.

The NDP leader made the comments at a party rally while severely criticizing Premier Gerald Regan and his Liberal party for conducting a "filthy and corrupt campaign," using taxpayers' money to threaten and bribe voters.

He said Regan "should be kicked out of office" for failing to bring Nova Scotia politics into the 20th century.

RENE PLEADS FOR YES VOTE

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — Inviting Quebecers to stop being economically "fleeced" by Confederation, Premier Rene Levesque expressed continued confidence Thursday that the Parti Quebecois government would win the promised referendum on independence.

The confidence, he said, stems from the fact that the referendum will be "not just a partisan affair, but a national affair.

"Voting yes will open the future to us, but a 'no' vote would cost Quebecers dearly."

The premier made his comments as the PQ legislative caucus began a two-day, closed-door meeting in this asbestos mining centre south of Quebec City.

Although information on the proceedings was scarce, it was believed debate would centre primarily on the referendum, and more precisely, on the wording of the question to be presented to the voters.

Levesque and Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin caused a stir last weekend, when they hinted that the primary issue in the referendum would be whether Quebec should assume all taxation power in the province, rather than sharing it with Ottawa.

Prices Down in July

OTTAWA (CP) — The general wholesale price index, a measure of inflation compiled by Statistics Canada, fell by two-tenths of one per cent in July from June levels, the federal agency reported Thursday.

The index was seven per cent higher than a year earlier.

The decline in July was chiefly due to 1.5-per-cent decreases in both the animal and vegetable products index.

Textile products increased in price by 1.2 per cent, attributable largely to higher prices for cotton yarns and fabrics, worsted yarns and woollen hosiery and knit goods.

Trials Delayed

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The trials of John Lundrigan, a former Newfoundland cabinet minister, and three ship captains charged with killing seals on a Sunday were delayed Thursday pending clarification of a pre-Confederation provincial law.

Suicide Pattern Reported

TORONTO (CP) — Adults who were teen-agers during the 1960s are more likely to commit suicide than any other age group, says Brig. Kenneth Graham of the Salvation Army's suicide prevention centre.

Graham, who was commenting on the release Tuesday of the Toronto health board's annual report on suicides, said teen-agers of that period grew up without facing reality. Affluent parents gave them whatever they wanted, many neglected school, developed poor work habits and frequently drifted from job to job.

The health board's report showed that suicide accounts for more deaths than any other single cause among city residents in the 15-to-44 age group.

Graham, a counsellor since before the Second World War, said the greatest increase is in the 20-to-29 age group. In the last 10 years, young people have been breaking family connections more often than in any other period he can remember, and they have no church connections.

They have no place they can go to for counselling and no one they trust or in whom they have confidence, Graham said.

Howard Richardson, executive director of the Ontario division of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said many young adults grew up believing that "if you got a good education, the world would be at your feet."

They had to make more difficult career-influencing decisions at a younger age than ever before, Richardson said. Teen-agers then faced threats and pressures at a time when often both parents were working.

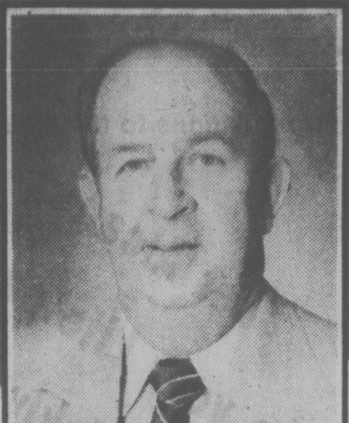
HERE'S WHAT SOME VICTORIA REALTORS HAVE BEEN SAYING ABOUT CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

RAY RAWNSLEY



Attention: Mr. Ray Sidaway
Sales Representative

Dear Ray:

In eighteen years of experience in Victoria Real Estate Sales, I have seen and used many different advertising media to sell property. Through those years one media has consistently brought results, and that is classified advertising. We consider classified to be the "yellow pages" for Real Estate advertising and that is where buyers look for the greatest selection of properties.

Yours truly,

A.E. LEPAGE WESTERN LTD.

Dear John:

Classified advertising works!!

My most recent evidence of this was a property advertised in the Times Wednesday, August 30, and the Colonist, Thursday 31. SOLD Friday, September 1.

Properly used classifieds are one of the least expensive and most effective methods of disposing of a property and finding a supply of honest to goodness buyers.

Again, thanks John, from all our staff, for your continuing assistance with the advertising aspect of our business.

Yours very truly,

Attention: Mr. John Hutchinson
Sales Representative

Dear John:

Seven of our sales in the month of July were a direct result of Victoria Press Limited Classified Ads.

Some of the homes were sold with the first ad. The balance were sold after some form of modification in the properties promotion. In any event, your Classified Ads. proved themselves as being the most successful method to tell the public what is new, what has changed, or just what we have for sale.

Big volume production with efficient service takes skill and hard work, but it becomes a little easier with the right kind of help.

Thank you, Victoria Press.

Yours truly,

Attention: Mr. Dennis Thompson,
Classified Advertising Manager

Dear Sir:

Classified Advertising is as necessary to me as the air that I breath.

Sometimes, when I am very busy, I forget to keep up my ads and then a strange silence descends over my phone until the omission is rectified.

Classified Advertising is a critical part of my function as a Real Estate Salesman, thank you for the fine job you all are doing at Victoria Press.

Yours sincerely,

John Addicott

Nude Wakens Sleepy Town

DARTMOUTH, England — A pretty brunette vacationer stepped naked out of the Dart River on Thursday, and for 15 minutes streaked through the streets of this sleepy west coast yachting town.

Police, in response to complaints from scandalized women, finally caught up with her, ushered her into a police station while her clothes were brought, then let her go.

"The men didn't seem to mind," a police official said. "But there are always a few types who don't like to think the men might be enjoying themselves."

LONDON, Ont. — The three world leaders engaged in Middle East peace talks at Camp David, Md., have called on journalist and author Malcolm Muggeridge to encourage world-wide prayers for peace.

Muggeridge, 75, told a non-denominational service in London that he received a telegram Wednesday from the White House notifying him of the joint call to prayer made by Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

VANCOUVER — John A. Van Luven, who headed the Vancouver Stock Exchange for 16 years as manager and president, died Wednesday after a long illness.

Mr. Van Luven, 59, suffered a stroke 2½ years ago.

VERSAILLES — Popular music singer Charles Aznavour faced an investigating magistrate Thursday after French tax collectors demanded he pay $680,000 in back taxes.

Tax officials said Aznavour did not pay French income tax in 1972, 1973 and 1974 on revenues from concerts and record sales.

LOS ANGELES — Actor-comedian Richard Pryor was ordered by a Los Angeles judge Thursday to give 10 free performances for charity or go to jail.

Pryor, 37, pleaded no contest last month to a charge of running his car into a vehicle carrying two women after a New Year's party.

MUNICH — Willy Messerschmitt, designer of the fighter plane that spearheaded Adolf Hitler's air attack on Europe, died today. He was 80.

The cause of death was not disclosed, but the pioneer pilot and builder of the aircraft that terrorized European skies had undergone an operation.

Dreaded by allied air crews, the ME109 Messerschmitt became a household name like its famous Allied adversaries — Thunderbolt, Mustang, Spitfire and Hurricane.

"Professor Willy," as the Germans called him, also designed the first modern passenger planes and the first mass-produced jet, the twin-engine ME262, during the Second World War.

In a 70th birthday interview, Messerschmitt said that "200 additional Messerschmitt jets would have stopped the allied invasion of Normandy in World War II."

"Of course," he added quickly, "I am just quoting some American friends. That's what they told me after the war."

'Disruptive' — at 14

PORTAGE, Mich. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union will go to the defence of a 14-year-old girl who was suspended from school for disrupting the educational process by not wearing a bra.

"I don't think you can regulate underwear," said Bruce Stein, president of the local civil liberties chapter.

The girl's father said a teacher's aide noticed his daughter was not wearing a bra during lunch. "How could it have been disruptive to the educational process if nobody noticed until lunchtime?" he asked.

Asked whether every girl must wear a bra to school, principal Richard Tyler said it depended on whether it was distracting. "If it is not distracting—then I wouldn't know."

Carter's Aides Urged To Assist Vesco?

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence submitted in federal court Thursday indicated that about the time President Carter took office, attempts were made to reach two of his closest advisers about helping "a Costa Rican gentleman." A witness said she believed the man was fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

Columnist Jack Anderson reported earlier this week that Vesco directed "a high pressure lobbying campaign" at the two men — Hamilton Jordan and Charles Kirbo — in an attempt to end his legal problems.

Jordan called Anderson's story "an incredible fabrication and despicable lie." Kirbo called it "an absolute lie by an irresponsible reporter."

Both denied having made any effort to intercede on Vesco's behalf, and said they had not even been asked to do so.

Vesco fled to Costa Rica in 1973 to avoid trial on five indictments charging he stole millions of dollars from a publicly held corporation. He was also accused of offering a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

The U.S. attorney's office has been unsuccessful despite years of efforts to extradite Vesco. A few months ago, Vesco left Costa Rica and is believed to be living in the Bahamas.

A pair of letters submitted during a Securities and Exchange Commission action in U.S. District Court showed that letters were written to Kirbo and Jordan, although there was no evidence that they either received the letters or intervened on anyone's behalf.

The documents were produced by SEC lawyer Gregory Glynn, who was seeking to have U.S. District Judge Charles E. Stewart cite Vesco for contempt for violating a 1973 order forbidding Vesco and others from dealing in certain stock issues including the PRL issue mentioned in the letter to Jordan.

The letters were submitted as Gerolyn Hobbs of Albany, Ga., former secretary for businessman R.L. Herring, testified that she received frequent "personal" calls during 1977 and this year about an unidentified man in Costa Rica she believed was Vesco. She said she took the calls at Herring's Albany office. Mrs. Hobbs was not asked why she believed the man was Vesco, nor did she say why she thought it was the fugitive financier.

Both documents included the typed name of a Herring associate, Spencer Lee IV.

The letter to Kirbo, dated Jan. 14, 1977, read: "Dear Charlie. Enclosed is a copy of how the Costa Rican gentleman wishes to have his matter resolved. I had a long talk with him and I feel that the plan we discussed will be successful and also fruitful."

The letter continued: "It is very hard for me to contact Hamilton because of his busy schedule, but he told me last week that he would condone any decision that I had made along the lines that we had previously discussed ... I will proceed as planned and see you in a few days."

Lee's letter to Jordan, dated Feb. 9, 1977, read: "Dear Hamilton. Regarding our conversation, it looks as the PRL matter (a stock issue not further identified) will take eight to 12 months to complete. The time frame is well within our agreement with Mr. Herring and the Costa Rican gentleman."

It continued: "I forget to mention to you, when we talked, that the necessary arrangements have been made to protect our interest in Nassau. I have already cleared this matter with the trustee in Atlanta. The allocation that was received from Mr. Herring has been turned over to the trustee."

Anderson, in his report, said he possessed documents showing the "ringleaders" of the attempt to gain favorable Carter administration treatment for Vesco "were R.L. Herring, now in jail under $500,000 bond awaiting trial on unrelated fraud charges, and Spencer Lee IV, who claims he merely acted as Herring's attorney. Herring had the connection with Vesco, and Lee was a close personal friend of Jordan."

Anderson said Herring, now in jail under $500,000 bond awaiting trial on unrelated fraud charges, has sworn under oath "that he arranged with Lee to get Hamilton Jordan to intervene."

Iranian Students Probed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI has confirmed that it is investigating the possibility of international terrorists having infiltrated the Iranian student movement.

U.S. government sources say the terrorists may have triggered violence at a Sept. 1 demonstration in Los Angeles that left 48 persons injured, says a report published Thursday.

FBI spokesman John Morrison, who said an inquiry is under way, declined to give details of the investigation. He also declined to comment on an article Thursday in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner describing the FBI probe and reporting leads being pursued by investigators.

Oswald Rifle Photos Judged Authentic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three photographs linking Lee Harvey Oswald to a rifle similar to the one which killed President John F. Kennedy are authentic and show no signs of being faked, according to testimony prepared for Congress today.

Two experts in photo analysis, physicist-mathematician Calvin McCamy and Cecil Kirk, a District of Columbia police sergeant, were to describe to the House of Representatives assassinations committee the results of their studies of the photographs.

Representatives of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) were to testify later about what knowledge the agency had of Oswald's activities while he lived in the Soviet Union from 1959 to June 1962.

Evidence that the photos are authentic, like virtually all the testimony presented to the committee so far, supports the official Warren commission's conclusion that Oswald was Kennedy's lone assassin.

The photographs, which purport to show Oswald holding a rifle and communist literature and wearing a pistol strapped to his waist, have figured in the various conspiracy theories that dispute the commission's findings.

STORM TURNS QE2 INTO 'CLUMSY TOY'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The waves rose up to the bridge of the Queen Elizabeth 2, bending railings, loosening a boom platform and tossing and turning the 963-foot luxury liner like a clumsy toy boat.

But the captain kept control of the huge ship, the crew soothed the passengers, and they made it through one of the worst mid-Atlantic storms in years.

Thursday, the QE 2's passengers and crew breathed a sigh of relief and laughed about the experience as the ship entered the safety of New York harbor a day late.

Two elderly women passengers and two crew members were injured during the storm that the captain's log showed started about 5:30 a.m. Monday and lasted until 6 a.m. the next day.

For Hazel Mills, the trip was her 10th crossing on the largest sailing passenger ship in the world. It was also her most memorable.

"It was quite frightening because of the waves," said Miss Mills, 65, an American writer who lives part of the year in England.

"They went up over the bridge and to reach the bridge it had to be up to 80 feet. They soared right up in front of us. It hit the boat and went pretty near sideways."

Like most of the passengers, Frank Jeffries of Grand Rapids, Mich., had praise for the efforts of the crew.

"The captain and the crew did a good job taking care of everybody and keeping them calm," he said.

Paul Mitton and Yvonne Bracewell of Lancashire, England, are glad they're returning by plane.

Miss Bracewell said she feared the liner would go down "when in the dining room, the whole ship turned twice — it was really rocky."

Captain Douglas Ridley said he had only seen two other storms like it in 35 years at sea.

Portugal Gov't Out

LISBON (AP) — Portugal is without a government for the third time this year following the defeat of an independent cabinet under Premier Alfredo Nobre da Costa.

Centre-left socialists and conservatives, whose own governing coalition fell apart after six months, voted together in parliament Thursday to reject Nobre da Costa's legislative program.

Smoke Eaters Suing School

BUTLER, Mo. (AP) — The punishment of two students for carrying cigarettes at a junior high school two years ago has resulted in a multi-million-dollar lawsuit.

A suit on file Thursday in Bates County Circuit Court seeks more than $2.3 million from the school district and several past and present school officials.

The suit was filed by the mothers of Bill Adkins and Terry Weatherman, who allegedly became ill in September, 1976, after they chose to eat almost a whole pack of cigarettes when they were caught with cigarettes on the schoolgrounds.

The school policy at the time was to give students the choice of accepting a paddling or eating the tobacco in their possession. The policy was later abandoned.

The suit accused the school district of negligence and seeks $1 million in punitive damages for each of the boys plus damages for court costs and personal injury.

Among the individuals named defendants in the suit were Kenneth Hightower, the principal who administered the punishment, and Robert Allen, who was school superintendent at the time. Hightower and Allen have left the school.

$M Fraud Nipped?

LONDON (Reuter) — A multi-million-dollar investment fraud that involved the lure of gold and platinum was partly organized in Canada and the United States, a prosecuting lawyer said here Thursday.

Prosecutor Michael Worsley told a court the scheme, which was organized by twin brothers raised in Canada, did not succeed but it "had been enormous in its conception and planning."

Five men—including the brothers—and two women pleaded not guilty to fraud charges in an alleged promotion that, Worsley claimed, involved investments in mining gold, platinum and other precious metals near Vancouver.

"The plan was to get the money and disappear," he said.

Part of the plot called for investment in a company called Metals Research S.A., which had offices in Panama and Grand Cayman.

Worsley charged that the scheme was highly organized in many parts of the world including Canada, the United States, Panama, the West Indies, Britain, Italy, Switzerland and Israel.

Scotland Yard detectives uncovered the alleged fraud after two banks had been set up in London, the prosecutor said.

Worseley charged that the twins Robert and Anthony Papalia, 32, who were born in Italy, began organizing the scheme in 1974.

Mario Berton, 41, a financier from Milan, and Richard Swinnerton, 38, director of a British firm, joined the Papalia brothers later, Worsley said.

The fifth man, Umberto Frascati, 35, of Italy, was said to be the manager of one of the two banks.

Worsley also said Frascati played a role in a $1.5-million fraud involving the acquisition in Belgium of aircraft from the U.S. Cessna Co.

Mrs. Renata Harris, 49, was said by Worsley to have been a director of one of the banks and to have signed worthless drafts which allowed accomplices to get the planes. Miss Veronique Blot, 21, of Monaco, played a small part in the scheme and was "used by stronger persons," Worsley said.

Uruguay Arrests Ford Boss

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — The head of Ford Motor Co.'s Uruguayan subsidiary, his chief of operations and 19 Uruguayan employees are under arrest for allegedly trying to avoid payment of customs duties on imported automobile parts, police said.

The alleged scheme enabled the company to re-order extra parts duty free.

GANDHI ILL - LAWYER

NEW DELHI (CP) — Former prime minister Indira Gandhi is indisposed and cannot keep a date in court today, a lawyer told the judge.

Mrs. Gandhi is being prosecuted for refusal to testify before an official commission of inquiry that reported in May she acted illegally and unnecessarily in assuming emergency powers in March, 1975.

The lawyer, K. G. Bhagat, asked unsuccessfully Thursday that the session today be postponed.

Wage-Price Curb Warning

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Administration officials are privately warning business and labor groups that they should co-operate with President Carter's voluntary program to hold down inflation to prevent a drift into formal wage and price controls.

Despite this private rhetorical shift, however, Carter does not have, has not had for four years, and says he does not want authority to impose mandatory controls on wages, prices or profits.

And strong opposition on the part of organized business and labor to wage and price controls, such as the type President Nixon imposed on Aug. 15, 1971, could preclude any action on the part of Congress to give Carter that authority.

Even though Congress just stripped Carter of a wide range of emergency powers — 470 laws were abolished at 12:01 a.m. Thursday — President Carter retains broad emergency powers that permit him to intrude in a host of economic transactions.

For example, if he invoked the Credit Control Act of 1969 a law no president has invoked, Carter could tell a consumer how big a down-payment he or she must make on a new car. Under the same law, the president — actually acting through the Federal Reserve Board — could also set the maximum interest rate a bank could charge on the consumer on that same car loan.

Using other laws, the president could prohibit a grain farmer from selling his wheat abroad or a copper smelter from selling his product to another country.

The president also has emergency powers to order banks to stop making loans to foreigners or to make banks, or anyone else for that matter, stop buying or selling foreign currencies.

These are powers no president can or would use lightly. To take steps to limit international dealings by U.S. citizens or corporations, the president would have to determine, then declare that a national emergency exists with respect to an international situation — say the declining dollar. That declaration is subject to congressional review.

U.S. CRIME RATE DIPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rate of reported crime in the United States continued to drop during the first six months of 1978, but violent crime, hspecially rape, increased by one per cent, the FBI said Thursday.

There was a decrease of two per cent in the number of reported crimes in the period compared with the same period in 1977.

The sharpest rise was in the category of forcible rapes, which rose five per cent over the first half of 1977.

Death Silences Pen Of the Letter 'King'

WRIXON
. . . stroke victim

Maurice Wrixon, known as the king of Canada's letters-to-the-editor writers, died shortly after midnight at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

He was 79.

The funeral service will be held Monday at 11 a.m. in St. Luke's Anglican Church on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Wrixon's beliefs, charm, sense of humor and interest in other people made him an unusual person in today's world.

Up to the time of a recent stroke, he retained his keen awareness of politics and avid interest in rugby in which he served many official capacities.

An ardent fisherman, his exploits were once the subject of a National Geographic magazine article.

He worked in South America for more than 28 years, the last eight with the Shell Company in Venezuela. It was said his encouragement helped create a healthy union movement during his years in South America.

He fell in love with Victoria when he visited here on one of his fishing trips around the world and moved here when he retired in 1948.

Since his wife, Joyce, died seven years ago Wrixon has been living alone at 701 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

His interest in politics never waned. He was a regular visitor to the legislative sessions.

He is survived by two daughters, Gwyneth Wrixon of Kelowna, and Kathleen Tweedhope of Riske Creek, near Williams Lake.

Miss Wrixon said today her father always gave other people a second, third and even fourth chance and never lost his exuberance for living.

Rugby enthusiasts around the world appreciated his contribution to the sport and presented him with trophies of appreciation.

Pensions Top $164.74

OTTAWA (CP) — The basic Old Age Security pension will rise to $164.74 a month in October from the current $159.79 in line with the quarterly adjustment for inflation, the department of health and welfare announced today.

At the same time, the maximum Guaranteed Income Supplement, available to pensioners with little or no other income, will rise to $115.55 a month for a single person from the current maximum of $112.08. This maximum amount is also available to a married pensioner whose spouse is not receiving a government pension and has little or no other income.

The maximum supplement for a married couple will increase to $102.61 a month each from the current $99.52, the department said.

the government growth target of five per cent in the second half of this year.

The economy may not reach the goal — set out in government budgetary statements and repeated at the Bonn meeting in July — but can come close.

"I can't be more precise because I don't have a crystal ball," he said.

Economic growth in the first half of the year was well short of the target. In the first three months, the economy expanded at an annual rate of 2.8 per cent while in the second quarter it grew by 4.4 per cent.

Trudeau repeated earlier assertions that the Canadian economy — despite inflation of 9.4 per cent, unemployment of 8.5 per cent and recent declines in the dollar's value — compared favorably with that of other industrial countries.

"They think it's easy to govern?" Trudeau asked reporters after his news conference.

"Maybe we should throw a few of these hot potatoes back to the people and let them live with the results," said the prime minister.

void after mining operations are shut down," said the report, "however, due to instability of the surrounding ground materials and the anticipated poor quality of pit water, this option is no longer favored."

Instead, the scientists favor leaving the pit as is because it will contain a significant coal resource even after 35 years of mining, and filling it with water "could affect the viability of future extraction."

"Reclamation of the open pit will therefore comprise: regrading and revegetating the upper benches, seeding the remainder of the open pit, maintaining diversion ditches and canals to prevent undue water entry," it said.

The Cominco-Monenco study group also proposes "fencing the entire pit perimeter including adjoining areas of unstable materials to restrict public access," and growing trees around the perimter so people can't see the hole.

The study also says it will cost $508 million to build the mining portion of the Hat Creek-project and $2.1 billion in mine operating costs for the 35-year life of the proposal.

Costs estimates are all in 1977 Canadian dollars and do not contain any allowance for inflation.

The Crown corporation has never given a breakdown of the total mining costs or the generation costs of the project, but more than a year ago said that total over-all estimated cost was $1.2 billion.

The report said there are 350 million tonnes of coal in four major zones in one recommended mine area. The coal has an average of 5,495 British thermal units a pound, and is enough to supply the Roberts Bank coal port for 35 years based on the current export contracts.

Cost of All Those Stolen Buggies Will Show Up Eventually on Your Grocery Bills

Cash and Carry Carts

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Theft of shopping carts is costing Canadian store owners — and consumers — millions of dollars each year.

And little is being done in a concerted way to stop it. Even those who are caught red-handed rarely are charged.

No one seems to know why such an attitude prevails.

Says Jack Fidler, head of the Safeway chain in Victoria: "It's just one of those darn things . . . it's going on all the time . . . and I don't see any answer for it."

The nine Safeway stores here expect to lose about 300 carts this year — 20 per cent of their stock.

The loss, estimated at just under $20,000, is budgeted for by the company. It's the consumer who ultimately pays.

Last year losses through theft and vandalism of shopping buggies totalled $1.5 million in B.C.

Although the storeowners say kids are responsible for much of the problem — taking buggies for joy rides and using the wheels for go-carts and fancy skateboards — adults also are involved.

Carts are used for planters, for picking up grass clippings, shifting clothes in apartment laundry rooms, and taking beer and pop bottles to the bottle exchange. The metal frame backs of the carts apparently make excellent barbecue grills.

Fidler said he's even heard of persons stealing vanloads of carts, presumably for blackmarket sale. There's no indication that is going on here.

One of the biggest problems, Fidler said, is shoppers using the buggies to carry home their groceries and then "forgetting" to return them.

He knows of one little old lady on the Oak Bay border who keeps a cart at her back doorstep and uses it whenever she goes to the store.

He stopped her one day and asked her what she was doing. She explained curtly she had no other way of getting her groceries home . . . and continued on her way.

Fidler said he didn't have the heart to stop her again.

"If we got tough, well, she wouldn't come back. This is a very competitive business."

Some store owners, however, have decided enough is enough.

About a year ago Woolco in Town and Country placed metal posts in the doorways to prevent carts from being taken out of the store. (The posts can be pulled out if the customer needs to use the cart to carry his goods to his car.)

That action alone has nearly eliminated loss. There have been virtually no thefts and vandalism is minimal. A spokesman estimated the savings at more than $4,000 a year.

Jim Hall, manager of Wellburn's on Pandora, took a similar step earlier this year, purchasing 40 new carts that were slightly larger than his old set and too wide to get through the post barriers at the door.

He has about a dozen old carts which still can get through.

The problem, he said, has disappeared.

Buggie thefts and vandalism before were costing him about $600 a year.

Hall said the shoppers haven't minded the change.

. . . 'customers understand'

The ultimate solution is to prevent all buggies from being taken out of stores. That would mean, however, the stores would have to have a parcel pickup system — an added expense, indeed most storeowners believe a much greater expense than that suffered through loss and theft of carts.

But even those store with parcel pickup are experiencing difficulties.

Woodward's in the Mayfair Mall has to replace about 10 per cent of its 500 carts each year despite the fact the store has a parcel pickup, a spokesman said.

"The carts still end up all over the place," he said. "Kids pick them up and take them on rides. We once found an abandoned cart as far away as the AirWest terminal downtown."

The degree of problem appears to vary according to the neighborhood.

While the incidence of theft and vandalism is high at Town and Country, Mayfair and Hillside, it's practically non-existent at K-Mart which is surrounded by a fairly affluent middle-class suburbia.

K-Mart manager Lloyd Keba said only four of the store's 300 carts have gone missing in the past eight years.

"Even our head office can't believe it," he said.

Industrial Park For Saanich Rejected Again

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

For the second time this year a proposal for an industrial park in Saanich has been defeated.

The vote Thursday night was a surprising 8-1 with only Mayor Mel Couvelier in favor.

The rejection of the project came after a lengthy public hearing attended by more than 300 residents who were mostly opposed to the Interurban Road industrial park.

Only four people spoke in favor of the development, one being industrial develoment commissioner Barry Mayhew.

And even he said he favored the Royal Oak industrial site thrown out by council in March.

Ald. John Mika made the motion to abandon the Interurban project, saying, "It simply does not wash with the people. It's a lesson for all of us."

He described Couvelier and aldermen Ian Cass and Geoff Vantreight as "gung-ho developers" who had made a "first-class deal with the B.C. Development Corporation" which was willing to sell land considerably below market value.

Cass seconded the motion and Vantreight said: "I go along with our planning department."

Earlier in the evening municipal planner Gil Laurenson said that development of the industrial site would contravene the municipality's urban containment boundary regulations and destroy years of planning.

COUVELIER
. . . he got the message

"This land is not going to run away and can be used for agricultural use in the meantime. We can leave this area for eight or 10 years," Vantreight said.

Couvelier said it was obvious residents want to maintain the status quo but he warned denial of any industrial development cannot help but increase taxes.

"The message is to hell with the taxes, we want to maintain our own enclaves," he said.

He said the council had slashed budget items to the bone and still people face horrendous increases in property taxes.

He said a recent study showed construction of single-family homes increased all property taxes because of the drain on school facilities while industry and commercial development make a solid contribution to school taxes.

Swimmers Before The Trout - Young

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Mayor Mike Young of Victoria fears a proposed provincial fish and wildlife branch project designed to save trout in Craigflower Creek might take Thetis Lake away from swimmers.

At a meeting of the city parks committee Thursday the mayor said before he votes for any such project he wants assurances from the branch that swimming will remain the priority at the lake.

The fish and wildlife project would see three flow control gates installed on the Thetis Lake system to ensure that a small current be maintained in Craigflower Creek over the dry summer months.

The water flow is essential to sea-run cutthroat trout, branch urban recreation officer Chris Dodd said in a letter to the city. He said without the flow controls there's little hope the trout fingerlings will survive the summer.

Dodd noted that Craigflower is an important feeder stream into the Gorge where the branch now has a major program under way aimed at rehabilitating sea-run cutthroat stocks, with a target figure of 50,000 fish.

The Gorge has been identified by biologists as prime habitat for cutthroat and is now the site of the biggest such rehabilitation project in the province.

Sea-run cutthroat spend their early years in fresh water before running to the ocean where they grow to sexual maturity before returning to the stream of their birth. They are regarded as top sporting and table fish.

Parks committee chairman Ald. Robin Blencoe said all the branch wants at this point is approval by the city to proceed with an impact study for the flow control project.

The branch would pay for the study, said Blencoe.

But Young said he opposes even letting the fish and wildlife branch go that far because the next thing the city knows the federal department of fisheries will be involved and Thetis Lake will be under the jurisdiction of Ottawa.

"If the federal people get involved are they going to start ordering people out of the lake?" asked Young.

He said federal fisheries is a hard-headed department and he sees the possibility of the government taking over Thetis and managing it to promote the fishery.

"We have to place firmly before fish and wildlife that this is firstly a recreational (swimming) area . . . (and) if it turned out that there was a choice between the lake and the fish the decision would have to be against the fish."

He said he could envisage the lake being drained in the summer to keep trout in Craigflower alive.

The committee agreed to table the matter until a fish and wildlife spokesman can appear at city hall and give assurances that Thetis swimmers will not suffer in order to save the fish.

Saanich Man Charged In City Fire-Bombing

Reginald John Green, 4668 Cordova Bay, was charged with wilfully setting fire to a molotov cocktail which was likely to cause fire, and criminal negligence causing bodily harm to 71-year-old Maria Sokalski.

A firebomb, made from a pop bottle filled with gasoline and a soaked rag, was tossed through the bedroom window at 1136 Empress shortly after 5 a.m. while 77-year-old Artem Sokalski and his wife Maria were sleeping.

Judge Harold Alder granted defence lawyer Darrel Woods' application for a remand until this afternoon for a bail hearing and possible election of trial method. Green was held in custody.

Ask the Times

Q. Walking along the Causeway the other day I couldn't help but notice practically everybody I saw was carrying a camera. I wonder who invented the first camera. Could you tell me? G.W.

A. It was Josephe Nicephore Niepce, a French physician and scientist. His earliest picture was taken in the summer of 1826 and showed the courtyard of his country house at Gras, near Loup-de-Varennes. It probably took eight hours to expose and was taken on a bitumen-coated polished pewter plate measuring 7¾ inches by 6½ inches.

Here's to Oak Bay Navy

What Mayor Brian Smith calls "the Royal Oak Bay Navy" has carried out four marine rescues since Labor Day, no thanks to the Canadian Coast Guard.

Smith was commenting on a report to council by engineer Geoff White that the volunteer rescue service operated through the Oak Bay emergency program had gone to the aid of four vessels after the coast guard's summer marine patrol concluded.

"We're the Oak Bay coast guard," said Ald. Shirley Dowell.

Ald. Doug Watts called the volunteers a "magnificent group."

"What with U.S. helicopters protecting us from the air and the Royal Oak Bay Navy, that's it. The federal government does zilch," said Smith.

But now Mrs. Pollen has sold Honda and Mazda to William Boothman, who was Peter's right hand man at Peter Pollen Ford before going into the car business for himself.

Nanaimo's Frank Ney, who dressed up as an admiral for the Great Inner Tube Race, is still bubbling about the event.

"It went like clockwork," he said. "The Hampton Park Hustlers should be congratulated. They thought of everything.

"Oh, except for one thing. The concession stand didn't have any spoons. I bought a cup of coffee and had to stir it with my sword!"

The province's climb-down from an order to B.C. doctors requiring a patient's signature on medicare claim forms — because the medical profession objected loudly to the suggestion they weren't honest — now puts the shoe on the other foot.

Patients will be required to carry plastic credit card-type ID on every visit to their physician. Now what does this say about the government's thoughts on the honesty of ordinary British Columbians?

Saanich municipal hall will have a permanent reminder of Thursday night's public hearing on the proposed Interurban Road industrial park.

It's a foot-high evergreen bearing the tag "I Cannot Grow in Concrete." It was presented to Mayor Mel Couvelier by Annelise Christoffersen, along with a 300-name petition.

Couvelier told her he intends keeping it at the municipal hall as a memento. The high ceilings of the hall ensure a lengthy tenure for the tree.

The Saanich fire department is following the example of its Victoria counterparts and replacing the engines on their vehicles with diesels as they wear out.

The department's mechanic Rick Milkoski began working this week on the 1,500-gallon tanker truck which will get a new diesel engine and transmission.

Deputy chief O.W. McGregor says the job will take about 200 man-hours and cost $15,000.

The Victoria department already has converted two vehicles to diesel.

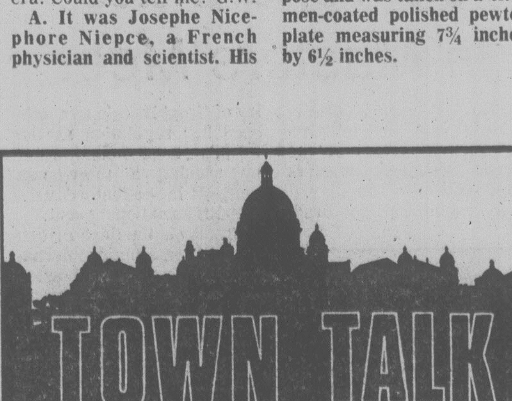
Ross, whose widow, Ellen, lives at 1928 Lee, first went to sea in 1917 and in 1928 was aboard the Clan McWilliam, when she caught fire off Fiji and had to be abandoned.



But it was on his last voyage in 1960 that Ross made marine engineering history.

He was serving in the Clan Alpine and, on this particular voyage, had his wife along. The ship was to be taken to Japan to be scrapped after unloading her cargo at Chittagong, Bangladesh.

She was anchored off the port waiting for a berth on Oct. 31 when she was caught in a cyclone and washed half a mile into a rice field by a tidal wave.

The vessel was a write-off. The problem was how to unload the cargo with no fresh water available for the boilers.

Ross hired local labor to build a small dam near the ship which the ship's crew nicknamed Ross Lake. With ingenious piping arrangements the water was sucked from the dam to the ship.

The boilers were then fired up and the cargo unloaded into the rice field and hauled away by ox-carts.

Cheerleaders Nice. . . But Very Distractive

Jack Pardee, coach of the Washington Redskins, says he wishes pro football's half-naked cheerleaders would parade their pelts somewhere else—preferably behind the other team's bench.

I myself have noticed a couple of things about the new cheerleaders. Actually, I've noticed a great many things about them in multiples of two.

1. They are gorgeous, the end product of the best in nutrition, exercise, orthodontistry, cosmetology and—judging from published measurements and visible tunic displacement—aerodynamics.

2. They are interrupting my football game.

I realize this will be a minority report. Down in the Cheryl Tiegs Room of the Club MCP, fellow heavy-breathers will taking blackball and demanding immediate forfeiture of my binoculars. They are part of the growing band who think the time out is the period between chest and hip shots.

Alas, I confess to once being one of them. I too, was a Dallas Cowgirl fan, although for the life of me I couldn't understand why they hung around with that football team.

To watch them breathe was to cease breathing yourself. They were lovely ornaments, delightfully pneumatic Barbie dolls, the intellectual equivalent of the life-size Jayne Mansfield hot water bottle.

But they were a sidelight, damnit. Now they're the whole show.

Not at the game, of course. When was the last time anyone at a football game actually paid any attention to a cheerleader, unless it was Krazy George? But on television the CBS eye landed on the Cowgirls and hasn't blinked since lest it miss a girlish hiccough.

Ever sensitive to the TV market, every team in pro football has followed the Dallas lead and recruited its pound of flesh, preferably still jiggling. The networks see more flesh and take more pictures, so the football teams provide more flesh, which provides the networks with more pictures to take, and the teams see more pictures and run out and sign Miss Dirigible of 1978. ("That's Goodyear!" "It certainly is!")

It isn't just the cheerleaders.

Television camerman, identifiable by terminal acne and hairy palms, use every break in the action to pan the crowd in search of pretty face or full sweater. To a football cameraman, an artistic crisis is a game played on the prairies in November, when parkas make it impossible to figure whether they're hustling the girl or her husband.

So a team has, say, first down on the other team's four yard line and throws a pass into the end zone which is intercepted (unlikely, I agree, but let's pretend).

I want to see the replay. I want to watch the analyist dissect the play and see whether it was as dumb as it looked. And what do I get? Some dame with a personality out to here who waves and mouths "Hi, Mom!" or possibly a phone number.

I have no objection to cheerleaders providing they know their place, which is in front of the stands down below the sightlines waving pom poms and yelling "Go, Team, Go!" True, some of them insist on yelling "dee-fence" when their own team has the ball, but they are seldom hired for technical expertise.

But they are lousing up my game.

As the emphasis switches more to sideline than scrimmage line, generations of TV-reared fans will put a whole new light on football terminology:

Third and one: Three buttons undone, one to go.

Forward pass: Quarterback asks cheeleader "Your bench or mine?"

Belly series: Cameraman develops navel fixation.

Stack: Don't ask.

I am not suggesting we ditch the cheerleaders entirely. There are less painful alternatives.

Hire henpecked cameramen who wouldn't dare show anything sexier than a tight end. Put an exposure clause in the TV contract. But give me back my football game. I don't want sexploitation, I want Frank Rigney.

I say this not without regret. Many's the happy hour spent in front of the screen staring at the Cowgirls while my breath fogs my glasses. But when they get between me and the football it matters not what part is blocking the view. It has to go.

Goodbye, girls. It's been uplifting.

Bo Tops Class In Masters Meet

CALGARY — Bo Mearns of Victoria won the intermediate jumper class at the Spruce Meadows masters horse show here Thursday.

Meanwhile, Caroline Bradley of Great Britain strengthened her reputation as the world's finest woman rider by winning a three-horse jump-off in the featured Diamond International event.

Bradley is the third British rider to win a major international class at the show to date. John Simpson of Cochrane, Alta., is the only Canadian to have succeeded in joining her in the winner's circle.

Simpson, aboard Commander Jack, toured the course in a blistering 59.9 seconds. Carlos Aguire of Mexico, with a clear round in 60.6 seconds, finished second. Germany's Achaz Von Buchwald came in third, two-tenths of a second off the pace.

Twenty-seven riders from six of the world's leading equestrian nations are competing through to Sunday at the Masters, an International Equestrian Federation-ranked show highlighted by a Nations' Cup competition on Saturday and a $15,000 Grand Prix of Canada on Sunday. In the world race for Nations' Cups points, England leads Germany by only three points.

SHAW, McKEEN HEADING EAST FOR CANADIAN

Bruce Shaw and Gail McKean of Victoria will be on the British Columbia squad going to the Canadian marathon championships Sunday in New Glasgow, N.S.

McKean, who won the provincial women's crown in May, is the first female marathoner to be named to the B.C. representative team.

Four runners from Vancouver round out the squad.

Ali's Fans Don't Want The Cheering to Stop

By DAVE BRADY

The Washington Post

NEW ORLEANS — It could be the last dance, the last hurrah for Muhammad Ali tonight, but his fans don't want the cheering to stop.

He is more than a heavyweight boxer, of course, an international symbol of the generation of the black revolution in America and an encouragement to a Third World reaching for self-determination.

Ali, originally named Cassius Marcelius Clay after an abolitionist, is talking grandly about a larger mission to the world after his attempt to win back his championship from Leon Spinks, but Ali probably will discover his power base will shrink like an apple in the attic once he takes off the gloves.

Where else but in an edifice called the Superdome would it be proper to say thanks for the memories to the 36-year-old warrior?

The remembrance of the brash Louisville Lip, a laughable underdog confusing fearsome Sonny Liston, first by pretending he was frantic with cowardice at their physical examinations and throwing tantrums, then taunting him in the ring before the old gaffer quit cold.

The recollection of a high school non-achiever sensing before our professional statesmen that Vietnam was wrong, braving criticism in refusing induction into the armed forces, and being stripped of his title for 3 1-2 years.

The memory of Ali stunning the establishment by disclosing he had left the Baptist faith of his parents, joined the black Muslims, and had changed his name — the three classic bouts with Joe Frazier — the gamble he took when he dared to let George Foreman punch himself out on Ali's anatomy before knocking him out — and then the struggles against the lesser talents — and the erosion of his reflexes by age.

Yet, Ali has rallied from the defeat by Spinks, a veteran of only seven professonal bouts before that night seven months ago in Las Vegas, and dreary workouts here, to be an 11-to-5 favorite in the rematch against the 25-year-old former Marine.

Now the question is whether, despite the odds, Spinks will make Ali dance attendance to his disco beat, as he did in winning a split decision the last time.

Spinks weighed in at 201 pounds Thursday, 3 3-4 more than he did in Las Vegas. The wise guys were trying to read into that slight gain whether the champion has been carousing occasionally or merely maturing.

Ali came in at 221, or 3 1-4 pounds less than he did last time. It comes harder to lose at age 36, but it was four pounds more than he was projecting.

The former champion has had 50 more professional bouts than Spinks.

He has won 55 of 58 fights, 37 by knockouts, and lost three, to Joe Frazier in their first encounter; to Ken Norton in their first of three bouts, when Ali suffered a broken jaw, and to Spinks, all by decisions.

Spinks is unbeaten in eight fights, but figured in a draw with Scott LeDoux and was unimpressive in decisioning Alfio Righetti, a prudent boxer, in 10 rounds. Spinks scored knockouts in his first five bouts, three in the first round, but is not regarded as a one-punch finisher.

It is speculated that the bout will probably go the scheduled 15 rounds, because neither boxer has a tin chin.

The entire three-championship card will be on television (channels 2, 4 and 6 starting at 5 p.m. with the Ali-Spinks bout expected to start about 7 p.m.)

BRUINS CONFIRMED FOR TRIP TO SWEDEN

Clavette Looks Sharp

Rob Clavette has come home and the 19-year-old product of Saanich minor hockey may prove to one of the more welcome surprises for Victoria Cougar coach Jack Shupe.

Clavette, six-foot-three and 190 pounds, has been a robust performer in the Western Hockey League team's training camp. Three goals in Wednesday's intra-squad game also indicated that the Montreal-born winger can score as well as bodycheck.

Shupe has been impressed.

"I think he can make this team," was the coach's prediction.

Clavette's family moved to Victoria in 1971 and Rod received most of his minor hockey grooming in Saanich ranks. Two years ago, at 17, he got a chance to play junior hockey with North Battleford in the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Last year, he started the season with Penticton of the B.C. Junior League and, while sitting out a 13-game suspension imposed by the league, was traded to Nanaimo Clippers.

"I can't for the life of me figure out why Penticton didn't keep him," said Nanaimo coach Larry McNabb. "I'll tell you, he put a lot of spirit into our team."

Clavette finished the season with 17 goals but sat out a total of 20 games through suspensions.

Clavette was one of the 25 players retained by Shupe after the last major cut Thursday. The list includes 12 holdovers, including overage goalie Steve Amiss.

Cougars move into their exhibition schedule tonight in Lake Cowichan, starting at 8, by meeting the Memorial Cup champion New Westminster Bruins.

The Bruins have already launched their exhibition schedule and indicated they again may be the power in the Western Division by winning their first three games.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has confirmed New Westminster, strengthened by six additional players, will represent Canada at the junior world championships in Sweden in December.

Governors Reject Murdoch's Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League board of governors Thursday rejected an appeal by New York Rangers right winger Don Murdoch against his season-long suspension.

NHL president John Ziegler last July suspended Murdoch for the 1978-79 season because of his guilty plea last April in Brampton, Ont., on a charge of possession of a small amount of cocaine.

The NHL suspension allowed for a mid-season appeal by the Rangers to commute the sentence to only half the season provided Murdoch maintained good behavior.

Lawyers for both Murdoch and the Rangers presented appeals at the governors' meeting.

Gil Stein, NHL vice-president legal counsel, told reporters after the meeting: "At the conclusion of the appeal, the governors voted and approved the order of Mr. Ziegler and confirmed as well the penalty that was imposed."

SOCCER VIKINGS AWAY

University of Victoria Vikings open play in the newly-formed Canada West University Soccer League with two away matches at the weekend.

Vikings face University of Alberta and University of Calgary in Saturday and Sunday tussles.

A change has been made in the playoff format to decide a Canada West champion to play in the Canadian final this season.

Previously, the title was decided in a single tournament. Under the new setup, the five league teams will each play a home and home series to decide the western representative for the mational tournament in Montreal during November.

University of British Columbia and the University of Saskatchewan are the other two league entries.

Four teams from the Vancouver Island League, meanwhile, will be embroiled in McGavin Cup action this weekend.

Oak Bay and Duncan clash at 2:15 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park and Victoria Athletics visit Nanaimo United on Sunday.

Bouton Fires Back At Critics

By The Associated Press

Jim Bouton's Ball Four made a lot of people mad when it was a best-seller in the 1960s, but some got even madder when he was promoted to the major leagues earlier this month.

Manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati Reds, for one, protested to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, and outfielder Reggie Smith of Los Angeles Dodgers called it—in so many words—a disgrace.

Now they, among others, may have to reconsider their hasty judgments.

The 39-year-old Bouton showed Thursday that he still had something left in his right arm after an eight-year absence, pitching Atlanta Braves to a 4-1 decision over San Francisco Giants with late relief help.

That silenced some of Bouton's critics, but it certainly didn't silence the ever-loquacious pitcher.

"It's just miraculous!" said Bouton after allowing just three hits and one unearned run in six innings. "It was enough to be back, and now, winning on top of that, well, that's something! What else can I say?"

Then he said plenty.

"It's always nice to silence critics, but it's satisfying to myself . . . I knew I could do it—I didn't know all all summer long that I could pitch in the big leagues. I mean, that was out of the question . . ..

"But once I was up here and on the mound, I knew I pitched well enough to win ball games."

Bouton, of course, made just as many headlines with his Ball Four book as he did with his pitching back in the 1960s. The one-time 20-game winner of New York Yankees had made several aborted comeback tries before sticking with Savannah of the Southern League this season.

He was called up the majors earlier this month by Atlanta owner Ted Turner and was knocked out early in his first start against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Dodgers moved closer to the National League West pennant with a 2-1 victory over Houston Astros; San Diego Padres stopped Cincinnati Reds 8-1; Philadelphia Phillies trimmed Chicago Cubs 11-5; Pittsburgh Pirates defeated St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and New York Mets edged Montreal Expos 7-6.

In the American League, Cleveland Indians nipped Boston Red Sox 4-3; New York Yankees downed Detroit Tigers 4-2; Milwaukee Brewers edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3; Kansas City Royals downed Oakland A's 5-1; California Angels stomped Texas Rangers 16-1; and Chicago White Sox shaded Seattle Mariners 6-5.

Bouton, whose last major league victory was on July 11, 1970, was replaced by reliever Craig Skok at the start of the seventh. Gene Garber relieved in the ninth to record his 24th save of the season.

Numerous Coho Limits From Sooke to Pedder

Numerous limit catches of coho are showing up in waters between Sooke and Pedder Bay and several other spots around Vancouver Island are boasting top-notch catches of salmon.

Vern Exton boated the top limit catch of the week with four weighing between 8:02 and 14:08 pounds. He landed the quartet Wednesday while trolling a blue and white Squirt off Secretary Island.

A few jacks are turning up among the coho off both Secretary and the Sooke bluffs. Trollers using strip or white (or green and white) hootchies are connecting and anyone casting a Stingsilda near a herring ball-up is almost sure of a catch.

Most of the limit catches of coho run between five to 10 pounds. They're biting on just about everything at all depths between Church and Secretary.

Both the Race and the Pedder kelp bed are yielding a fifty-fifty mixture of chinooks and coho.

A fair number of coho — topping off at 14 pounds — have been grabbing Silver Harvest needlefish trolled behind a Hot Spot dodger. Both chinooks and coho have come in on drift-fishing lures such as the Buzz-Bomb, Pirken or Stingsilda.

"Not too bad" was the word from Oak Bay, where fishermen have landed chinooks to 10 pounds and a few coho to seven on strip, anchovies or Buzz-Bombs near Chain Islands.

Sidney action has been slow but chinooks to 15 pounds and coho to 9½ are forming a good return off Wain Rock using 150 feet of line, two pounds of weight and strip, Krippled-Ks, Tom Macks or hootchies.

McKenzie Bay, Coles Bay and Bamberton are producing chinooks to 23 pounds the odd coho to seven, mainly on hootchies and strip.

Everything seems to be working in Finlayson Arm to catch chinooks to 25 pounds and a few coho to 10.

Further up-Island, "feeder" chinooks to about eight pounds and a few coho are reported at Bold Bluff, Coffin Point and Porlier Pass with best results noted right at dusk.

Wednesday night was the turning point for fishermen at Nanaimo, who've been suffering through a slack time during the past few weeks. Limit catches of coho to six pounds started showing off Five Fingers for trollers, moochers and strip-casters.

A few chinooks to 17 pounds are also showing off Hudson Rock and strip-casters are still picking up good catches of coho off Northwest Bay and Lasqueti Island.

Fishermen are landing chinooks to 40 pounds right close to the Port Alberni in Alberni Inlet and others are picking up small coho off Bamfield.

Coho are getting a little more selective in their feeding habits near Courtenay but a few nice catches to 10 pounds are turning up off Bates Beach and the south end of Hornby Island on drift-fishing gear.

"Terrific" catches of coho to 12 pounds have been landed in most favorite spots off Campbell River. Trolling with strip, mooching with a four-inch herring close to the bottom and bucktailing have all been productive.

A few chinooks in the 40 to 50-pound supply a little added spice to the action.

Oilers Earn Draw

OREBRO, Sweden (CP) — Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association opened an exhibition tour of Europe Thursday with a 3-3 tie against Orebro, a member of the Swedish Elite Division.

Rookies Ron Carter and Dave Hunter and veteran Ron Chipperfield shared the scoring for the Oilers, who outshot Orebro 37-33 and served 13 penalties to four for the Swedish team.

Scoring for Orebro were Kent Grufman, Bjorn Johansson and Rolf Ericsson.

The Oilers were two men short when Johansson scored. One of the Edmonton penalties was a five-minute elbowing call against defenceman Claire Alexander, who also drew three minors.

LEE SIGNS WITH HAWKS

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Hawks have announced the signing of No. 1 draft choice Butch Lee from Marquette to a multi-year National Basketball Association contract.

Lee, an all-American guard, was the No. 2 all-time scorer in Marquette history with 1,735 points.

CANUCKS SELL MONAHAN TO MAPLE LEAFS

Gordie to Play Again

Times News Services

Nearly 20 years separate them. Gordie Howe is 50, and Larry Pleau, his team-mate with New England Whalers is 31.

On Thursday, the World Hockey Association club announced that the invincible Howe would be returning for his 31st pro season.

Jack Kelley, the Whalers' director of hockey operations, told a news conference that the man "who is definitely always there when the puck is dropped" would skate once more for the Whalers.

"Why should I stop at 50 when the game has been so much fun," said Howe, who will report to the Whalers' camp this Sunday and begin workouts next week as the squad enters its seventh season.

In Vancouver, forward Garry Monahan was sold to Toronto Maple Leafs by Vancouver Canucks for an undisclosed price.

"There is a logjam at centre and, rather than send Garry to the minors, we sent him back to his home town," said general manager Jake Milford.

Vancouver has eight centres on its roster, with training camp beginning Sunday at Courtenay.

Floyd Curry and Ron Caron, assistant general managers under Pollock, assume the positions of director of sales and advertising and director of player recruitment respectively.

Howard Grundman, son of Irving Grundman, has been appointed director of marketing. The elder Grundman assumed the dual role as vice-president and managing director of the club and the Forum in last week's change.

In Toronto, Torrence Wylie, a former secretary to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, was appointed as the new chairman of Hockey Canada, replacing Douglas Fisher who resigned the post.

The board also approved the appointent of three new directors: Mr. Justice Willard Estey of the Supreme Court of Canada; Lou Lefaive, director of Sports Canada and Pierre Cote of Quebec City.

The National Hockey League's international committee announced that each NHL member will contribute at least one player to a squad of "future stars" entering the Dec. 16-21 Izvestia tournament in Moscow.

Alan Eagleson said a committee composed of Cliff Fletcher of Atlanta Flames, Harry Sinden of Boston Bruins, Al MacNeil of Montreal Canadiens and the presidents of the Central and American hockey leagues will, along with the coaching staff, determine personnel for the Izvestia squad.

In St. Catharines, Ont., Don Edwards, who won more games and played more minutes during the 1977-78 season than any other National Hockey League goaltender, signed a multi-year contract with Buffalo Sabres.

Canoe Novices, Veterans Prepare for Big Weekend

This is the weekend for the annual canoe races of the Victoria Canoe Club which are open to all paddlers and can be relied upon to draw a goodly number of both contestants and spectators.

Racing on both Saturday and Sunday begins at noon but contestants should arrive early to register and pick up their copies of rules and course maps.

Saturday's racing will start at Craigflower Park on the corner of Gorge and Admirals while Sunday's events get under way at Thetis Lake Park near the upper parking lot.

There will be no entrance fee for the first race on Saturday, which will be a novice class event for anybody who has never before placed first, second or third in a race.

Fees for other contestants will be $6. This covers any event in the two days of racing and a salmon barbecue on Saturday evening, scheduled to begin at 5 p.m., immediately after the racing is finished. The barbecue, always a popular event, will be held at the gravel pit on the southwestern end of the Esquimalt Lagoon Beach.

After the novice race on Saturday there will be a four-mile test for Voyageurs. This will be followed by a men's standard 10-miler and a two-mile race for women. Then there will be a spectacular 10-miler for 3/27's racing canoes.

Things start off on Sunday with a race of about four miles for mixed partners, followed by the ever-popular centennial sprint in which the younger partner has to be 40 years or older. This will be followed by a one-mile solo sprint, the day ending with jousting, gunwhale running and slalom.

The salmon barbecue on Saturday is open to anyone who wants to join in. There will be a charge of $3 per person for supper or $6 for a family (excluding children that are 13 or over).

Persons taking part in the racing should give the race chairman Stan Luzzi a ring if they need equipment, a canoe partner or additional information.

While the British sailors from the Royal Navy ships who took part in the Inner Tube Race last weekend had plenty of fun but didn't exactly distinguish themselves, some of their buddies were showing the flag more effectively in Esquimalt Harbor last Saturday.

At the invitation of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, they took part in two races, competing against the squadron for the Albion Cup. The British won the cup, which was donated two years ago for competition between the Royal Navy and the CFSA's forerunner — the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association.

In dinghy racing last Sunday, Rich Lloyd and John Ganton beat out the rest of the squadron's Laser sailors while the top Fireball skippers were Maurice Robinson and Ed Paul. P. Holston won in 420s.

There will be series racing again for dinghy sailors on Sunday, starting at 1 p.m. Cruising class boats will also have series racing, beginning at 10 a.m.

Frostbite sailors of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club begin their fall and winter series this weekend. The first race begins in Cadboro Bay at 1:30 p.m.

The Catalina 27 fleet has its single-handed race set for the same day.

The club has two races slated for Sunday for cruising class boats with either International Offshore Rule or Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet handicaps. A 22-mile race to Race Rocks and back will be for boats equipped to Category II standards while Category III boats, such as Cal 20s and Thunderbirds, will sail a 14-mile course to the navy's degaussing buoy and back.

A fleet of 36 boats took part in last Sunday's 16:75 mile race for the Thermopylae Cup, which was won by Frank Rhodes' Summer Wine. After her in over-all positions came Don Wilson's Menehune, Jack Trueman's L'Chaiim, Paul Longridge's Saga and Jan Olsen's Discretion.

In Division I it was Summer Wine, followed by Menehune amd Saga. Top Division II boats were L'Chaiim, Gerry Porter's Sunshine 12 and Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream. Heading Division III were Bob Haines' Barracouta II, Bruce Claver's Wings and B. Dean's Libra. Top Division IV boats were Paul Jensen's Dania and Ed Haines' Lotte.

NEW JERSEY PURSUING MR. WALTON

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Bill Walton, the National Basketball Association's most valuable player, is being actively pursued by New Jersey Nets, Charlie Theokas, the club's general manager, said Thursday.

Theokas said Walton was in contact with the Nets last week and left the door open to signing with the team.

Walton, who led Portland Trail Blazers to the NBA title a year ago, has asked to be traded. He has expressed a preference for going to Golden State Warriors, but no trade has been made as yet.

Evergreen Earns Layoff

DETROIT (CP) — Evergreen, from the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, has been given until Sunday to effect repairs and be ready to continue her challenge for the Canada's Cup.

The Canadian representative in the yachting series hit bottom Wednesday during the third race of the best-of-seven-point series against Agape, the American defender from Bayview Yacht Club in Detroit.

She sheared 18 inches off the bottom of her daggerboard and a six-inch tip off hee rudder in the mishap that came on the first leg of a 75- to 100-mile middle-distance test run in winds gusting to 35 knots and seas rolling with six- to eight-foot waves on shallow Lake St. Clair. Evergreen was forced to drop out after rounding the third mark.

Agape, skippered by owner Terry Kohler of Sheboygan, Wis., completed the course for her first win in the series that now stands at 2-1 in Evergreen's favor.

Don Green, owner-skipper of Evergreen, had asked for a layover until Monday. The daggerboard and rudder were sent back to a shop in Bronte, Ont., for repairs.

The three-man race jury said logistics made it impossible to delay, until Monday, the 150- to 200-mile, overnight long-distance race that will be run on Lake Huron.

Green had also loged a dual protest over the middle-distance race, charging it was started in what he called "vicious" conditions and run in unsafe waters.

British Fight Drug Problem

LONDON (Reuter) — British sports authorities may call for a boycott of international events—including the Olympic Games—unless drug-taking in sport is stamped out.

The new tough line follows reports that children aged 12 and 13 are taking drugs in Britain to improve their performances.

Peter Lawson, general secretary of the central council of physical recreation, said Thursday: "This is a frightening development and we are ready to take a lead in clamping down on drugs."

The council is to draw up a "drugs charter," setting out which should be prohibited and measures which can be taken to eradicate their use. The council will also ask the British government for money to finance random drug tests at all levels of sport and ask other countries to follow their example.

"If we find that other countries are not taking positive action we will call another meeting to discuss a boycott of events right up to Olympic level," Lawson said. "Unless other countries follow our lead they could find themselves out in the cold."

The growing problem of drug-taking in athletics has been the subject of two letters in the Guardian newspaper in the last few days, and Britain's top shot putter, Geoff Capes, threatened to boycott the recent European championships in Prague as a protest against the misuse of drugs.

British Olympic coach Tom McNab suggested that Britain should boycott track and field events involving teams suspected of using banned drugs.

But Arthur Gold, British president of the European Athletic Association, dismissed this suggestion, saying "for any national federation to withdraw from international competition would be a cowardly acceptance of moral defeat." He called for a big effort to improve testing procedures.

The central council of physical recreation is having discussions with the West German, Norwegian, Swedish, American, Dutch, Australian and Soviet Union sports federations about strengthening international action against drugs in sport.

"Britain is determined to give a lead in the eradication of the drugs menace in sport," Lawson added. "We do not wish to see sport as a competition between chemists. I believe others will follow our lead."

MUNSON'S HEADACHES STILL A MYSTERY

DETROIT (AP) — Catcher Thurman Munson was examined Thursday at Henry Ford Hospital, but doctors were unable to discover the cause of the headaches which forced the New York Yankees veteran to leave Wednesday's American League baseball game with Detroit Tigers. Everything turned up normal despite a thorough examination, a Yankees spokesman said.

Cosmos Squeak By On Chinaglia's Goal

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — Giorgio Chinaglia scored the winning goal as New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League came from behind to edge Brescia, a second division Italian team, 2-1 in an exhibition match Thursday. Brescia forward Mariani gave the Italians a 1-0 lead in the 10th minute, but the Cosmos tied it in the 48th minute on a goal by Dennis Tueart. Chinaglia scored in the 75th minute. Cosmos, who dropped a 7-1 decision Tuesday to Bayern Munich in the first game of their European tour, play VFB Stuttgart of West Germany next week.

SEPTEMBER SPECIALS!

Brian McLean Talks About "Rolling Model Change"

What is "Rolling Model Change"? It is a term used by the automobile industry whereby the manufacturers build their current 1978 models up to a Friday and on the following Monday, the new 1979 models will be rolling off the line. There will be minor cosmetic changes, of course, but the styling on most of the cars remains unchanged. This Rolling Model Change is one of the many reasons why September is the time for the intelligent buyer to buy and take advantage of:

Our Stocking Problem
We have over 180 1978 cars and trucks in stock and all of them have been substantially reduced. They must be sold to make space for the '79s.

Price Increases
General Motors have announced an average price increase of approximately 5% for 1979 models. (Some have increased as high as 10.5%.) Get a double saving — buy a 1978 at a price reduction and save on price increases.

Best Selection and Prices
Come early for best selection of 1978 models for colors, options, prices, etc. (Our salesmen have been instructed to present any reasonable offer.) The longer you wait the less you have to choose from. Remember, the intelligent buyer buys in September.

Green Hit The Ball, Caddy Said Where

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Hubert Green and Shayne Grier teamed for a withering eight-under-par 62 Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Texas Open.

Green, the golfer who had never played the course, did all the work. Grier, the caddy, just told him where to hit it.

Taking advantage of soft greens on the rain-soaked Oak Hills Country Club course, Green reeled off eight birdies to overhaul Lou Graham and take a one-stroke lead.

Green, who never has played in a Texas Open, arrived in San Antonio on Tuesday night, intending to use Wednesday's pro-am as a practice round.

The pro-am, however, was washed out when more than four inches of rain fell in a two-hour period Wednesday, flooding some portions of the 6,525-yard course.

"I walked enough of the course to at least know where the holes were," Green said after Thursday's round. "It's the first time I've seen it. I'll never like the course as much as I liked it today."

Fortunately, Grier had arrived earlier and charted the course for his boss. "He had the course set up and measured," said Green.

Forrest Fezler, playing with a mongrel set of new and borrowed clubs after his were stolen in a New York airport several weeks ago, was in third at 64.

Unknown Goes Five Under Par

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Martha Nause, an unknown of the tour, posted eight birdies Thursday and finished with a five-under-par 68 to take the lead after the opening round in a $100,000 LPGA tour event.

"It's the best start I've ever had in a tournament," Nause said about her rookie season. "It's only the second time in my life I've broken par."

Nause went into the tournament ranked 101st on the LPGA money-winning list, with her best finish a tie for 28th in last week's tournament in Denver.

Nause holds a two-stroke lead over five players bunched at 70—defending champion Jane Blalock, Sharon Miller, Cathy McMullen, Vivian Brownlee and Sally Little.

Susan O'Connor is at 71 followed by Donna Caponi Young and Betty Burfeindt at 72.

Dale Shaw of Sidney shot a 78.

$126,000 TEST FOR COLLEGE

The education ministry has chosen Camosun College to take charge of a $126,000 project to develop programs for multi-handicapped adults.

Council Thursday approved a request from the education ministry that it oversee a project to develop a curriculum of basic education studies for handicapped B.C. residents.

The college's activities will include:

Acting as a consultant to a provincial committee preparing a report on adult basic education for the handicapped.

Developing and testing a curriculum and teaching method to train instructorsworking with the multi-handicapped.

Teaching professionals how to use instructional aides and developing ways to deliver education to the handicapped.

Camosun Defies Ministry

Council refused to endorse the document which was completed hastily at the insistence of the ministry.

Councillor Pete Dorazio said today the consequences of not complying with McGeer's request will be discussed at a special meeting later this month.

The council will talk about the college's direction and operating budget during the next five years, he said.

But at this point, council has no plans to submit a five-year forecast, Dorazio said.

McGeer has demanded all school districts and colleges in B.C. submit the projections this month. So far, only Greater Victoria School District has refused.

Five city trustees are members of the college council.

Dorazio, also a trustee, was the first councillor at the meeting to denounce the budget forecast.

He called the document meaningless, and was supported by college principal Grant Fisher.

Fisher said the minister's request took college administrators by surprise and they had no time to develop an accurate document.

"It (the five-year forecast) doesn't accurately reflect the latest thinking of council members."

The college is playing games with the ministry because the forecast is meaningless beyond two years, Fisher said.

The forecast was called a futile exercise by chairman Janet Baird.

But she said direct refusal to comply with the request might jeopardize council's position when it came to collecting funds from the ministry.

"I agree with the council as far as the validity of what we are producing, but maybe it's better than nothing," she said.

Councillor Bill Mann said McGeer had been on the phone Tuesday asking for the forecast.

Dorazio said the council would be negligent submitting figures that weren't accurate because the ministry is using the projections as the basis for long-term plans for B.C. colleges.

Fisher said it would take at least three months to do a good job on the projections.

But he said the administration doesn't have that kind of time because it will be heavily involved preparing the college's 1979 budget due in December.

He said the hardest task would be to accurately predict inflation factors over the next five years.

Books on Alberta Ring True

Eugenie Louise (Butler) Myles

Eugenie Louis Butler's parents came to the northwestern part of Canada before Alberta was a province.

She was born and educated in Edmonton and took her MA degree in English at the University of Alberta.

It was in Edmonton, too, that she met and married Ernest A. Myles, that their two children, Terence (now a neurosurgeon in Calgary) and Eileen (a librarian living in England) were born and grew up.

It was also there for several years that Eugenie Louise Myles was women's editor of the Edmonton Journal and taught part-time at the University of Alberta.

In the span of those Edmonton years, she met many of the pioneers, not only of that city but of the great country to the north.

She heard their stories and she became convinced those stories should be recorded and saved for future generations.

She joined the City of Edmonton Archives and Landmarks committee and helped with its work. She also took on the responsibility of assistant editor to Alberta Jubilee Anthology and contributed to it many of the histories she had gathered and preserved.

She also started to write books based on the experiences of Alberta pioneers, and these have been praised for their authenticity and their readable style.

One of the latest, Airborn from Edmonton, a story about the famous bush pilots, was published in 1977 when the Edmonton Flying Club was celebrating its 50th anniversary. And that club gave her an honorary membership as a mark of appreciation.

Now the Historical Board of the City of Edmonton is planning to honor her.

On Sept. 28, with 11 other men and women equally as dedicated in various spheres of research, Mrs. Myles will receive a presentation for helping "to preserve the history of the Edmonton area."

Other books she has authored include North Pole Boarding House: Remember Nurse (republished in England as Nurse Among the Eskimos); The Little Cayuse (a juvenile novel set in Alberta that sold some 2,000 copies up to Christmas last year) and The Emperor of Peace River.

This last-named book is the story of Juey (Julia) Scott and Sheridan Lawrence (later known as the Emperor of the Peace), as children, teen-agers, lovers and man and wife.

It is also the story of the Hudson's Bay Company and the mighty Peace River.

Eugenie Myles writes that it was pioneer country when the Henry Lawrence family of Ontario and the family of Rev. Malcolm Scott from Manitoba completed a trek of 3,000 miles — their destination Fort Vermilion in northern Alberta.

She follows the lives of the two families, and especially of Juey and Sheridan.

In doing so, she presents us (as one reader has said) "with a story of courage, determination and unfailing faith of these brave folk who opened up that part of Canada now known as the great Peace River."

Sheridan Lawrence and his heroic wife Juey had a family of seven sons and eight daughters.

In those long-ago frontier days the father was a leader in fur trading, milling, freighting, meat packing, looking after an elementary school, running a general store and building roads.

It's all there in the Myles book — the history of the development of that Peace River region.

Lawrence died in 1952, leaving his wife in an attractive little cottage in Peace River Town, where they had retired some 15 years before.

In doing research for the book Mrs. Myles met Joey Lawrence when she was staying with a daughter in Edmonton, only a short distance from the Myles home.

She also visited her in Peace River Town and stayed with her there for a time.

This year The Emperor of Peace River has been reprinted in paperback form by Western Prairie Books Producers of Saskatoon. It should be available now in bookstores.

Look for it. I'll wager you will find it the truest and most stimulating portrayal of early days in the Peace River country you've ever read.

Postscript — In 1965, soon after Emperor of Peace River was completed, Ernest Myles retired and he and Mrs. Myles came to Victoria to make a new home.

Within months they found what Eugenie says was "the house of our dreams" — a cottage-style house surrounded by trees and with a well-started garden — at 1200 Tattersal Dr.

She immediately joined the English department at the University of Victoria where she lectured for the next six years.

Since then her main interests have centred around that garden on Tattersal Drive and her typewriter, where she continues to record the stories of Alberta pioneers.

BACK ON TRACK OF HONESTY

CLOQUET, Minn. (AP) — His conscience troubled him, so a man who stole railway ties from an apartment garden in this northern Minnesota town decided to get back on the right track.

Carleton County Sheriff Terry Twomey said his deputies saw the ties in a pickup truck and questioned the man, who said he had bought the ties from a friend.

But the man had a change of heart the next day and called the sheriff to say he felt terrible about stealing them and then lying. He returned the ties and then asked to apologize to the deputies.

The man, whose identity was not disclosed, will not be prosecuted, the sheriff said, adding: "It's heartwarming to know there are some people left with an active conscience."

CREAMY FRUIT SALAD

- 3 fresh peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
- 3 fresh pears, pared, cored and sliced
- 1½ cups watermelon, cubed
- 1 pint blueberries, washed and tailed
- 1 pint strawberries, washed and tailed
- 1 pint raspberries, washed

Peaches can be peeled by plunging fruit into boiling water for 1-2 minutes and then into cold water; skin will slip off easily. Brush pears with lemon juice to prevent browing. Arrange fruit attractively on a serving plate or tray. Decorate with Mock Devonshire Cream. Serves 8-10.

World's Biggest Bash in Munich

Imagine organizing a party for five million guests. That's what the city of Munich does each fall for Oktoberfest.

Obviously, the first step is laying in enormous quantities of supplies. The record year of 1975, for instance, those guests consumed nearly 1.2 million gallons of beer, 33,000 bottles of wine and 11,000 litres of schnapps.

And that was just to wash down one million roast chickens, over 1,100,000 sausages, 50,000 shashlik, 34,000 ham hocks and 38 whole oxen roasted on a spit. Is it any wonder it's been known for years as the biggest party in the world?

This year's festivities kick off at 11 a.m. Saturday with a parade of brewery wagons and innkeepers to the fairgrounds.

Then, at Theresienwiese, Munich's annual Oktoberfest grounds, the party gets under way inside seven immense tents. Each tent is owned and operated by one of Munich's breweries and can hold up to 6,000 people. In the past it has been suggested that September-berfest might be a more appropriate name; however, the people of Munich claim that logic and Oktoberfest have never been the closest of kin. This year, the celebration will continue for 16 nights until Sunday, Oct. 1.

The Germans have always considered beer to be a form of liquid bread, so it's no surprise that one of the favorite pastimes even in non-festival times is visiting the various Bavarian beer gardens. With 40 per cent of Munich's population under the age of 30 (over 60,000 students live within the city) the gardens have proved to be one of the popular places for them to gather. One of the advantages offered by this type of establishment is that you don't have to cut into your entertainment money to buy food. In many gardens it's quite customary to bring your own. And if you don't there are always sausages for sale from small wooden stalls at a reasonable price.

Schwabing is the favorite district of Munich for young people and students. Situated near the university, it's the area to visit for reasonably priced food and fun in the evenings. The discotheques and cafes of the area are popular year round, or you can stroll along Leopoldstrasse and watch the local artists at work. The evening I spent in Schwabing, a local theatre group, sponsored by the city, was performing a modern ballet on the street.

Without a doubt the Hofbrauhaus is the most popular beer house for young visitors and because of this popularity the local people now frequent it. So if you want to experience the original flavor, plan on getting there before the crowd. Take a look at the beer mugs on the wall. The regular customers each have their own, which are stored for them to use each time they visit. Since it is located in the centre of the city you will have no problem finding it.

To stretch your money when buying food one of the best bets is the stand-up delis. Contrary to he operation of our snack bars, in Munich the price is always less if you stand. There are also stores that just sell coffee, by the pound or the cup, and these are the best places to stop for an inexpensive drink of the brew.

For the visitor Munich's transportation system is confusing, to say the least. Trying to figure out how to buy the correct ticket from a machine when the directions are in German can prove so frustrating that at times it almost seems easier to take your chances and board without one since they work on a honor system. But if the idea seems attractive, remember it can turn out to be a pretty expensive ride. The transportation system does carry out spot checks. To avoid hassles it's easier and often less expensive to purchase a 24-hour transit pass.

There are two tupes available: the five-mark pass is valid for any intercity travel; the nine-mark one covers the whole transport system. The passes can be purchased from ticket kiosks around the city; before you begin using it you must sign it and cancel in in one of the blue cancelling machines. But whether you use a pass or pay as you go, it would be advisable to drop into one of the tourist offices and pick up an English copy of Rendezvous with Munich. It's a guide to the city transport system with explanations of fares and maps.

The Olympic Park is easily accessible by public transportation and well worth a visit. If the weather is still warm, you might consider carrying your bathing suit with you.

The least expensive place to stay is the Yough Camp at Kapuzinerholzl. You reach it by taking train number 21 from the main railway station (North) to Botanischer Garten. You better like crowds, though. For a grand price of three marks a night, you get to sleep in a tent with 400 other people. The camp opens at 5 p.m. and you must be out by 10 a.m. Free tea is served before you depart and there is usually someone there all day if you want to drop your things off. You're not supposed to pitch your own tents on the grounds, yet during my stay several miraculously appeared in the middle of the night.

Munich area has several campgrounds and the tourist offices will direct you. Munchen-Thalkirchen, at Zenrallandstr 39, 8 Munchen 70, is open from the first of March until the end of October. Tel. 7 23 17 07. Here are also two others you can try — Munchen-Obermenzing, Lochhausener St. 59, 8 Munchen 60, Tel. 8 11 22, 35, or Lanwieder See, Eschenrieder St. 119, 8 Muncheon 60, Tel. 8 1 15 66.

Youth hotels and youth hostels are also available within easy reach of the centre of the city. I tried Haus International at Elisabethstr. 87, 8 Munchen 40, Tel. 18 50 81. With my youth card I was able to get a small reduction with three other Canadian girls. Included was breakfast, use of the swimming pool and use of a bar in the hotel. There was no curfew.

The Munich Tourist Board is perparing a special English edition of their youth guide to the city. It's at the presses at the moment and should be in the tourist board offices in the next few weeks.

To pick up a copy or get information and help with accommodation you can go to the front of the main railway station between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. or Tel. 0 89 23 91 256. The phone number of the other office at the airport arrivals hall is 089 2391266. It is open between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. every day except Sunday, when it is open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful 18-year-old grandson I'll call Sonny, who is going to marry an 18-year-old girl he's known two months.

Sonny was graduated from high school with honors, and got a job right away as an apprentice with a good company. They are sending him to school two mights a week. He makes good wages.

The girl he's marrying had a baby four months ago by a man who skipped the state. She and her baby are living with her parents. Sonny had dated her only a few times when he asked her to marry him. Her people grabbed on to him fast, hired a hall and made plans for the wedding which is coming off in two weeks.

My grandson never smoked, drank or messed with girls. He is an inexperienced kid, and I think he's being taken advantage of.

How can I break them up? Not forever, but just long enough for Sonny to get to know the girl better? It's all happening too fast.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Where are Sonny's parents? If he has none, and you are looking after him, enlist the help of a minister, doctor, or a trusted friend to help the boy realize the importance of a marriage commitment. (If Sonny has parents, they should guide him. If he's not being taken advantage of — and sincerely loves the girl — accept her, and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: I kept my mother in my home for nine years. She is senile, babbles endlessly and messes the floor, her clothes, and her bed regularly. What a chore.

When I told my sisters and brothers, who all live out of town, that I wanted to put Mom in a nursing home, you should have heard the howl.

They reminded me of how mother took care of me when I was a helpless baby, now it was my turn to take care of her.

It's easy to get a baby sitter, but just try to get someone to stay with an old person. Even relatives won't help.

So I went out and found the cleanest nursing home I could afford and took my mother there. I said goodbye with tears in my eyes to someone who didn't even know me.

Then I went home and started being a wife and mother again. I thanked my husband for his willingness to pay for the care of my mother. (It's not cheap.)

Then the letters started to come from my brothers and sisters who had never kept Mom in their homes for one day. They said. "YOU put Mom in a nursing home. How could you?"

I don't need an answer, Abby. I know I did the right thing. I just had to get this off my chest. If you print this, I'll carry it in my wallet forever.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I'm 15 years old, my parents are separated and my six brothers and sisters are supported by my mother. She is an alcoholic, who has been sober for over a year now through the help of Alcoholics Anonymous.

I'm left with scars and fears from my experience, but I'm learning to cope with her addiction through the help of a program called Alateen sponsored by Alcoholics Anonymous. For those kids who live with the problem of alcoholism, running away doesn't work. I know. Through this program you may eventually be able to love your alcoholic parent, though it may seem impossible now. And remember you're not alone.

ANSWER: I am sure that your personal experience and the fact that you have been able to cope with it will help give others in the similar situation some hope. Though you may feel that you have scars left from the events in your life, it has also given you the ability to care for others, to understand difficult situations, and an ability to like people in spite of their problems.

Dear Dr. Powell: I am 13 going on 14. I'm about five feet five inches and I weigh 130 pounds. I have large bones and a lot of muscle but I think I am too fat. All my friends say I'm not, but I'm the one who sees me the most and I know I have a weight problem. Every time I try to diet I just eat and eat. Do chemical weight loss programs really work? Would it affect my health? Can you suggest the safest method and tell me where to get it?

ANSWER: I do not know exactly what type of chemical weight loss diet you are referring to, as a chemical weight loser. If you want to lose weight there is only one way — to change your eating habits.

The best way to do this is look at what you eat and when you eat. Keep a diary of everything you eat. Then look at it and discover exactly what your habits are. Your school nurse will help you find a good diet.

After you see what is in your diary begin your new life with food by cutting out all junk food. Junk food is described as food with empty calories without protein, vitamins or minerals. This includes soft drinks, candy and other types of snacks people get in the habit of eating, just for eating's sake.

Dear Dr. Cotter: I am a 16-year-old girl. My parents won't let me go out even with my girlfriends. I don't smoke or drink and have never done anything bad. I think that I should be given a little freedom.

I am fairly attractive and popular with boys. About four of them asked me to go around with them but when I tell them about my parents, they say don't tell them and we'll see each other privately. I still turn them down because I would feel real quilty.

A guy I like a lot has asked me out about seven times and he's kissed me goodby a couple of times. I am desperate to go out with this guy. What should I do? I have tried to talk it over with my parents three times and I even got his parents to try, but it is useless.

ANSWER: I think your parents are lucky to have a daughter who wants to be honest with them. It would be very easy to deceive them. So you should show them this letter, which I am answering as much for them as for you.

I don't know what their reason is. I am assuming that you have not withheld information about yourself from me in your letter. If they are doing this on "religious" grounds, and this religion is some kind of Christianity, then they are completely wrong. The example of Christ is that life is to be lived and we are to get involved in life and that involves taking risks. Christ's mother risked being called a whore when she accepted what the angel told her. So, if they are afraid for your moral safety, they have no religious grounds for doing so.

If they are afraid for your physical safety they are doing you no favor by keeping you from the experience of having to look after yourself. They would do better to send you to karate or judo and let you be taken out by boys.

They are probably acting because they did something they should not have when they were your age. They must face up to the world you live in. If they don't want a serious break with you they had better smarten up. It is clear that you respect their wishes, even if their wishes are excessive; I hope you love them, and will go on doing so even if you have to defy them.

Paris Goes Casual

PARIS (AP) — If one Paris designer has his way, the businessman's grey flannel suit will change next summer to pegged trousers, a vest and a golf jacket.

Or the trendy executive may dig in the attic to find grandfather's wing collars, which, with a short, wide tie, sets off a conventional but brilliant white suit from another leading stylist.

Generally, designers featured at the Paris mens' ready-to-wear shows just ended opted for narrow or pegged trousers, and soft, even rumpled, fabrics.

Paris designers want to become an influence to compete with the long domination of London, New York and California, and the ready-to-wear exhibition here is growing yearly.

Nearly 30,000 buyers and press visited last week's menswear salon. French menswear exports to the United States in 1977 rose to more than $18.5 million from about $16 million.

"Paris is projecting a new feeling of enthusiasm and attraction in men's clothes," said Roger Cohen, head merchandiser at Barney's in New York, which claims to be the biggest men's store under one roof in America. He likes the colors and the new casual cut of Paris men's clothes.

Striking color combinations were shown in the Lanvin collection, designed by Patrick Lavoix. In bermuda shorts, blouson jackets and terrycloth beach robes, the solid combinations of sea blues and turquoise matched the Caribbean atmosphere of the show.

The more formal Lanvin suits, which featured the wing collars on striped shirts, were slightly fitted at the waist, double-breasted, and elegant enough for Bernard Lanvin himself, a jet-set Paris dandy.

Narrowed pants were shown with narrow-lapel jackets that often had pushed-up sleeves, some in linen, and — for evening — even satin chintz. The colors were soft and unconventional.

AFTERNOON AND EVENING CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING

Joseph Egoyan

Once again the fascinating study of interior decorating will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis. These lectures will be held in the store and also supplemented by on-location studies in selected homes including a visit to the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting, styles, theme, drapery and carpet selection and proper use of pictures and accessories.

Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A. ED., your instructor, is well qualified with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate from the Art Institute of Chicago and California College of Arts and Crafts, has taught at Oakland Tech High, Calif., the American College in Cairo and the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years, and Ego Interiors in Victoria for seventeen years. Mr. Egoyan is a qualified artist and has exhibited his art works in a number of one-man shows in the U.A.R. and U.S.A. He won first prize in Vancouver Island Jury Show at the Art Gallery of Victoria, also a one-man show theme "BIRDS" was displayed at The Victoria Provincial Museum, The Burnaby Art Gallery and is now at Ego Interiors.

For the past fourteen years this course in interior decorating has been given by Mr. Egoyan twice yearly in three separate classes each week. At an average of twenty students in each class, more than a thousand students have taken the course to date.

THE CLASSES WILL BE HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOONS FROM 1 TO 2:30 P.M. AND ALSO EVENINGS ON MONDAY OR WEDNESDAY 7:30 TO 9 P.M.

CLASSES START SEPTEMBER 25th, 26th, and 27th AT EGO INTERIORS. TOTAL COST OF FIVE LECTURES ONCE A WEEK, $25.00.

Cholesterol Makes Bad Blood

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I am in a state of utter confusion. Recently, I heard that cholesterol can actually be good for the health. I've always been led to believe that cholesterol is one of the great causes of heart attacks. Has the medical profession changed its mind about this? — Mr. G.T.

Dear Mr. T.:

Your confusion is probably based on information you have read about a substance called "high density lipoprotein." This substance, referred to as HDL, has recently been an area of study by doctors and scientists everywhere.

HDL is only a small fragment of cholesterol. The early studies indicate that HDL can actually play a role in the prevention of some forms of heart attack. The substance has been found to be higher in the bloodstream of people who actively exercise and whose alcohol and tobacco intake is not more than moderate.

The HDL level is definitely lower in people who smoke. It is also thought to be lower in women who take bith control pills. When the diet is low in saturated fats, there seems to be an increase in HDL levels in the blood.

For the time being, you must simply accept the fact that doctors still agree that high cholesterol in the bloodstream is a threat to health. More information will be accumulated before long about a way to increase the HDL fragment without risking the dangers of total cholesterol.

To recap this concept, HDL is a small portion of cholesterol. At the moment, it seems to be beneficial in the bloodstream, but total cholesterol is not.

For years, I've always thought I was anemic, and worried about it. Recently, you wrote that many people like myself have been unnecessarily scared about anemia and "tired blood." I took your advice and finally had my blood checked only to find that it was perfectly normal. I want to express my thanks for lifting this burden off my mind — Mrs. L.I.

Dear Mrs. I.:

Many readers will benefit from your experience. For them, and for you, I want to repeat that anemia is not a disease. When it does exist, it is only a symptom of some underlying condition. Consequently, there is never guesswork about its presence. It is either there or it is not, and there is only one way to find out. That is, by the simple examination of the blood.

Far too many people who are fatigued or who lack energy make their own diagnosis of anemia when, indeed, it does not exist.

Continental Salad

3 cups cooked sliced potatoes
2 lbs. green beans, trimmed and cooked
1 red onion, thinly sliced
3 tomatoes, cut in wedges
½ cup pitted ripe olives
1 2-oz. can anchovy fillets
2 7-oz. cans chunk tuna
2 hard cooked eggs
Lettuce leaves

Pour over just enough dressing of your choice to coat potato slices. Cover and chill. Moisten beans with dressing and chill. Mix potatoes, beans, onion rings, olives, anchovies and tuna. Serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with egg quarters. Makes 4 servings.

Blazers, relaxed, for you to slip into. With pegged trousers — lean as the blazer's big. Forget what mother told you — and reconsider it. It's easy. Relaxed. And exactly what we're after. You'd live in a blazer. In comfort (ah!) and style (wink). Zero in on a blazer and make it yours. It's where you'll be living — what you'll be loving — from this moment on. Push up the sleeves or have them roll; flip up the collar. And furnish your new blazer with a tiny-collared shirt, adding a string tie, wool scarf, lacy hankie, bowtie. Do it! And remember the legs. Narrow, peggish-legged trousers. Fly-fronted, maybe with pleats. With loops. Hung with suspenders. Get the gist? All by Donna Karan and Louis dell'Olio for Anne Klein. Your computerized biorhythm

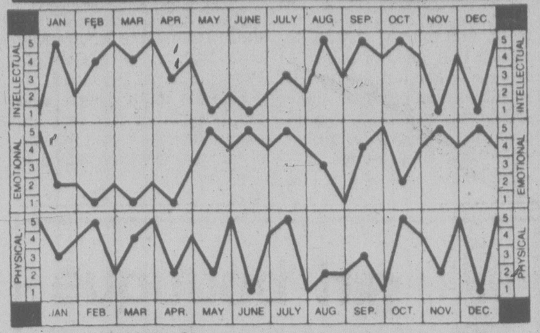
© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	Ever feel like staying in bed all day? Today might just be that day to allow your Bio-dex levels to bounce back.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	Basic needs of food and sleep are important over the next few days. Don't burn the candle at both ends.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Budgets, money and savings are on your mind. Start saving today and you'll get the much wanted item sooner.

When was the last time you told someone dear that you loved them? Too often we think that love is something to be kept private and well-hidden. I disagree. When you next have a high emotional Bio-dex reading, think about today's column. I hope you will follow my advice and say "I love you". They are the three most beautiful words in our language.

PAINLESS DENTISTS: BETTER TOOTH CARE?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fear of dentists should be dealt with through mass education, says Dr. Ralph Green, a research professor at the dental school of Tufts University in Boston.

"As the era of really painless dentistry finally arrives we must make sure people get to know about it on a really broad basis," says Dr. Green.

Dr. Greene was at the annual convention of the Canadian Dental Association to explain to the about 1,200 delegates two new developments toward the realization of painless dentistry.

"Eventually I am quite certain the general status of dental health will improve significantly because people will lose their fear of dentists," Dr. Green said.

He added the progress is not new, it had merely accelerated.

"I graduated from dental school in 1968 and I cannot think of a single dental material I use in my practice now that I used in dental school. They have all gone either through drastic changes or have been replaced by newer, better materials.

"The advance in the field has been huge and the rate of progress has picked up tremendously in recent years."

Dr. Green has been involved in research that has gone into the development of two new processes to be explained at the convention.

The first, a chemical spray, has started to replace dentist's drill in Japan and may be on the North American market within a couple of years. The second process utilizes a relatively new plastic material, a non-irritating polymer that has changed the soft contact lens industry, in the development of a filling material for root canal therapy.

Referring to the new root canal filler developed at Tufts, Dr. Green said the material is not only better than conventional substances, but actually saves the dentist a great amount of time and saves the patient discomfort.

Punch Lines By Liz

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas has injected some humor into Virginia's U.S. Senate race at the expense of actress Elizabeth Taylor's movie career.

Bentsen appeared at a fund raiser on behalf of Democratic candidate Andrew Miller, who is opposed in the Nov. 7 general election by Republican John Warner, the former U.S. Navy secretary and the actress's husband.

"Andy Miller is smooth, but he's running against National Velvet.

"Andy Miller is quick on his feet, but he's running against a Cat On A Hot Tin Roof.

Writers Pick President

SEOUL (AP) — The World Association of Women Journalists and Writers has elected Mary Hirschfeld, a columnist for the Cleveland Plain Dealer Magazine, as the organization's president.

In closing its fourth world congress in the South Korean capital, the association also picked Puerto Rico as the site for its 1980 meeting.

Gov'ts 'timid' With New Drugs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Governments are too timid in approving new drugs, delegates told an international epilepsy symposium.

Speakers said Wednesday that regulatory agencies overreacted to the thalidomide disaster in the early 1960s and, as a result, patients are endangered because they can not get drugs that would help them.

The speakers also said testing is so costly that companies will not develop new drugs unless guaranteed a big market, and so victims of rare diseases are left in the cold.

Dr. J. Kiffin Penry, director of the neurological disorders program at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., said there are times when it is inhumane to follow the government's process in approving a drug.

The issue will be taken up later this week by the executive committee of Epilepsy International, the group which organized the symposium.

Penry, who was also chairman of a special session at the symposium on drug testing, marketing and availabilty, said a good recent example is the drug valproic acid which was approved for use in the United States in February.

He said the drug was tested extensively in other countries for 10 years, and was shown to be effective in controlling epileptic seizures with minimal side effects.

Approval in the U.S. was stalled until a television network showed a documentary critical of the delays. Congress got interested and put pressure on the Food and Drug Administration and two years was shaved off the approval time, said Penry.

Canada followed suit this week, approving the marketing of Depakene, a version of the drug manufactured by Abbott Laboratories.

Dr. Paolo Morselli, director of clinical research laboratories for a French drug company, called thalidomide a false ethical issue because scientific knowledge and safeguards are much improved in the 16 years since the discovery that thalidomide had caused thousands of deformed babies.

He told delegates that because of lack of international co-operation, many studies are duplicated with no gain in information and increased risks to patients participating in the experiments.

He said there is great reluctance to accept foreign research, except in England and Scandinavian countries.

Dr. Henry Dunn, a Vancouver physician who treats epileptic children, said the Canadian Health Protection Branch should actively promote investigation of new drugs, instead of just rejecting or approving them.

He said it costs $10 million to develop a new drug and only the largest companies can afford the expense. The companies concentrate their research on drugs that will have a large market.

Dr. Penry said that regulatory agencies, particularly in the U.S., have become rigid and overprotective.

Humans, especially sick humans, should have the right to take a few small risks to regain their health, he said.

$12M Loan

LUSAKA (AFP) — Zambia and Canada have signed a loan agreement worth about $12.9 million (Canadian) for the construction of a fertilizer and maize storage depot in Zambia, it was announced here today.

Nuclear Lecture

A public lecture by nuclear physics expert Sir Denys Wilkinson will take place Sept. 13 at the University of Victoria.

Wilkinson, vice-chancellor of the University of Sussex, will be speaking on The Atomic Nucleus Today at 2:30 p.m. in room 168 of the Elliot Building.

Natural Gas in Abundance

SEATTLE (AP) — Shortages of natural gas in the United States Northwest are a thing of the past because of abundant supplies in Western Canada, says Albert Porter, executive vice president of Northwest Energy Co.

Not only has active drilling resulted in more gas from Alberta and British Columbia, but gas from Alaska is expected to flow to the region in 1983, through the $11 billion trans-Canada pipeline, said Porter.

Northwest Energy, of Salt Lake City, supplies all natural gas used in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

New contracts for gas from Alberta virtually have eliminated the curtailment of Canadian gas supplies that occurred during recent winters, Porter told the Seattle Society of Financial Analysts on Tuesday.

Cutbacks in gas supplies from Canada amounted to an average 258 million cubic feet a day during the 1975-76 winter, and a year later amounted to an average 203 million cubic feet daily.

CANADA LIKELY TO BAN ADDITIVE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will probably follow the U.S. lead and ban the octane booster and lead susbstitute methylcyclopentadienyl manganese tricarbonyl (MMT), a spokesman for the environment department said Thursday

The U.S. environmental protection agency has banned addition of the compound to gasoline after today because it says there is evidence it increases hydrocarbon emissions and fouls catalytic converters.

"We will review the environmental protection agency's decision," the federal spokesman said. "And it seems we will soon institute a ban similar to that in the States."

The ban would be made under The Canada Clean Air Act after consultations with the federal health department. The spokesman could not estimate when the ban could come.

Industry sources in the U.S. estimated a ban on the additive would mean an extra cent per U.S. gallon because unleaded gasoline would have to be further refined to compensate for MMT.

Like the U.S., which will not enforce the ban until Oct. 27, steps would be taken to ensure that there would be no dislocation in the marketing of gasoline already containing MMT.

Lead used in high octane fuels, and MMT, originally introduced as a lead alkyl substitute, increase the octane number giving the fuel increased resistance to preignition and preventing engine knock.

Sea Gypsies Still Dive For Pearls

MANILA (Reuter) — Clad in loincloth, with a knife between their teeth for protection against sharks and octopuses, dark-skinned Filipinos, known as the Sea Gypsies, still plunge into the sea in search of pearls.

Of the thousands of oyster shells they bring to the surface, only one may bear a pearl. Like their ancestors, the divers are not dismayed.

Their sleek, colorful sailboats are a familiar sight in the pearling grounds of the Sulu Seas, 960 kilometres south of Manila.

These waters, covering some 56,000 square kilometres from Sibutu Pass to Basilon Strait, lured divers from as far away as the Middle East in ancient times.

Some old families in the southern Philippines own pearl treasures accumulated through generations. But the collection of natural pearls from the ocean depths seems to be destined to give way to the cultured-pearl industry, a new dollar-earner.

Realizing the potential of cultured pearls, the Philippine government has put up a new pearl farm in the coastal town of Gujuan on the Leyte Gulf, 640 kilometres southeast of Manila.

It will be for demonstration and experimental purposes as well as extending technical assistance to interested parties, say officials of the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources.

Sine the last decade, when the first cultured pearls in the country were harvested, several private firms have constructed pearl farms.

The sight of beautiful pearls is not as rare as it once was. Today only a swift implantation of the seed material is needed to stimulate the producion of a pearl which appears to be 100-per-cent natural.

Experts say the basis of pearl cultivation is a simple process, the artificial simulation of a natural phenomenon.

Culturing pearls is done by inserting a nucleus, a tiny irritant, into a growing mollusk. A cultured pearl is formed when the oyster deposits pearl substance around the nucleus.

A small piece of membrane from another pearl oyster's mantle is inserted together with the tiny bead as the nucleus to stimulate the secretion of the substance.

The oysters are collected from the sea attached to coral and rocks. They are placed in specially designed cages or baskets, mesh wire or fish netting and suspended from joined bamboo rafts to a depth of two to three metres.

After at least two years of growth — three to four years in colder climates — the oysters are recovered and the pearls removed.

The Philippines is geographically and traditionally a pearl country.

Official sources say that unusually big Philippine oysters, similar to those in the famous pearling grounds of Kouri Bay on Australia's northwestern coast, are expected to yield bigger, finer and costlier pearls than the Japanese are producing.

Ministry sources say oysters in Japan hibernate during the cold season, while in the southern Philippine seas the oysters remain active the year round due to the constant warm temperature and suitable sea currents.

Experts feel that with the plate-sized oysters that thrive in the southern Philippine seas, it will not be long before top-quality pearls are cultivated in this country.

Meanwhile, Filipino divers continue their painstaking job of combing the ocean floor for the mystique pearl, described in Indian mythology as the "heavenly dewdrop."

NBC HEAD

NEW YORK (WP) — Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, the former IBM executive who turned down President Carter's offer to become the first woman Commerce secretry, will be the new chairman of the National Broadcasting Co., it was announced Wednesday.

NOTHING BUT MEMORIES remain for Olga Bossi (far left) of the 15 years she spent as a teacher at the old Prospect Lake school on West Saanich Road. Saanich firemen set fire to the crumbling structure Wednesday during a demolition exercise. To Mrs. Bossi, who watched the school burn, the site will carry special meaning. "I have such lovely memories. We were just like one big family," she said. The school, built in 1912 and abandoned 12 years ago, was in bad shape so Saanich council ordered it destroyed and the site cleared. Saanich's fourth firehall will be built on the property within five years.

$1,000 Earmarked To Fight Fare Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia student council has decided to spend $1,000 promoting the fight against B.C. Hydro's recent bus fare increase.

An Alma Mater Society officer said she does not think the protest will result in the fares being rescinded, "but Hydro and the government will realize thet this kind of unilateral action, affecting people on fixed incomes, is not acceptable."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, which was played in a national championship, the West player pulled a cute trick against a South declarer who should have known better than to have fallen for it.

North-South vulnerable.
North deals.

♠ A K 5
♡ K 10 9 6 3

♣ J 7 6 3

SOUTH
♠ Q 7 2
♡ A
◇ A Q 8 7 6 4 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

South's leap to three notrump was a terrible bid, but he almost got away with it.

Dummy's king of spades won the opening lead, after which the ten of diamonds was led. East, perforce, played the jack. South covered with the queen, and West's king captured the trick. West continued the spade suit, South taking the trick in his own hand with the queen. He then cashed the diamond ace, and next led the eight of diamonds to West's nine, thus establishing his diamond suit.

West, in the lead with the diamond nine, did some rapid calculating, and saw that it would be a give-up play to continue with spades. Declarer was known to have five diamond winners and three spade winners — and with all the nerve in the world, he couldn't have jumped to three notrump without the heart ace, since he had no high honor in clubs.

After a few moments of deliberation, West led the ten of clubs — and declarer fell like a ton of bricks! Perhaps he didn't even consider the possibility that dummy's queen of clubs might win the trick (admittedly, it was a slim chance). In any case, he played low from the board, and West's ten captured the trick. West now laid down the king and ace of clubs, to hand South a one-trick defeat.

This is one of those deals which points up the enormous difference between duplicate bridge and rubber bridge. Could West, in a duplicate game, have failed to cash the ace and king of clubs, even though that would be conceding the fulfillment of the contract? Could he have taken the big gamble of giving the enemy an extra trick or two by underleading the A-K of clubs? I doubt it!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, September 16
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Lunar position tells of clandestine arrangement. Key is to be discreet. Play cards close to chest. You're being tested. You're on brink of discovery, even a revelation. Know it, be quiet within — and confident.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can gain valuable hint from Aries message. Much that occurs is obscured, in code, behind the scenes. One who adores you might appear as a "mysterious stranger." You are given information which proves instrumental in fulfillment of wishes, ambitions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Build, clarify goals, make position clear to one who is important to you. Shared experiences are a part of scenario. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently — so does the number 8. Recognition and additonal funds might be featured.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar aspect coincides now with journey, special publication, a unique publishing or communications arrangement. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently — so does the number 5. Surprise is due — via long-distance call or message.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get "facts of life." Means pretense is pulled away. You learn where you stand, in business and love. Aquarius, Scorpio persons figure in picture. There is flash of "illumination." You perceive without formal knowing. All of this comes into sharp focus.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your ability to analyze, to make deductions is rewarded. Member of opposite sex declares you a genius. An attorney concedes you a major point. If single, there is discussions concerning marriage. If married, you are approached concerning a business venture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Full Moon position now accents health, reunions, replacement of friction with family harmony. Service that had been discarded is revived. You get more for efforts, time and money. Cancer, Taurus individuals figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Give full play to impressions, feelings, creative urges. This is not a time to be reserved. Key is to give, imprint style, let others become aware of who you are — and of your capabilities. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get organized, tie together loose ends, gain objective view of responsibilities, potential rewards. Get appraisal — insure security by protecting valuables. Cancer, Capricorn — and number 8 — play key roles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give attention to request from a Sagittarian. Finish assignment, task. Be alert for cue, clue. Hint — someone will "tell" you something. A "fiery," inspired individual aids in shaking off doldrums, lethargy. Be on the lookout for a dynamic Aries!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New approach means money in the bank. Stress independence, originality. You get offer which you can refuse. Improvements come if you stand your ground. Leo plays prominent role. Yes, the money logjam will be released.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You put across ideas, concepts, overall program. Lunar cycle is high — confidence builds and you are a winner. Know it and act accordingly. Shake off fears, doubts. Cycle is such that you turn apparent defeat into definite victory.

IF SEPTEMBER 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, analytical, introspective, creative, a perfectionist, not everyone's cup of tea. This is a "big year" for you and September could be your most memorable month of 1978. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You are going to be more productive, handle more responsibility, be richer, — and happier.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Harry pointed to an invoice on the desk. "It's funny, this has the same serial number as our licence," he said. "And of course it's a perfect square."

"Five figures just the same, eh?" Jack was checking on the back of an envelope. "I had never noticed it was a square, but here's something else," he declared. "If you increase each digit by one you get another perfect square."

What was their number?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: SNAKES was 107431.

Flashes of Fall Finery

The coming fall season is beginning to color garden plants with unbelievable beauty. Quite ordinary plants which have already contributed a season's interest are now intent on another period of glory before their winter rest.

Other plants have been quietly going about the business of preparing for this single bid for attention — these are the fall flowering perennials.

During the process of foliage coloring we notice superb combinations of plants which are worth recording so that rearrangement of certain ones can be done later to bring about an even more satisfying display another year.

In some cases it may increase the total effect to make a purchase or two from a nursery or garden centre for planting now. Fall planting puts you ahead by a full season's growth for there is then no hesitancy in spring; roots will already be active with normal new growth guickly following.

Each year the foliage colors of Euonymus alatus, the Winged-Burning-bush, are a cause for wonder. For the rest of the year, interest is centred in the corky-winged bark of the branches.

From a quite ordinary green, the smooth leaves begin turning to unbelievable shades of rose. This shrub grows about four feet with a three- to four-foot spread in a somewhat fan-shaped arrangement. Seen at this season with a purple or mauve Michaelmas-daisy nearby is to double the color value of both plants.

Saanich municipality has been using large numbers of Euonymus in its Public Library planting near Town and Country and elsewhere in roadside plantings. Alone in quantity it has plenty of color impact; in a garden it is enhanced by a companion plant having blue, mauve or purple flowers.

Another quite ordinary shrub now slowly assuming tones of red towards its final display of scarlet is the double-flowering Spiraea prunifolia. The rather long, narrow leaves resemble those of the peach more than the plum (prune), making the effect of a pillar of drooping flame before the leaves fall. In late spring this Spireaea is equally spectacular as a pillar of white, its double flowers lasting well for they have no attraction for insects to pollinate.

My third spectacular coloring this week is from peony foliage. Here again, the plants have already had one season of beauty with their fine flowers in May and June.

The peony leaves have been ornamental enough during summer, but now as we look towards another season, color comes again in all the warm tones of a western fall — pink, burgundy, claret, russet and the rest.

Nearby is a large spreading Buddleia of the White Bouquet variety. With its dark green leaves and arching branches ending n white scented cones of blossom the Buddleia makes a still lovely background for the peony plants, though it has been flowering continuously since last July this year.

Look around now for ideas to ring a continuation of color to September and later in your garden, for there is no real end to gardening here in Victoria.

Only a few yards to Oak Bay's most exclusive waterfront on Beach Drive overlooking the Oak Bay Marina. Spacious luxury, two bedrooms, two full bathroom apartment homes built with all the extra design features and meticulous craftsmanship that typify all of Park Pacific's many fine projects. Half of these exceptional luxury apartment homes have sold in the past few weeks, somewhat of a record considering the price range and current market conditions. There will probably never be another building of this quality, in a similar location, ever to be created again in Victoria. Don't miss this fabulous opportunity to purchase happiness and peace of mind for the rest of your life knowing you will have an investment similar to a valuable original painting or a one of a kind art piece.

"Fairbridge"
A VILLAGE IN THE COUNTRY

An unbelievably peaceful and beautiful subdivision of 76 acres which includes 22 acres of fields and parkland for private enjoyment. This unique and one of a kind subdivision consists of 39 strata lots, no lot being less than ½ an acre. Now available are 6 single family 2 and 4 bedroom homes from $49,000 - $69,000. Also 20 lots ranging in price from $22,500 - $25,500. The subdivision is served by a paved private road, overhead street lighting with water and sewer services laid on to each lot. The private fields particularly would be of great interest to lovers of horses. The subdivision is surrounded by rich farmland and is located 2½ miles south of Duncan at 4741 Koksilah Rd. Driving time to Victoria is approx. 40 min. Simply to visit Fairbridge can be a deeply satisfying experience.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT SASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Car Gripes Aired At Meeting

By LARRY KRAMER

PARAMUS, N.J. (WP) — Marcus Schneweiss could hardly be heard over the laughter from the crowd.

"This is no laughing matter," he said. "I was driving down the road, and the air conditioning on my new Chevy four-door Malibu didn't work so I told my kids to roll down the back windows.

"They said they couldn't, so I stopped the car to show them how, and what do you know — the windows didn't go down. I thought Chevy had left off the knobs. When I called them, they said they stopped putting roll down windows on the back, and that you approved it."

"I had no idea," responded Joan Claybrook, administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Schneweiss was only one of dozens of speakers at a unique experimental town meeting NHTSA held here. It was an attempt to bring federal regulation to the people, said Claybrook, who has held six such meetings around the U.S. this year. More than 300 people showed up at a local church to tell the federal regulators everything they ever wanted to know about auto safety problems.

"I came here because I am desperate, this is the last straw," said 21-year-old Donna Robenson, who said that "just about every part on my Volkswagen Rabbit has had to be replaced since I bought it two years ago."

"I was getting nowhere alone," she said, "so I came here because I thought I might get some media attention."

Her ploy apparently worked, as three different reporters waited to talk with her about her problems trying to get Volkswagen to fix what she called her "lemon."

Claybrook recommended Robenson write Volkswagen's president. "I already wrote," she said. "He's somewhere around here, in New Jersey."

"No," Claybook said, "write the president of the corporation, in Germany."

"Now I have to write Germany?" said Robenson with a beleagured look.

"I have found that you can often get results writing to the top," Claybrook said.

Besides Claybrook, there were representatives of the Federal Trade Commission, the Environmental Protection Agency and several local consumer agencies at the three-hour meeting to help consumers and motorists with their auto safety problems.

After a movie prepared by the Physicians for Auto Safety, and a look at several exhibits and sample safety cars owned by NHTSA, and an air bag demonstration, the crowd settled down for a long night of listening to one consumer gripe after another.

The line of people waiting to use the microphone to address the panel of experts and the audience was several dozen people long virtually all night.

William Randall, owner of a local front-end repair shop, said he had been keeping records of defective radial tires that come in on cars he works on.

"Since Dec. 3, 1976," Randall said, "I have found 522 defective radial tires on my customer's cars — from all manufacturers. I want people to know that this problem is far from over — and does not end with Firestone. Radial tires are dangerous."

Hyman Belner had reason to believe Randall. He reported troubles with four of his five Goodyear radial tires, and felt he had not been properly treated by Goodyear when he complained.

"Just send the serial numbers of the tires to me, care of the department of transportation," Claybrook said.

In an emotional gesture, 27-year-old Gregg Sulzen of Maywood, N.J. slowly walked to the microphone with extreme difficulty and a cane because of a serious auto accident nine years ago — caused by a safety defect in a car he owned.

"I was advised to come here by my rehabilitation counselor," Sulzen said, shaking and holding on to his wife Joan for support. "I am an accident victim, and the accident was caused by an auto defect."

In an interview after the meeting, Sulzen said he was in a comatose state for three months following the accident, in which his steering aparatus locked. He said he suffers from a disease called Hemiparisis, and thought it would help others to see what he had been through — "to show what can happen."

"I was enthused," said Claybrook after the meeting.

"A lot of these people were just totally frustrated, and came here tonight to give it just one more try," Claybrood said. "I think we helped them."

Lumber Exports Jump

Shipments of lumber through the port of Nanaimo during the first seven months of this year show a healthy increase, says Bob Chase, manager of marketing and public relations.

Export shipments for the period were nearly 300,000 metric tons compared to 255,000 metric tons for the same period in 1977.

"It confirms the view that this will be a record year for the shipment of lumber through the port," Chase said, adding that major volumes of lumber are going to the United States' Atlantic coast, Japan and Europe.

Plywood shipments through Nanaimo are also up.

In the first seven months about 13,000 metric tons were shipped, nearly equal to the total for the whole of 1977.

Fewer Fires

MONTREAL (CP) — Firemen fought 1,435 fires in Montreal-area buildings during the first-half of 1978, compared with 1,719 in the first six months of 1977, it was announced Thursday. Fire officials said a campaign to board up abandoned buildings contributed to the decline.

Transit Cost Figures Differ

Victoria city council will hold a special meeting soon to discuss conflicting figures over what the new Urban Transit Authority will cost municipalities in the region.

A Capital Regional District study says the provincial estimate on gasoline surcharge revenues is 28 per cent too high.

The study, reviewed by aldermen Thursday, says a three-cent surcharge to be levied on each gallon of gasoline sold in transit service areas will generate far less in the capital region than anticipated for three reasons:

— The high proportion of elderly persons;

— The comparatively short commuting distances involved;

— The tradition of ownership of smaller cars.

Those three factors will combine for a significantly lower consumption of gasoline in the region than the province has estimated and, according to the Regional District, there will be a shortfall of revenue in 1979 of more than $600,000.

The municipal affairs ministry estimates the gasoline surcharge revenue at $2.46 million in 1979 — while the regional estimate places it at $1.85 million.

The report says gasoline consumption in the Captial Region increased four per cent over the period 1971-1977 as opposed to a five per cent increase for the rest of B.C. Applying that rate, the revenue from the three-cent-a-gallon surcharge would produce $1.8 million next year, not $2.4 million as the province has estimated.

A special meeting of council to discuss the disagreement in estimates can't be held until after Sept. 25 because a number of aldermen will be away next week.

Gov't Contract Angers Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia iron workers say they have lost at least 30 jobs because of a recent provincial government decision to award a bridge contract to a Quebec company that has no facilities in B.C. for fabricating steel.

The International Association of Bridge Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers. Local 712, says the job should have gone to a B.C. firm and says that it will mount a campaign to have the decision reversed.

The provincial forests ministry, which put the project out to tender, said however that Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd., of Montreal got the job because the company said it could build the bridge at the least cost.

The contentious project is a 160-metre steel bridge at Walker Creek, north of Prince George. Dominion Bridge said it can build it for $416,305, about $7,000 less than the next bidder.

The union complains that Dominion's fabricating work probably will be done at one of its Prairie plants. The company no longer has a fabricating facility in B.C. because it sold its nearby Burnaby plant in 1975.

Union spokesman Frank Noland said the local will solicit the support of the B.C. Federation of Labor, the Vancouver Labor Council and other groups.

Rats Gnaw Ships

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Sea lore says that rats always desert a sinking ship. But in this Ottawa River community the rats, muskrats, sink ships before deserting them.

Two large pleasure boats now are in drydock at the local marina after they were sabotaged by subversive muskrats.

A family of four of the furry fanatics last week ate through rubber seals on the boats causing about $400 damage to each when water seeped in to the 6.5-metre-long craft.

A third craft was put in drydock as a precaution.

The local animal control officer has been asked to exterminate the tiny terrorists which, in the absence of rubber seals, have taken to gnawing on styrofoam floats supporting the marina dock.

FIN WHALE BONES are checked by biologist Lorraine Dumoulin while they are drying on the roof of the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto. The dead 21-metre whale was found off Westport, N.S. last summer and was taken to the centre where the bones are being cleaned and prepared for display.

New Air Service Announced

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada announced Thursday a new inter-city parcel delivery service called Couriair which will provide overnight, door-to-door delivery between major central Canadian points.

The crown-owned airline will use four jet freighters for the service beginning Oct. 30. Mirabel International Airport, 50 kilometres north of Montreal, will become the crossroads of the system, the airline said in a statement.

The first phase of Couriair will serve Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. The service will be expanded next spring to include British Columbia, Atlantic provinces and the United States eastern seaboard, while service to Europe is contemplated for the future.

Parcels, with a maximum weight of 25 kilograms, will be gathered in regional centres — Vancouver, Toronto, Halifax and New York — before being flown to Mirabel for sorting and distribution, the airline said.

"Despite the handicap of a transcontinental route system crossing six time zones, businesses in 20 principal Canadian cities will be able to send parcels at the end of the working day, and have them delivered before noon the following day at destination," the statement said.

Air Canada already has overnight delivery service for envelopes up to one kilogram, and airport-to-airport service for general cargo.

B.C. TEACHER SHORTAGE?

The province could face a shortage of B.C. educated elementary teachers by next year, University of Victoria president Howard Petch said Wednesday night.

Petch also said during a UVic Senate meeting a shortage of secondary school teachers could follow by 1982.

The education department showed a drop of 169 full-time students, most from second and third year.

Petch said the trend is disturbing because of the time it takes to train a teacher. To keep supply at pace with demand, students should be entering the field now instead of leaving it.

Library Talks To Continue

The Greater Victoria library board has agreed to continue negotiations with the B.C. Building Corporation on a lease of premises at the provincial building on Broughton for a new downtown library.

The board has also decided to seek a commitment from the BCBC that consideration be given to entering a strata title agreement as requested by Esquimalt council.

Don Miller, executive director of the library, said Thursday Esquimalt's motion — which asks for a no-strings-attached commitment from the BCBC by Sept. 30 to discuss the strata proposal — does not require a change in motions by councils of the three other core municipalities who belong to the board.

He said all the Esquimalt motion's does is ask that the option be considered and presented to council by July 31, 1979. It is not a condition of Esquimalt's authorization for the relocation of the library from its present site at Yates and Blanshard.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young today confirmed that was the intent of the motion.

The four core councils have made the move conditional upon the board receiving a $400,000 grant from the provincial government to cover start-up costs. The grant is equivalent to what the municipalities would receive if they built a new library.

L-SHAPED ICE IN HONG KONG

TORONTO (CP) — A sporting goods official says he has noticed some major differences between hockey in Canada and hockey in Hong Kong.

The main one is that Hong Kong goalies cannot see each other and players must skate around corners to play the game.

That's because Hong Kong arenas are L-shaped, due to a shortage of land, Jack Cooper of Cooper Canada Ltd. said Thursday.

Cooper, chairman and president of the Toronto sporting goods company, told an export forum of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that he found out about the differences while selling hockey equipment in Hong Kong.

More Women Into Violence

TORONTO (CP) — Sociologists, criminologists and police attribute the increasing number of young women committing traditionally male crimes to pervasive violence in society, the women's liberation movement and radical attitudes left over from the 1960s.

Esther Greenglass, a professor at York University in Toronto, said that "there's no question that society is more violent on all levels than it was 10 years ago."

"Girls and women have to be affected by it, and we tolerate it," she said.

"In the past, violence in women was deviant behavior."

Of the 4,500 women put in jail in Ontario last year, 22 per cent were under 18, compared with 18 per cent of the 95,000 men.

Sylvia Nicholl, superintendent of Vanier Centre for Women in Brampton, said: "I'm afraid the women here do seem to be getting younger all the time."

"Breaking and entering, traditionally a man's crime, is popular with the girls now."

Inspector Ferne Alexander of the youth bureau of Metropolitan Toronto police said that "young girls seem to be more disturbed than they used to be."

S.Sgt. Les Douglas of the youth bureau blames the changes on television and a society which grants young people more freedom than some of them can handle.

"But you have to be optimistic, to see it as a trend that can change," he said.

Prof. Greenglass believes society's tolerance of violence is at fault.

"We're telling them, 'If you want something, go out and get it no matter how many other people it hurts.' "

Sociologist Ellen Rosenblatt said that "it's a legacy from the radical '60s."

CLASS WALKOUT

TURTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Students at the local high school walked out of class Thursday to demonstrate their support of a physical education teacher involved in a dispute with school officials.

School officials threatened to fire Larry Pavloff after they refused him leave to play in the Canadian Mens' Fastball Championships and he went to the tournament anyway. Turtleford is about 240 kilometres northwest of Saskatoon.

West Wants More Regional Clout

OTTAWA (CP) — The mood in Western Canada is fast becoming unpleasant and the federal government's constitutional reform plans virtually ignore this alienation, says the Canada West Foundation.

Spokesmen for the foundation, a non-profit group set up two years ago to promote western interests if the constitution is re-written, appeared Thursday before the joint Senate-Commons committee on the constitution.

"I don't want to sound alarmist, but Quebec has served as a model for western Canadians as a way of getting attention to our problems," said Stan Roberts, chairman of the foundation.

Roberts, former vice-president of Simon Fraser University, in Burnaby, made it clear the Calgary-based foundation, which is financed in part by its 300 members and partly by the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C., is determined to see a united Canada preserved.

"But we have very grave concerns about our lack of muscle in the Parliament of Canada," said Roberts. "We are a fast-growing region with a population of 6 million, great wealth and enormous potential because of our huge resource base. This growing influence has not been recognized in the governing system of this country."

He said much of this alienation could be decreased if the government is prepared to re-draft the constitution to put real regional strength into Parliament.

The foundation recommends several steps for accomplishing this.

It wants the provinces to be given a role in appointing members to national regulatory bodies such as the Canadian wheat board and the National Energy Board.

Party discipline in the House of Commons should be relaxed on certain issues, allowing MPs to act as spokesmen for their regions, even at the cost of solidarity within political parties.

The federal government should scrap all thought of making any major change in the constitution without provincial consent.

"Even if the federal government has the legal right to make certain changes unilaterally — which has yet to be determined by the Supreme Court — it would probably result in a high level of bitterness and exacerbate the problems that already exist in this country," Roberts said.

The foundation calls for certain changes in the Senate but suggests the federal government abandon its proposed House of the Federation.

It calls for an elected Senate based on a redefined electoral map designed to make sure all regions of the country have a strong voice.

This new Senate would be able to veto legislation temporarily. It could send any piece of legislation back to the Commons but would be unable to stop it a second time.

The group says it is critical that the new constitution include provisions to stop the growth of power of the cabinet and the prime minister's office at the expense of other institutions of Parliament.

It also urges that the constitutional reform package be enlarged to include provisions to improve the House of Commons.

"This is a major weakness in the bill. If we're going to talk about national institutions, it doesn't make sense to ignore the single most important body in this country."

Roberts confessed the foundation has been unable to come up with many acceptable ways of reforming the House of Commons.

'INVESTORS FEAR NDP'

A provincial election appears imminent for B.C. voters.

The vote — which insiders report could be called within 10 days — looms as a strong possibility after Premier Bill Bennett warned Thursday investor confidence is weak over fear of an NDP return to power.

Bennett, speaking at a Socred constituency meeting in Kelowna, singled out the investment climate as a reason for an early vote.

He said investors are holding off in B.C. because they feel the NDP will get back in power.

The Socreds want to prove their win was no fluke, he added.

There had been reports that if Prime Minister Trudeau did not call a federal vote this fall, Bennett would call a B.C. vote.

Trudeau made it official Thursday, saying he is looking at an election next spring.

Bennett's strong hint he will go to the voters soon brought a quick reaction from NDP-leader Dave Barrett.

He said Bennett's claim of investment fear are nothing but sabre rattling by a government embroiled in panic and fear.

"Name the investors," Barrett said.

"He's in a panic over his inability to solve the problems of this province."

Asked if the NDP is ready for an election this fall, Barrett said the party has been working aggresively since the redistribution legislation was passed in the spring session.

"We came out of the last convention (in May this year) united and strong and ready to meet any challenge."

On a Vancouver talk show this morning, Bennett still wouldn't commit himself fully. He said he has not ruled out an election this fall but added an election next spring, next fall or the spring of 1980 are possibilities.

His five-year mandate does not expire until December, 1980.

The premier's vagueness today, however, does not jibe with recent activity and moves by party organizers and colleagues in the Socred caucus.

Museum Official Quits At Cook 'Fakery'

William Langlois, the man credited with building one of the finest aural history libraries in Canada, said today he resigned because he "got tired of the fakery with McCarthy over culture".

"Money was poured into public relations instead of substantial things such as history displays and the contribution of the Indians to the history of B.C.," Langlois said.

Added Langlois : "The money went into paying public relations men and such things as Capt. Cook banners.

"It turned the bicentennial into a side show, a comic opera.

"There was nothing substantial behind the celebrations. We lost a chance of creating abroad and at home a better image of British Columbia."

Langlois said he will seek a Conservative nomination for Victoria riding in the next provincial election and campaign for a better deal for history and culture.

"You will see some big changes in the next elections," he said.

"The Conservative party is going places."

Langlois was director of the aural history library, which he founded, for more than four years.

Standing Ovation For Davis

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — MLA Jack Davis, found guilty ealier in the week of fraud, Thursday was given a standing ovation by 45 Social Credit party members at the annual meeting of his riding association.

Davis, who remained in the legislature as member for North Vancouver-Seymour after being fired from his cabinet post, was not questionned by the audience about his conviction.

He will be sentenced Monday.

Empress Posted As Fire Hazard

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Fire officials did it today to Victoria's grand old lady.

They walked into the Empress Hotel lobby and posted notices warning that the hotel is — wait for it — a fire hazard.

"No comment," said Balderson.

"We will be talking to our solicitors, that's all we can do."

The notices say the deficiences may cause risk, peril and destruction to life, limb or property.

The orange-colored notices were put up in the lobby and entrances today by Victoria Fire Inspector Ray Best.

The notices say a fire inspection was made June 28 and a number of deficiencies in fire safety were noted.

Anyone who removes the notice without written permission of the fire chief would be guilty of an offence under the Fire Marshall's Act.

Best in an interview said the hotel fails to meet fire safety standards in a number of respects.

He called the hotel's fire alarm system obsolete and noted the hallways are not fitted with heat detectors, both mandatory under the National Building Code.

Best said all of the doors to the 425 rooms in the hotel must be replaced. The doors are presently a panel-type and should be solid core.

He said there is a need for more fire doors in corridors and more stairwells.

"The building is wide open."

Best said the travel distance to exits is not up to standard. The maximum allowable is 100 feet. But some of the rooms are up to 160 feet away from exits.

The Empress was one of seven hotels and 12 apartments in the city warned earlier this year that they required fire safety upgrading.

Last February city council passed a bylaw which allowed fire officials to post in buildings notices containing a complete list of fire hazards found by the department.

The bylaw specified notices would be posted 60 days after the owner of a building had been advised of the deficiencies.

If owners do not correct the deficiencies within 60 days, Fire Chief Eric Simmons may then take the matter to council for further action.

SERVICE POOR BUT WHAT A TIP!

VANCOUVER (CP) — It must have been terrific service when the customer left a $1,000 tip for a glass of beer Thursday — even when he didn't get what he wanted.

Cocktail waitress Debra Webb said the tipper was "an average-looking man, a normal business type" who wasn't a regular customer at the Highrigger lounge at the Hotel Vancouver.

He stayed about half an hour and ordered Canadian beer, she said. But, because of the recent brewery labor dispute, the regular lager wasn't available and she served him an American beer.

Webb said she thinks the tip was a mistake since it was a single $1,000 bill, and she expects the customer to return and claim it.

The hotel management will hold the money for 30 days and if it remains unclaimed, will turn it over to the staff as a tip.

Massive Cavity Left If Hat Creek Mined

VANCOUVER (CP) — If British Columbia Hydro goes ahead with the massive Hat Creek coal project, British Columbians 40 years from now will inherit a giant barren crater in the Upper Hat Creek Valley, says a feasibility report prepared for Hydro.

The crater would be 262 metres (876 feet) deep and 11.2 kilometres (seven miles) in circumference — twice the size of Vancouver's Stanley Park — following 35 years of open-pit mining, says an eight-volume feasibility report prepared by Cominco Ltd. and Monenco Ltd., a Montreal engineering firm.

The study was completed in July but has not yet been released.

Hydro's consultants say that when mining ends, the hole would be subject to landslides, spontaneous combustion of coal wastes, would be impractical to fill with water and virtually barren of plant life.

The proposed development is almost in the centre of one of the better ranching areas of the Ashcroft-Cache Creek-Lillooet area.

"The abandoned open pit is presently envisaged to remain a void," says the report, which was prepared in July.

"Consideration was given to creating a lake in the pit

Back-to-Work Order Facing Posties: PM

Times News Services

Ottawa will legislate Canada's 19,800 postmen back to work if their threatened strike next week is a prolonged walkout that creates chaos, Prime Minister Trudeau said today.

The Letter Carriers Union of Canada has set a Sept. 22 strike deadline if no contract settlement is reached with the Treasury Board.

Union president Robert McGarry said the LCUC executive — authorized to call a strike by 82 percent of the members — will decide Monday whether mail delivery will be halted entirely or if there will be a series of rotating strikes.

Speaking on a morning radio talk show, Trudeau said he supports the right of workers to strike, but would not hesitate to force mail carriers to submit their contract dispute to arbitration.

"Workers should be allowed to withhold their services if they don't want to work," he said. "But at some point, that principle . . . is overtaken by a more important and more fundamental principle, that is, the common good."

Trudeau said civil servants demand large wage settlements because "they tend to feel, 'well, it's the government, they can always dig up more money or print more money, therefore we can ask for more.'

"We're saying to our workers, 'we'll give you what's fair, but you can't get more than you would if you were doing the same job for a private employer. So that is the attitude we're taking. We're hopeful it will prevent a strike."

Earlier, at a news conference, Trudeau said he still hopes the economy can reach

Peace Talk Optimism Doused

THURMONT, Md.(WP) — The Middle East summit conference passed its 10th day Thursday as White House press secretary Jody Powell declared that "more flexibility" in the negotiation is "essential" if the marathon talks are to reach the American goal of producing the broad outlines for an Arab-Israeli peace.

While Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Miniser Ezer Weizman met first with President Carter and then with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Powell responded to a sudden surge of optimistic news reports about the likely outcome of the summit by attempting to lower expectations about the summit's conclusion.

But he denied the talks at nearby Camp David are now stalemated and he refused to speculate on when they might end.

Was Provincial Lottery Code Broken?

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Reports that the code has been broken on the Provincial instant lottery had buyers and sellers poring over thousands of tickets today, trying to figure out how to spot the good ones.

Reports from Alberta indicate the answer may lie in the quality of printing on the stub.

Winning tickets may be a bit blurred.

Tickets with light yellow stubs also produced a few winners but this theory did not work consistently either.

B.C. lottery officials expressed alarm but no great surprise that the code may have been broken.

In Edmonton, city employees Hugh Frazer and Don Hogan said Thursday they have worked out a code-breaking system which they intend to pass on to British American Bank Note officials, printers of the tickets.

"We want to pass it on to the right authorities so it can be corrected when they make up the next series," said Frazer who would not reveal his system.

An Edmonton Loto Canada distributor said he also has broken the system. He said printing is not as clear on the free bonus tickets as it is on the others.

Before these three men said they had figured out the system Bob Silverthorn, a 35-year-old Tofield, Alta., math and science teacher, baffled lottery officials by picking nine tickets with instant free prizes of free tickets out of 50 at random. He also walked away with a $10 consolation prize.

Silverthorn said he has no system and relies on what he called "just pure luck."

One printer claims to be able to read the scratch patch with the use of a high intensity arc light.

In Victoria, Loto ticket distributor Hugh Currie said: "It would be a shame if the code is broken. That spoils the whole thing. I hope they will be able to correct the defect, if there is one."

Currie, of Howell and Currie at 2340 Douglas, spent half an hour going over hundreds of Provincial tickets this morning but could not detect any sure-fire method of spotting winners.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Profit-taking in mining issues and a six-point decline at New York sent the Toronto stock market moderately lower in active mid-session trading.

Patino N. V. was up ⅜ to $19⅜ a share on the sale of 1,000 shares after falling back from a new high of $20 following its opening resumption. The company has announced that Preussag A. G. has acquired its 53-per-cent interest in Amalgamated Metal Corp. Ltd.

Ashland Oil Inc. was untraded, while its subsidiary, Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. slipped ⅛ to $32⅛ on 1,000 shares following the parent company's resumption. The United States integrated oil firm reported it will purchase up to five million of its own shares at $47 a share on completion of the sale of its Canadian subsidiary to Kaiser Resources Ltd.

Kaiser rose ⅛ to $15⅝ on 7,250 shares. Ashland Oil Inc. last traded at $25¾ a share.

Among other issues, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas eased 1 to $43, Home Oil A ⅞ to $41, Pacific Petroleums ¾ to $38¼, Imperial Oil A ⅜ to $23⅛ and Seagram Co. ⅜ to $31.

Dome Petroleum reversed an earlier decline to rise 2¾ to $98½ on 18,290 shares. Hornet and Pitfield Foods climbed 2 to $14, Husky Oil 1⅞ to $44⅝, Travelways 1¼ to $13¼ and S. B. McLauchlin Associates 1¼ to $10.

McIntyre Mines fell ½ to $27, Cyprus Anvil Mining ½ to $9 and Preston Mines ¼ to $19⅝.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted another broad loss against a background of inflation and interest rate worries and continuing heavy speculation in the gambling issues.

Analysts said concern over inflation was aggravated by the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a $4.7 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

Many economists consider rapid monetary growth the primary reason for the country's high inflation rate. The Federal Reserve has been tightening credit in an effort to restrain the money supply's expansion, and that has led to higher interest rates.

Most of the country's major banks raised their prime lending rates from 9¼ to 9½ per cent, the highest level for the basic charge on blue chip loans in 3½ years.

NYSE volume came to 25.98 million shares at mid-afternoon.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 530.4, off 5.1.

Leading equities declined, while gold stocks firmed.

Funniest New Show?

New TV Series Uses Radio Station Setting

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — WKRP in Cincinnati on CBS television may be the funniest new show of the season.

It's about the people at a fictional Cincinnati radio station that suddenly switches its musical format from geriatric tunes to rock 'n' roll. The disc jockey, Dr. Johnny Fever, played by Howard Hesseman, manages the shift in mid-record.

Gary Sandy stars as Andy Travis, the newly hired program manager who orders the change. Gordon Jump is station manager Arthur Carlson whose most fervent hope is that his mother, who owns the station, doesn't find out about the switch.

PROMOTED FROM SOAPS

Sandy, 32, comes to WKRP after three soap operas and a regular role in the syndicated series 'All That Glitters. This is his first starring role.

"I did a lot of guest shots on television, ranging from crazies to whatever," he said. "This is one of my first likeable roles. I wasn't too likeable in Glitters. I was pushy and trying to get to the top."

Sandy said that three days before he got the WKRP part he had auditioned for the second time for another pilot at CBS. Another guy got it. I really wanted that part, it was a great role. The pilot didn't sell.

"On the strength of that screen test, CBS called MTM and told them about me. They were down to the wire and I think they must have lost somebody for the part. I went in, read on Friday, tested on Saturday, was told I had the part on Sunday and started rehearsals on Monday."

Sandy is the straight man in WKRP, the oasis of sanity amid all the craziness.

CANCELS PREACHER

In the first show Sandy has to cancel a preacher on the early Sunday morning religious program because he's hawking things like New Testament steak knives. The preacher is Rev. Ed (Little) Pembroke of the Toe-to-Toe With Satan Church of the Mighty Struggle. No one has ever seen him because of the early morning hour, so when Sandy shows up to fire him, Little turns out to be a 280-pound former wrestler.

Sandy, a native of Dayton, Ohio, moved to Hollywood from New York three years ago. He had worked on three soap operas, As the World Turns, Somerset and Secret Storm, and had appeared in more than 40 plays in stock and summer theatre.

"I left New York just when things were starting to happen for me," he said. "Producers were starting to ask for me for roles. It probably wasn't the best time to leave, but it seemed right to me.

"I'm drawn to the theatre. I saw a lot of people coming from L.A. with television and film names and getting all the good parts. I knew I was going to have to have a name to get anything good. That's what I want to accomplish here, make a name so I can go back and star on Broadway."

Coronation St. Now at 9 a.m.

The popular British series, Coronation Street, returns this week for another season, but in a different time slot.

The series will be shown on Channel 2 at 9 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

CBC's Fantasy Musical Staged in Circus

Emmy Awards Show Sunday

The 30th annual Emmy Awards show will be broadcast from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium Sunday, Sept. 17.

The program will be carried on channels 2 and 6 at 5:30 p.m., and also on Channel 7 at 8 p.m. Alan Alda will host the show.

At press time, entertainment was scheduled to include clips from the five nominated comedy-variety specials. Presenters are expected to include Robert Alda, Edward Asner, Carol Burnett, Chevy Chase, Phyllis George, Kate Jackson, Harvey Korman, Linda Lavin, Norman Lear, Michael Learned, Hal Linden, Jack Lord, Steve Martin, Shirley MacLaine, Mary Tyler Moore, Carl Reiner, Rob Reiner, Lily Tomlin, Lindsay Wagner, Henry Winkler and Joanne Woodward.

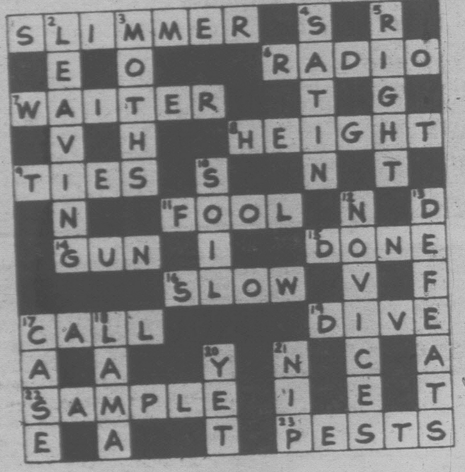
PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS:

1. SLIMMER not slimmed. It is essentially when she is SLIMMER that she will be lighter, whether or not she has actually slimmed (i.e., with positive intent).
7. WAITER not waster. Aptly, a WAITER may possibly be somewhat careless in his work. A waster is far too set in his ways to be merely lacking sufficient carefulness with money.
8. HEIGHT not weight. The weight isn't directly obvious in the ordinary course of events (i.e., visually).
9. TIES not pies. Men wear or do not wear TIES, thus showing an evident tendency or preference. The clue's word "evidently" has less point for pies.
15. DONE not gone. It's a question of what remains after he's DONE, regardless of whether he's actually gone from the premises.
16. SLOW not flow. "Points" suggests particular places, where the music should SLOW gracefully. It is normal for whole passages to be required to flow gracefully.
17. CALL not calm. The clue's phrase "can be important" suits the case of CALL better. If you hope to calm a person, a suitable tone of voice is necessary.
19. DIVE not live. To DIVE is a very reasonable instance of something appropriately done "with proper regard for safety." There is little question of living one's entire life in such a manner.
22. SAMPLE not simple. SAMPLE is more apt, since there is nothing in the fact of a piece being simple to make it suitable for illustrating technique, etc.

CLUES DOWN:

2. LEAVING not leading. The refusal in question doesn't positively lead people to think him a coward; it merely LEAVES them free to take that view if they are critically disposed towards him.
5. RIGHT not fight. Since he is a "champion," he is "evidently" in the RIGHT game as far as he is concerned. Any boxer is in the fight game; also, the tone of the clue's word "evidently" is unsuited to the case of fight.
10. SOIL not toil. Hard SOIL "can mean" laborious digging, if and when you come to dig it. More directly, actual toil can be laborious digging. Also, specifying "hard" has more point for SOIL.
12. NOVICES not notices. Before taking vows in some religions, the candidates serve as NOVICES. There is no substantial link between religion and "notices."
13. DEFEATS not defects. The idea of trying hard to make up for DEFEATS is quite apt; but one seeks to eliminate or minimize one's defects, rather than accepting them and trying to make up for them elsewhere.
17. CASE not cash. Since a cash prize can be a very trivial matter, a legal CASE is the stronger answer.
8. LAMA not lame. Merely being lame, perhaps temporarily, hardly sets a man apart as being fundamentally "different," as being a LAMA would do.
20. YET not yes. If you cannot answer YET, i.e., if you cannot say yes or no, you may equivocate.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Halo There, Julianna

STEVEN H. SCHEUER

During a taping of "The Young and the Restless" recently, cleaning lady Liz Foster (Julianna McCarthy) was about to pay a hospital call on her old employer, Kay Chancellor, a victim of paralysis after stopping a bullet meant for husband Derek.

For a gag, the wardrobe department outfitted Julianna with a rhinestone halo. Jeanne Cooper's Kay, ready for emotional business, suddenly looked up, did a double-take and burst into laughter.

Fans would have enjoyed being in on the sight gag. Because if any character on the soaper deserves a halo — in rhinestones or gumdrops — it's noble Liz. True blue as her Irish eyes, Julianna's Liz seems destined for sainthood compared to her peers on "Restless."

Widowed Liz always thinks the best of people; she's slow to knock or deprecate. And when it comes to her children — Snapper the doctor, Greg the lawyer or daughter Jill — Mom is there to comfort and support.

At the moment, daughter Jill is undercutting Mom by flirting with her boss, publisher Stuart Brooks. But Brooks apparently prefers Liz; and after being widowed for just a year, Stuart could ask Liz to be his wife.

Julianna doubts if marriage to Stuart is in the cards, but she really doesn't know what author William Bell has in store. On the show since the beginning — five years — and cast in the poor family in Salem as opposed to the wealthy Brooks, Chancellor and Prentiss clans, Julianna doesn't expect to change money levels.

"I'm rather firmly planted on the wrong side of the track," she says. "I expect to stay there."

After having been married to actor Michael Constantine for 18 years, the now divorced Julianna is grateful for the steady work on the show. "I've gotten to act my little hips off," she said. "In New York, I used to play the witch next door, or the wisecracking lady, but in Hollywood, I'm a good woman in spite of pulling the plug on my poor sick husband. I was the first to have an incision on the show, a hysterectomy, and I've been allowed two romances before my latest with Stuart Brooks."

Julianna McCarthy, out of Erie, Pa., descended from the McCarthys and the Burkes of the Ould Sod, is about to show son Brendan, named after Brendan Behan, a bit of the Emerald Isle and a taste of Greece when she takes a two-week vacation in early October.

Julianna recalls an earlier visit to Ireland, inspecting the city of Cork for the first time.

"A woman walking alone in the early evening along the wharfs wasn't right, but the smells of the sea water held me fast," she said. "All the cats in Ireland looked to me like Jimmy Cagney, and the dogs knew Pat O'Brien. There I was worried a bit, and then a dog walks me back to the hotel."

Will Julianna see that son Brendan kisses the Blarney Stone this October? The actress laughed. "When my parents made their first visit to Ireland years ago, my father kissed the Blarney Stone. I asked if my mother did, and she said, 'No I kissed your father.' "

CHANNEL CHATTER. Cindy Pickett (Jackie Marler) on "Guiding Light" will take a short leave from the popular soap to go to Manila in the Philippines in mid-September to star in Roger Vadim's new film, "Night Games." This is Cindy's first effort on the big screen, and she will return to her "Guiding Light" family after the filming is completed . . . NBC's long-running daytime drama "Days of Our Lives" cleaned up in the recent 57th annual Photoplay magazine Gold Medal Awards — a poll whose results are determined by the magazine's more than four million readers. You could say the soap won Photoplay's "triple crown," being selected as the Favorite Daytime TV Program in addition to having its stars, Susan Seaforth Hayes and Bill Hayes (Mr. and Mrs. in real-life), named as the Favorite Daytime Female and Male TV Stars. The awards will be presented at ceremonies on September 23, which will be taped for a show to be aired by ABC later this year . . In the "what are they doing now?" department, Kathleen Beller, formerly Liza on "Search for Tomorrow," and Robin Mattson, who played Hope on "Guiding Light," will star in the new CBS made-for-TV film, "Are You in the House Alone?", which will air Wednesday, September 20. It's a suspenseful adaptation of the Edgar Mystery Award-winning novel about a beautiful high school co-ed (Miss Beler) marked as the target for a campaign of terror . . . "Love of Life" begins its 28th year on September 24. The serial, which premiered in 1951, and "Search for Tomorrow," which started three weeks earlier, are the two longest running daytime dramas on TV. Another interesting fact — original director Larry Auerbach is still in the "Love of Life" control room today.

PLOT PORTENTS. C[illegible]d young Pete be the answer to Donna on "Days of Our Lives"? Kids Timmy and Janice are giving a new look to the soap, and that means Joanne will remain in Salem for a sp[illegible] Julie's new shop keeps h[illegible] perpetually tired these days, and that bothers Doug, but he will hold his tongue. Amy's education is of deep concern to Chris, but he is unable to help out just now, and that bothers the independent cuss.

JULIANNA MCCARTHY (left) bears up very well for all her toil and trouble as Liz Foster in "The Young and the Restless," and even has a bit of fun on the set. Cindy Pickett leaves her "Guiding Light" role of Jackie Marler for the klieg lights of movie-making to appear in Roger Vadim's film, Night Games.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE IS $550.00
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE ON PAGE 2

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully.

2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win, for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

11. Prevue reserves the right to correct any typographical errors which may appear during the puzzle game.

12. Puzzle clues may be abbreviated and such words as AN; THE and A omitted.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week! THIS CROSSWORD is not a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a work list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

John Hearn's Collectibles

Collectors with a shrewd eye for the long-term investment will be watching the Canadian Post Office in the near future; if it becomes a Crown Corporation everything will change and all the earlier philatelic collectibles will become that much more desirable. Will they issue a "Last Day Cover"? Why not. It would sell prodigiously.

Note that I referred to philatelic collectibles rather than stamps. Every scrap of printed matter associated with the postal service is grist for the collector's mill. Personally I would rather own the Post Office literature describing forthcoming First Day Covers than the covers themselves. A recent release tells of a new booklet which would be a great find for your descendents when they go through that old trunk of yours one hundred years from now. It is called The Canadian Ocean Mail Clerk 1860-1887 and tells the story of the sorting clerks who manned the mail ships which plied between Canada and Europe in those far-off days. Written by Dr. Kenneth S. Mackenzie of the museum staff, it is one of a series planned to cover various aspects of the history of Canadian mail. The price is $2 and it can be ordered from the National Postal Museum, Confederation Heights, Ottawa, Ont., K1A OB1. For the same stamp you could enclose another $1 and get The History of Rural Mail in Canada — another bargain.

Another Postal Museum handout tells of the theft of rare covers from the archives of several institutions in the Maritimes. The items span nearly 100 years of history beginning with the 1770s. This is intriguing because it raises an old old question of how to dispose of stolen goods on the collector market. Items that are rare will inevitably be very pricey — otherwise why bother to steal them? The number of collectors specializing in such material is likely to be small and they are probably quite well-to-do — at least they are likely to be too respectable to get themselves involved in hot merchandise unless it is through ignorance, and collectors of that stature are not ignorant.

There is, of course, the matter of identification. By no means all stampless covers of the 1770s were stolen, but this batch is identified by the archival number and some of the missing items are already turning up with the number torn out. The counter-attack is publicity. By circulating a list of the stolen material to every philatelic agency in the world, no one can plead ignorance. Is there any point in owning something rare and valuable if you can never tell anyone about it?

Finally, an initialed memo from someone at the National Library in Ottawa warns against my advice to save old magazines etc. — "...collectors should be aware that paper-making methods used since the mid-19th century cause paper to self-destruct within about 50 years ... if I had a 1st edition of Tarzan of the Apes which cost me $1,000 I would want it de-acidified if I could find a paper conservator who would do it." Alternatively, he or she continues, you can keep old papers in the freezer.

Readers' letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, R. R. 1, Lowbanks, Ont., N0A 1K0.

Looking At Stars

Handsome Steve Carlson has visible reasons for rejoicing that his guest shot on the daytimer, "General Hospital," turned into a contract. It's already yielded enough for Steve to get a new pad in posh Bel Air for himself and Sam (a Labrador) and Mitch (a golden retriever).

Spotlight on Movies

The Monk, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Crime drama about an investigator in blackmail and murder. George Maharis and Janet Leigh (1969).

Sabrina, on 11 at 1 p.m. An interesting and entertaining version of Samuel Taylor's Broadway hit Sabrina Fair. Audrey Hepburn, William Holden and Humphrey Bogart (1954).

The Visit, on 5 at 3 p.m. It took the combined efforts of four countries (West Germany, America, France and Italy) to help dilute the fascinating play by Swiss playwright Friedrich Durrenmatt. The story remains intact, but the cynical, brittle cutting edge of the original has been lost in the trip over the Alps. Ingrid Bergman plays the strong-willed woman who goes to great lengths to wreak vengeance on her former lover— Anthony Quinn (1964).

Back Street, on 11 at 8 p.m. Drama, the third screen version of Fannie Hurst's story, about a fashion designer who has an affair with a married man. Susan Hayward and John Gavin (1961).

Audrey Rose, on 5 and 8 at 9 p.m. Drama about a couple and their child tormented by supernatural possession. Adapted by Frank De Felitta from his best-selling novel. Marsha Mason, Anthony Hopkins and John Beck (1977).

Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce discover that George Zucco is behind a jewel-theft-murder plot. Others in the cast are Ida Lupino and Alan Marshal (1939).

Good Salary, Prospects, Free Coffin, on 13 at midnight. British-made thriller made for television, about a woman who becomes suspicious when her two roommates disappear after accepting the same job. Kim Darby, James Maxwell and Keith Barron (1975).

That's Your Funeral, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. British-made comedy about rival funeral directors and covert drug trafficking. Bill Fraser (1973).

The Journey, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. An absorbing drama about people involved in the 1956 revolt in Hungary. Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr (1959).

Coffee, Me or Tea?, on 7 and 12 at 12:40 a.m. Lighthearted comedy about an airline stewardess commuting between two husbands—one living in London, England, the other in Los Angeles. Karen Valentine, John Davidson and Michael anderson. Made for television in 1973.

The Brave One, on 13 at 1:30 a.m. An entertaining drama about a young boy who runs away to Mexico City to find his pet bull won an Oscar for Best Original Screenplay. Michel Ray and Elsa Cardenas (1956).

Georgy Girl, on 7 at 2:20 a.m. A very touching and entertaining comedy-drama starring Lynn Redgrave, Alan Bates and James Mason. Redgrave plays the frumpy British lass who is satisfied with living life vicariously with her swinging roommate in London (1966).

Please Sir!, on 8 at 2:25 a.m. Comedy drama based on the British television series about the problems of a young teacher in a tough school in London, England. John Alderton plays the teacher (1971).

Looking at Stars

Of the "M*A*S*H" dropouts, it may be the most recent, Larry Linville, who's making the happiest landing. He said recently that playing the hypocritical Major Burns "Was getting depressing; everybody hated Burns, including me." So it's good to report that he has been signed to co-star with Jack ("Chico and the Man") Albertson in his new NBC series "Grandpa Goes to Washington."

Wayne Rogers, the onetime Trapper John, had less than a full season's crimefighter series. However, with him acting is a sideline. He is a money-management consultant with such rich fellahs as Peter Falk among his clients.

McLean Stevenson, who was lured away from his colonel role on "M*A*S*H" by an exclusive NBC contract, went through several formats — variety, as well as situation comedy — that just didn't click. He'll be back on the air in September, however, with a new show over on his old network, CBS, called "In the Beginning." It's a Norman Lear T.A.T. production. And it's true to his pattern of angling for offbeat laughter in a traditionally serious setting. This time it's a city mission. Pricilla Lopez stars as a nun, Sister Aggie ... in a show that could trigger controversy.

Two of the stunning grads of that grand British series, "Upstairs, Downstairs," are gracing regional stages this summer in the U.S.

Jean "Rose" Marsh has lightened her waist-length chestnut hair half a dozen shades and, as a new blonde, is having lots of fun stunning the critics with bravura Shakespearean performances.

Meg "Hazel" Wynne—Owen is touring with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in a new musical, "Out On a Limb," based on the wry writings of the late James Thurber.

A community college communications teacher tells us that one out of every five of us sooner or later will appear on TV. Oh, not necessarily as a threat to Barbara Walters or Walter Cronkite. But refuting local editorials, etc.

Instead of delving into the statistics, it struck us as a better use of energy to find out what you do when the camera finds you, so we did what Gary Wagner did at his recent TV publicity seminar and asked Gene Barnes for tips.

Gene, for six years a TV producer, now heads her own consulting firm. Pros like Gig Young and Dyan Cannon only need to know where they're supposed to report and when. But even famous authors need "grooming," notes Gene.

Gene's initial advice is to unscare yourself about TV being a mass medium. "Think of yourself as talking to one person at a time looking at the tube."

She advised men to avoid bold plaid suits and sharp white shirts. Women should leave the glittering jewelry at home. Then, "Be as comfortable as you can" when it's your turn to say your say. These tidbits, and more, are now in print in the "Publicity Forum" paperback (published by Richard Weiner).

Looking At Stars

After examining new photos of her, a New York makeup man says Farrah could learn a lesson from Mary Tyler Moore. The "lesson"? "Get a haircut."

For those who've forgotten, when MTM made her initial splash on TV, as Dick Van Dyke's wife, she sported a crisp page-boy. To establish a new identity in her own prestige series as Mary Williams, Mary let her hair straggle a couple of inches lower. After 26 weeks of protesting letters she saw the light . . . and a barber.

Farrah shouldn't wait that long, says our expert. "Her hair is now too long and too heavy to look carefree . . . and that's been one of her charms."

Funny world. When they were casting the Broadway show based on the TV show "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom," in which Maureen Stapleton starred, nobody seems to have thought of asking Maureen. Dorothy Loudon gets the role.

Today's Highlights

Coronation Street, on 2 at 9 a.m. (For more details see story on Page 1)

Cinematic Eye—Discussion, on 9 at noon. The first in a 13-part series analyzing films by European directors. Today Ingmar Bergman's first screen play—Torment—directed by Alf Sjoberg. The movie was made in Sweden in 1944.

Vancouver, on 13 at 7 p.m. Special guest on tonight's show is British Columbia's former premier David Barrett.

Exploration Northwest, on 4 at 7:30 p.m. The first episode in the Chief Joseph Trail ride by members of the National Appaloosa Horse Club.

NBC Premiere Week Begins

NBC premiere week means new shows, new shows and more new shows! Beginning Monday, Sept. 18, season premieres for returning shows and for brand spanking new shows will grace the NBC schedule.

"Little House on the Prairie" returns to NBC on Monday evening with Michael Landon and cast. However, the Ingalls won't stick to the wide open plains of Walnut Grove. Instead, economic troubles induce the family to move to town. Pa Ingalls will manage the local hotel and Caroline will see to the cooking. Mary, who has lost her sight, becomes a teacher of the blind.

On Tuesday, Jack Albertson goes to town — Washington, D.C. — as Senator Joe Kelly in "Grandpa Goes to Washington." Larry Linville co-stars as his Pentagon general-son. The one-hour comedy-drama concentrates on Grandpa's campaign against political corruption and his day-to-day engagements with the government machine.

Perennial teen-ager Dick Clark steals the show on Wednesday evenings with his hour-long variety series, "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday." Musical acts, comedy sits and nostalgia segments recur each week as master showman Clark hosts the greatest variety show since Ed Sullivan went off the air.

Thursday night NBC is running "Project U.F.O." and "Quincy" back-to-back and following them with a new series, "W.E.B." Pamela Bellwood stars in this new entry as a young liberated woman, Ellen Cunningham, who has struggled her way to a position as head of Special Events Programming for televison network.

Joe Namath joins the faculty of Waverly High School as a history teacher and coach of the varsity basketball team in "The Waverly Wonders," Friday, Sept. 22 on NBC.

On Friday evenings former Jets and Rams quarterback Joe Namath swaps football for basketball and opens the night as coach Harry Casey of the Waverly High School basketball team in "The Waverly Wonders," a half-hour comedy series.

"Who's Watching the Kids" dribbles onto NBC on the heels of "The Waverly Wonders." Another half-hour situation comedy, it's about two youngsters who are being brought up by three single adults among the glitter of Los Vegas. Scott Baio and Tammy Lauren star as 15-year-old Frankie "the Fox" Vitola and 9-year-old Melissa Turner, respectively.

James Garner and the "The Rockford Files" are next, while the "Eddie Capra Mysteries" is last on the Friday agenda. Vincent Baggetta stars as Eddie Capra, a lawyer with a special talent for unravelling whodunits in this hour-long puzzler.

Looking At Stars

Will Debbie Johnson return to North State Texas U. for her junior year or won't she? Right now, not even Debbie knows. Debbie is the top winner of a talent search by the five Six Flags theme parks that drew 8,000 contestants. As one of the five finalists, she got to sing, "All That Jazz," on the Dinah Shore show. She's been singing it every night since in a musical revue "Jazz Crazy," at the Six Flags Over Texas near Dallas. A theatre major at school, Debbie thinks of herself as "an actress who sings."

Today's Highlights

Two's a Crowd, on 2 at 7:30 p.m. The first in a six-part comedy series about a French-Canadian couple.

Front Page Challenge, on 2 and 6 at 8:30 p.m. The show returns for its 22nd season with the opener which was taped in Victoria, B.C. on Sept. 11.

Tommy Hunter Country, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. The show's 13th season opens with performances by the Family Brown, the dancing Stoney Mountain Cloggers, and singer Audie Henry.

American Girls, on 6 t 10 p.m. New comedy series about two striking female reporters working for a slick, magazine-type television news show called American Report. In the opener the girls travel to Reno where they interview a magician who is also a political defector from Czechoslovakia. Playing the reporters are Priscilla Barnes and Debra Clinger. David Spielberg is the magician.

Design Offers Maximum Space

The popular grade entry design is a logical choice for families wishing to derive maximum living space from their building lot, and this version achieves that end high style with great eye-appeal. The mixed vertical and horizontal siding of the exterior, combined with the vertical rectangles of the front windows and accent boards create a great sense of size and height. The wide front balcony and heavy cedar shake roof are reminiscent of a mountain chalet or winter resort.

The well-planned U-shaped kitchen separates from the formal dining room via convenient pocket door and connects to a cozy breakfast nook for more casual family meals.

All three bedrooms are positioned to the rear away from the main living area for disturbance-free entertaining. Each has good exposure for natural light and generous closet storage. The master bedroom has a two-piece ensuite.

Access to the wide front balcony is via sliding glass doors from the dining room for relaxed outdoor meals in fine weather. Similar access could be gained from the living room through the installation of sliding doors.

On the grade level is located an unfinished family or recreation room, roughed-in plumbing for a third bathroom, and the laundry/utility room. This space could be developed into a variety of functional areas in accordance with differing family requirements.

Plans for design No. 76-1291 may be puchased either by single set, at a cost of $70. for the first set and $10. for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $100. and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $125.

Whichever method you choose, please include $4. for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 5% sales tax.

. . . among the contributors to the annual fall flood of Canadian books

When Benjamin Franklin opined there was nothing certain but death and taxes, he'd obviously never experienced a Canadian winter nor the seasonal rhythms of the publishing industry.

The spring torrent, followed by the summer doldrum, followed by the fall flood, has become a fact of life for everyone connected with the book business in Canada, as elsewhere.

With the annual fall flood about to start, then, it seems worth trying for an overview of the scene while we still have our heads above water. Listed below are some of the more likely-looking titles due to arrive in bookstores between now and Christmas. They can be lumped into several broad categories, such as:

ART: The prestige art book has become a publishing staple. Leading the fall field is likely to be Peter Mellen's Landmarks of Canadian Art (McClelland & Stewart, $50), a lavishly illustrated survey from prehistory to the present.

And The Mountains of Canada (Hurtig, $24.95). This one is by Randy Morse with illustrations by 25 of "Canada's finest nature photographers."

A dark horse in this category may be Pottery in Alberta, by Marylu Antonelli and Jack Forbes (University of Alberta Press, $12.50). Apparently Alberta pots have quite a history. If the book is half as interesting as its publisher's blurb, it'll make good reading.

WAR: Our perennial interest in the wars which helped give this country its sense of nationhood will be met by The Suicide Battalion, by James L. McWilliams and R. James Steel (Hurtig, $11.50), the story of the men who went to Vimy, the Somme, Amiens and Passchendaele.

Joyce Hibbert's The War Brides (PMA, $14.95), is yet another oral history, the title of which is self-explanatory.

And In Retreat, by Gerald Porter (Deneau & Greenberg, $12.95), billed as an indictment of the defence policies of the Trudeau government.

POLITICS: With Trudeau's eeny-meeny-miney-moe approach to election dates making timing difficult, there appears to be only one current political book scheduled for this fall.

Joe Clark, The Emerging Leader by Michael Nolan Fitzhenry & Whiteside ($13.95) is a "unique photo biograph" also available in a "limited, signed edition" at $35.00. Who signed it — Michael or Joe — the publishers neglected to say.

Also look for Christina Newman's The Liberal Establishment (Macmillan, $14.95). This one will examine the Liberal power structure over the past 50 years and will probably be held up until spring if the prime minister decides against a fall election.

MONEY: This is the big interest for fall, for reasons which are all to devastatingly obvious. Coming up are Peter C. Newman's The Bronfman Dynasty (McClelland & Stewart, $17.95), which sounds like a spin-off from his The Canadian Establishment.

A how-to-double-your-money-in-six-months-without-risk handbook, The Profit-Taker, by Don Abrams, (Deneau & Greenberg, $9.95).

And a whole series of books from the Financial Post in conjunction with Macmillan. Some of Our Best Friends Are in Business, with cartoons by Post artist Trevor Hutchings ($5.95), sounds the most digestible of the lot.

HISTORY: More "tales from the remarkable past" by Pierre Berton, titled The Wild Frontier (McClelland & Stewart, $14.95); a new book from M&S by Arthur Lower (A Pattern for History, $16.95); a new James Gray — Troublemaker! — about Alberta's boom years of gas and oil (Macmillan, $14.95), and Faces from History, with archival photos and text by George Woodcock (Hurtig, $24.95), are only some of the many titles to tempt gift-givers this fall.

The ultimate gift book in this category — in terms of price — will be Longman's The Northpart of America, by Coolie Verner and Basil Stuart-Stubbs. $250.00. A "facsimile atlas" of Canada before 1867, it contains 46 early maps and historical explanations.

FICTION: Front-runners this fall include Morley Callaghan, Alice Munro, Jack Hodgins, Mariãn Engel, Margaret Gibson and, of course, Aritha van Herk, Canlit's first overnight star.

That pretty well covers the highlights, except for miscellaneous goodies such as Eric Nicol's The Joy of Hockey (Hurtig, $8.95), Mark Orkin's Sex Wars (General, $8.95) and Don Harron's Olde Charlie Farguharson's Testament (Gage, $8.95).

New poems are coming from Birney, Cohen, Layton, Purdy and Skelton, and one very special title will be Hugh MacLennan's, Essayist (Macmillan, $11.95).

The remaining books to appear this fall will be written or edited by John Robert Colombo, Morris Wolfe and Val Clery. (Not really, but a glance through the catalogues does give that impression.) Stay tuned for future assessments as the crowds roll by.

SOME COOL CATS

By JAN ROSSLEY

There are two kinds of people in this world: those who like cats and those who don't. If you are in the former category, then Kenneth Lillington's Nine Lives: An Anthology of Poetry and Prose Concerning Cats is a book you'll want on your bookshelf.

Lillington, a true cat connoiseur, has included Chaucer, Ted Hughes, T. S. Eliot, Colette, Keats, Baudelaire and other members of the literary creme de la creme to contribute the 100 entries celebrating felin domesticus.

Cool cats, mad cats, fat cats, bad cats — they're all here, caught as clearly as words can catch these mystical creatures. The drawings of Maurice Wilson accompanying the text admirably fill the spaces the words can't and add a final touch to this "purrfectly" delightful volume.

It is a treasure and can be recommended to all "cat people" wholeheartedly.

NINE LIVES: AN ANTHOLOGY OF POETRY AND PROSE CONCERNING CATS, Compiled by Kenneth Lillington and illustrated by Maurice Willson. Andre Deutsch. $9.95.

TALENT APPARENT BUT . . .

Trivial Treatment Of a Grand Subject

By WALT KELLYTHORNE

This epic tells the tale of Hogg, "countersunk/in the surface of things", who wonders "why this dislocation/of the self." Finding no answers "In this/land of ell-grass/and ice drifts and snow", Hogg sets out on his quest — and lands in Jerusalem!

There, of course, he meets the usual shamans and fools, the usual woman who momentarily dispels "all grief, calumny,/rage . . ."

That's not enough for Hogg, however. It never is. His quest continues through a hearing of the holy city's bloody history of war and betrayal. No enlightenment there.

Not surprisingly, Hogg heads home — to Toronto of all places, beloved by its mayor as "a whale/of/a city."

A tour of bars and subways ensues. As he listens to their inhabitants' prophecies and laments, Hogg learns that he has indeed a future to live; he emerges "still himself, pig-/headed in his hope/that a wonder about all big/and small things spoke/in tongues."

As pretentious, silly and awkward as most of this poetry is, there are enough good lines here — and one quite beautiful sonnet — to indicate that Callaghan possesses more talent than he's using.

The drawings, colorful and grotesque, alone are almost worth the high price of this book. The three facial portraits are especially striking, conveying far more effectively than the poetry the tired anguish of a hopeless man encountering the abyss.

That encounter is a basic fact of human life, and one that must surely be celebrated in the grandest possible terms. The Hogg Poems merely trivialize. — W.K.

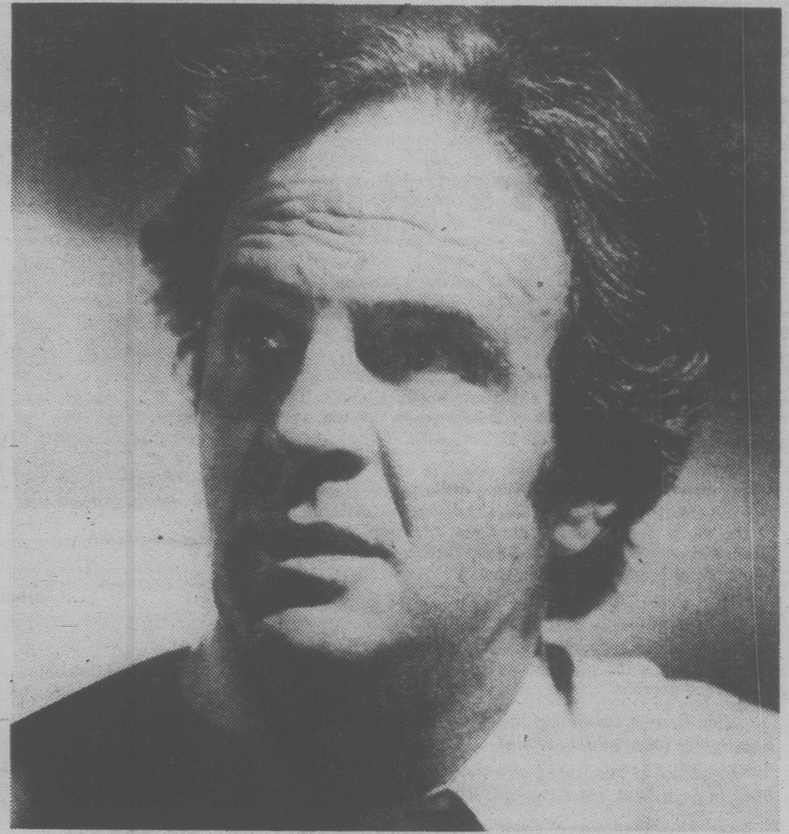
TWO CONTRASTING WORKS

The Fire of Love; Flat Champagne

By JULIAN REID



TRUFFAUT . . . his book proves a bright exception

There are books, and then there are non-books. And high on my own personal list of publishing categories which deserve the latter label is that dubious manifestation, the anthology of out-of-date movie reviews. After all, it is the inherent nature of the reviewer's craft that his productions are both transient and trivial, as fitfully fugitive as a scurry of October leaves.

Yet there is always room on my shelves for the occasional exception that proves the rule, and Francois Truffaut's The Films in My Life makes a very welcome case in point. Here is this luminous French director's own personal selection of his favorites, including both brief spur-of-the-moment reviews and a few fuller and more formally considered essays, from among the hundreds of critical pieces he published between 1953 and 1975. They thus neatly straddle that annus mirabilis, 1959, when with the release of his first feature, The 400 Blows, Truffaut turned his main energies from the essentially parasitic function of critic to the essentially creative one of film-maker and artist.

During his youthful days as a professional critic associated with the influential French film periodical, Cahiers du Cinema, Truffaut earned himself a forbidding reputation for the vitriolic quality of his writing. But there is little sign of this dubious distinction among the 110 pieces collected here.

True, the book does contain a representative handful of derogatory notices, typically characterized by an icy facility along with occasional flashes of rather cold-blooded facetiousness — the familiar stock-in-trade of a certain school of criticism everywhere. But whatever pleasure such schoolboy exercises in pique may have given Truffaut at the time, his perspective has mellowed over the ensuing years. "Today," he announces in his warmly perceptive introduction, "I prefer the articles that are full of praise. They are infinitely more difficult to write and more interesting after the passage of time."

For, above all, what distinguishes Truffaut's best criticism, as well as the films he has given us, is the heart and soul of his distinctive genius — an impassioned love of the cinema. His every contact with the medium becomes in its consummation an act of love. Take, for instance, his 1955 comments on a generally ignored Robert Aldrich thriller: "To appreciate Kiss Me Deadly, you have to love the movies passionately . . . Watching a film like this is such an intense experience that we want it to last for hours . . ."

HUSTON . . . a good reference work but little else

Most reviewers, sad to say, are either naive bumblers or lazy-minded cynics. The first group is incapable of illuminating the alleged object of their attentions on its own, the second is self-centeredly unconcerned with doing so. Truffaut, however, is different.

Like all great lovers, he is at once both romantic and realist. "No film is a total success," he observes shrewdly, "and it's awfully easy to criticize what it's not. It's our job to try to discover what it is."

And elsewhere he demands rhetorically: "Isn't it the critic's duty to serve as intermediary between the authors of a film and the audience it's aimed at?" Which is surely as valid a definition of the reviewer's proper function as any author has ever presented anywhere.

In this generously affirmative spirit, The Films in My Life presents brief but often exhilarating illuminating discussions of some 100 films by 74 assorted film-makers, classic and contemporary, almost all of them either French or American in provenance. Among them are such revered figures as Jean Vigo, Max Ophuls, Jean Renoir, Robert Bresson, Orson Welles and Alfred Hitchcock — not to mention less universally acclaimed talents like Sacha Guitry, Samuel Fuller and Edgar Ulmer.

Inevitably, Truffaut does greater justice to some than to others. Sometimes, indeed, when he perceives his high cinematic ideals as being cynically compromised or degraded, he is capable of being unduly critical, even grossly unfair. For like every impetuous young lover he can be waspish, wrong-headed, intolerant — even downright objectionable on occasion. But unlike ordinary critics, he is never mean-spirited or merely banal. In the end, the passionate joy he takes in the cinema comes across as the real subject of all these pieces, so much so that even the most unsatisfactory of them is glancingly touched with fire.

And it is just this fire, alas, that is lacking from The Cinema of John Huston, a loosely produced semi-book that CBC broadcaster Gerald Pratley has boiled down from what the jacket calls "some fourteen hours of tape-recorded reminiscing" by the distinguished director of such well-remembered movies as The Maltese Falcon, The Treasure of the Sierra Madre, The African Queen, and Fat City. Amplified as it is with detailed credits and plot-summaries for every film he has made, this volume will certainly serve as a worthwhile reference-companion for dedicated Hustonians. But the ordinary film buff is apt to find it something of a let-down, like vintage champagne that has somewhat gone flat in the bottling.

The trouble is that interviewer Pratley brings to his task none of the passion or the intensely involved intelligence that Truffaut does, for instance, in his celebrated book-length conversation with Alfred Hitchcock. Rather than drawing Huston out, Pratley is content simply to let him recapitulate all the well-worn after-dinner anecdotes and on-the-cuff remarks he has trotted out for scores of previous interviews. Consequently the book lacks freshness, as if one is listening to a thrice-told tale filtered tinnily through a somewhat insensitive microphone.

As Huston himself remarks, "This book will be useful if only as a permanent record of what I think about film-making." What fails to come through, however, is what he feels about it — that vital full-blooded sense of the man himself, with all his legendary zest for life and his passionate enthusiasm for his vocation. Ironically, there is more of Francois Truffaut in his fugitive reflections on other men's movies than there is of John Huston in these direct reminiscencings on his own creations.

THE FILMS IN MY LIFE, by Francois Truffaut. Musson. $15.95.

E. D. WARD-HARRIS

Haunted forever by the words of an old sports editor

A lady I met recently mentioned a book she had just finished and asked me what I thought of it, then added hurriedly, as if she had committed some dreadful faux pas, "Oh, I forgot, of course you don't read novels."

"Oh, but I do, I do," I protested. "Whatever gave you the impression that I don't?"

"Well, you rarely write about them," she said. "You seem only to read stodgy heavy things. You know, biographies and stuff like that."

At such moments one has several alternatives: one can stammer excuses, spit in the person's eye, deliver a mini-lecture on comparative literature, parade one's knowledge of fiction past and current, or remain silent. I remained silent. But the lady's remark disturbed me.

I hadn't realized that I was typed as a 'heavy,' like some unfortunate actor. If this is the belief of many of my readers, I thought, then it's high time for a public explanation as to how I came to deal mainly in non-fiction.

The seed was planted many years ago by an elderly sports editor. I was a young self-important pip-squeak journalist and one day I had the cheek to pity him for being involved "only with sports." "Don't pity me, my boy," he said, "sports is concerned with verdicts, decisions, results — you always know where you stand. I deal in facts, not sensationalism and surmise. Sport is the only clean form of journalism, and don't you ever forget it." I never did.

His words haunted me whenever I introduced some sensational "color" into news stories. They haunted me even more when I became a drama critic and discovered that, like a harlot, I had power without responsibility and that a fleeting impression translated into a thoughtless phrase could do irreparable damage to someone's career.

A colorful interview of a murder victim's family or a witty, polished review of a show may delight the newspaper reader, but what of the vulnerability of the unfortunates who have been sacrificed to gain an arresting headline?

This applies equally, if not more so, to novelists who labor in loneliness for months, and sometimes years, to conceive and gestate a novel. Triumphant birth, followed closely by slaughter at the hands of critics, is tantamount to infanticide, and for a sensitive writer can be just as traumatic. The devilish thing is that this harm can so easily be perpetrated thoughtlessly by a normally responsible person who has to struggle against a migraine headache to meet a deadline and unconsciously takes out his frustration on some innocent novelist.

When I was reviewing a lot of fiction I consoled myself with the belief that my standards were high and that any novelist worth his salt must learn to take his knocks. Also, that the fiercest critics had always been famous men and women writers.

Byron, Shelley and Keats were attacked by nearly all their literary contemporaries, and vitriolically by Southey and Carlyle. Pope made a career out of attacking everyone who didn't praise his work. Wordsworth hated Charlotte Bronte's work, and said so loudly, and often. Oliver Goldsmith and Dr. Johnson ridiculed Laurence Sterne (Tristram Shandy) and belittled Henry Fielding (Tom Jones). Goethe thought Beethoven's music was beyond the pale.

One could go on and on — to prove that opinions regarding poetry or fiction, whether basted with honey or bile, are merely individual opinions which often say more about the critic than his victim.

The danger of making a hasty, ill-considered judgment about an imaginative piece of work one hasn't fully understood at first reading — a work, say, by Anthony Powell or James Joyce — makes a review, however convincingly written, unfair, misleading and altogether a futile exercise.

Despite my misgivings, I shall continue to review fiction from time to time as constructively as I am able, but in the main I shall continue to concentrate on non-fiction because, like the sports editor, I prefer to deal with facts, which can be checked and cross-checked for accuracy. This still leaves plenty of scope for critical assessments of style, construction, presentation, and general worth.

And, speaking of general worth, I have just finished reading Unquiet Soul, a biography of Charlotte Bronte, by Margot Peters (published in 1975), and selling then for $14.50). This is a choice example of a non-fiction work that one has to be very careful about. It has provided me with a certain amount of amusement, a lot of aggravation, and not much enlightenment.

Margot Peters holds a doctoral degree in Victorian literature from the University of Wisconsin, where she is now an assistant professor of English. In her enthusiasm for Charlotte Bronte she explored her home ground, Haworth and the Yorkshire moors and visited places she had visited in Scotland and the Lake District. I have checked most of her statements and they are correct, as indeed they should be, yet nothing can be taken precisely at face value because all is tinged with bias.

The trouble is Ms. Peters is an ardent feminist who cannot see the beautiful female wood for the ugly man-planted trees and her contempt for men has so clouded her vision that she has constructed her narrative expressly to point up her rage.

She achieves this very simply. Although all facts given are substantially accurate any fact that conflicts with modern feminist thinking has been either blurred or ruthlessly omitted. She should have had the sense to realize that a deliberately contrived approach which used today's more enlightened attitudes to judge the status of women in the early 1800s must prove self-defeating.

It is axiomatic that to have validity the subject of any biography must be portrayed in the context of the age in which he or she lived. Social attitudes of any age which appear odd or outrageous to us were accepted as normal by those who lived in a particular age in a particular society.

We may feel abject pity for the repressed Bronte girls, but Charles Dickens, who from very humble beginnings worked himself up to the highest position in the world of letters, would have considered Charlotte Bronte, his contemporary, fortunate in having a social position and a degree of financial security which gave her a head start.

Ms. Peters, who clearly has not bothered to study English social history, creates a false picture by removing Charlotte from her age and presenting her, so to speak, in limbo. This enables her to exploit the feminist theme to her heart's content.

For instance, before his marriage, Charlotte's father changed his name to Bronte to mark his hero-worship of Lord Nelson who was created Duke of Bronte by the Sicilian monarch. I find this little-known fact an endearing touch in a man portrayed as a cold, unfeeling fiend incarnate. Why didn't Ms. Peters mention it?

Charlotte is usually thought of as a lifelong spinster virtually imprisoned in a remote moorland vicarage and compelled to write in secret without any stimulation. The truth is she travelled to Scotland and many parts of England where she visited women friends with whom she maintained a voluminous correspondence. She also attended school in Brussels, fell madly in love with her teacher's husband and, with her father's permission, remained in Brussels as a governess so as to be near the man — who did not return her love.

As for writing, she couldn't churn stuff out like Flaubert and Dickens; she only wrote when passionately motivated and all her work was based on personal experience. Her style was much influenced by that of George Sand whose work she read in French periodicals she subscribed to. And, don't forget, she was also stimulated by her brilliant sisters, Emily who wrote Wuthering Heights and Anne who was also no mean writer.

And she wasn't a lifelong spinster. She eventually married her father's curate and died during her first pregnancy.

Ms. Peters would have us believe that Charlotte used the pen-name Currer Bell because publishers discriminated against women. Nonsense. The great Jane Austen wrote under her own name, as did Charlotte's friends Mrs. Gaskell and Harriet Martineau, and others, like Fanny Burney. Charlotte liked the name Currer Bell and referred to herself in the third person as such in correspondence long after she became famous.

And as for male discrimination, why did the great Thackeray welcome her with open arms and introduce her at his public lectures? She reviled him for his pains and this has been attributed to her innate shyness. I wonder.

She craved affection and society life was a barren substitute. Men avoided her, not because she was a women but because she had three strikes against her: She was too intelligent for most of them; she was a plain as a penny bun; and she stood a mere four feet nine inches — the height of Thackeray's elbow! Shyness, pretended or real, would have been the only form of self-defence available to this unhappy, spurned, passionate mite.

The author of Jane Eyre, one of the most gifted novelists of the 19th century, has a secure niche in the history of English literature, and I don't imagine she would have taken kindly to being used by a modern feminist to score a few cheap points against men. Do you?

UNQUIET SOUL, a biography of Charlotte Bronte, by Margot Peters. Doubleday. Originally $14.50.

Plot May Be Tortuous But It's Worth Effort

By FRED BARNES

This is a remarkable first novel by a young (26) Californian. Although the plot is complex, in fact often tortuous, the effort of winding one's way through the maze is worth the reader's effort.

The story opens in Hawaii when a rookie policemen driving over the mountains is stopped by a disheveled woman running along the highway. Her husband has been killed in an automobile crash, an obvious-looking accident to the rookie. But the woman is convinced that her husband had been poisoned. Norman Hall does his best to convince her she is wrong, and lists it as a motor-vehicle death. When the woman soon after is brutally murdered, Hall realizes his terrible mistake and eventually leaves the Honolulu police force under a cloud. However, he makes a new and affluent career as a magazine writer.

The murders occurred in 1941, and it is not until 1962 that Hall is offered a plum assignment by World magazine to cover an attempt to salvage the Titanic by an eccentric and crippled multi-millionaire, William Ryker. Ryker's wife had been aboard the Titanic with his daughter, Eva, who supplies the novel's title, The Memory of Eva Ryker. Hall's interest is fired by his recollection that the murdered couple, the Kleins, also had been aboard and rescued, as had Eva, while Mrs. Ryker had been a victim.

Hall's principal assignment is to research enough of the passengers aboard the Titanic, not necessarily the rich and the famous, to weave a personal story around the salvaging of the Titanic. As he follows some of these lives, he discovers there is much more to Ryker's plans than meet the eye, and the plot starts its tortuous route to the excellent climax. Eventually, it is the mind of Eva Ryker, now about 60 years of age, that must be unlocked if the secret is to be solved. For 50 years Eva has refused to remember the details of that long-ago trip to death.

Sections of the book dealing with the search for, and discovery of, the Titanic, and the underseas excitement, provide a major bonus.

Stanwood says he spent seven years researching and writing The Memory of Eva Ryker. This reviewer is inclined to believe him, for the novel certainly is no slapdash effort.

THE MEMORY OF EVA RYKER, by Donald A. Stanwood; Coward, McCann and Geohegan.

Advertising Supplement to the Victoria Times & Victoria Colonist Sept. 14 and 15, 1978

The Victoria Symphony

PRESENTS

Year of the Maestros

AND OUR

POP SERIES

First performance Oct. 1ST Don't miss it!

The concert is about to begin.

The baton is poised; there is an expectancy, an electricity and a tension in the air.

And then ... the music. The musicians and the audience become one participant in experiencing the world of live music.

Nothing can substitute for this realization. Not television, not radio, not records. This is the world's greatest music, live, brought to you by one of our country's top professional symphony orchestras.

Your continuing presence guarantees you a continuing thrill. Your continuing support guarantees you a continuing symphony orchestra.

Join us for this exciting season.

PROGRAMME SUBJECT TO CHANGE

POP SERIES

Have a fun night with Skiles and Henderson, relax to the dreamy music of Carmen Dragon and enjoy the fine singing of Victoria's own Peter Chipman all three performances in our 1978-79 Pops Concert Subscription series.

SKILES & HENDERSON Combining rare musical ability with an indescribable and hilarious sense of humour, Bob and Pete have fascinated audiences around the world. Always in good taste, they are family entertainment.
Jan. 14-15

Feb. 11-12

PETER CHIPMAN. One of the West's most popular and sought after entertainers, Peter's repertoire ranges from soft and intimate ballads to rousing foot stompers—and when the need for comedy arises, he sings some of the funniest songs ever written. A thoroughly enjoyable and entertaining experience.
Mar. 25-26

in addition to an already exciting season, your symphony presents ...

* THE VIENNA CHOIR BOYS have charmed audiences the world over with their costumed operettas, sacred songs, secular and folk music since 1498. They continue to be world wide favorites from Japan to Victoria
OCTOBER 29

* KAREN KAIN & FRANK AUGUSTYN, two of the National Ballet's principal dancers, appear for the first time before Victoria audiences. A unique talent and an electrifying performance brought six curtain calls and a ten minute standing ovation at the Bolshoi!
DECEMBER 3-4

* THE TORONTO SYMPHONY, with Andrew Davis conducting and Jeanne Baxtresser, solo flute, is the last of our Special Engagements for this season. Subscribers to the Victoria Symphony will receive a 50% discount on TSO tickets . . . don't miss it!
MAY 1, 1979

You can save 25% by buying your tickets in a subscription series

HERE'S HOW... The Year of the Maestros consists of twelve concerts, beginning on October 1st and 2nd, 1978 and concluding in April, 1979. Purchase a subscription for the whole series and save the price of 3 concerts—a saving of twenty-five percent! This is our Bravura Series, and this is the popular way to enjoy the full season of regular concerts.

For those who wish to attend every other performance, either one of the Clarion Series offers a choice of six exciting and varied concerts. To attend four consecutive concerts, you may decide on one of the lively Viva Series.

In addition to the regular performances, we have scheduled three special engagements, including the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and subscribers can enjoy a saving of 50% on T.S.O. Tickets.

And after you have participated by ballot in the selection of a new Musical Director of the Victoria Symphony, join us in our Pops Series, the details of which you will see below.
